

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

6.—That the Executive may remove from the list of District Unions any District Union which holds no meeting or makes no report to the Executive for the space of twelve months.

7.—That all District Unions and Local Associations be required to forward a copy of their rules by December 31st of each year.

ALTERATION OF RULES.

38.—That no alteration in or addition to these Rules be made, except at the Annual Conference, and that notice of any proposed alteration or addition be sent to the Secretary of the National Union of Teachers at least two months before the Annual Conference.

APPENDIX TO RULES.

BYE-LAWS FOR ADMINISTRATION OF LEGAL ASSISTANCE AND SUSTENTATION FUND.

1.—The General Treasurer shall, once in every month, pay to a separate account a sum equal to two shillings per member for the number from whom subscriptions have been received during the month.

2.—No payments shall be made from this Fund, except for the purpose of affording legal assistance or support to members, in accordance with the resolution of the Newcastle Conference.

3.—Any member shall have a claim upon the Fund for legal assistance and support, subject to the recommendation of the Local Association and the approval of the Executive; except in the case of individual members under Rule 27—when the approval of the Law Committee shall be taken for that of the Local Association.

4.—In all cases adopted by the Union the costs shall be paid out of this Fund; except that in any case where the applicant for assistance shall, in the opinion of the Executive, suppress evidence or shall knowingly furnish incorrect information, no costs of the other side which the applicant may become liable to pay, and such portion only of the applicant's costs as the Executive may determine, shall be borne by the Fund, and the balance of any costs incurred by the Executive in relation to the case shall be paid by the applicant to the Treasurer of the Union, and shall be recoverable by the Treasurer from the applicant.

5.—The local Association may not recommend, nor may the Executive approve, any claim which is not of a professional nature.

6.—This Fund shall not be chargeable with the costs of any proceedings undertaken without the consent of the Executive, except in cases where the time elapsing between the service and the hearing by the Court is too short to allow of the approval of the case by the Executive. In such cases the Local Association may apply to the local solicitor, and instruct him to conduct the case until the same shall be adopted by the Union. Under no circumstances may a prosecution be instituted without the previous consent of the Law Committee through its officials.

7.—No charges in legal cases shall be paid from this Fund unless presented within six months of the date of hearing.

8.—No fines or damages inflicted on any member shall be paid out of the Fund, except in cases specially sanctioned by the Executive.

9.—The Local Association may not recommend, nor may the Executive adopt, the case of any applicant for assistance who does not fulfil the following conditions :—

- (a) The name of the applicant, at the time the difficulty arises, must appear in the official list of members of the Union for the preceding year, which list shall be closed not later than 31st December in each year.
- (b) The applicant must have paid his full annual subscription for the current year before the case is either recommended by the Association or adopted by the Executive.

Members who have recently qualified as teachers in elementary schools will not be required to comply with condition (a) above if they have joined the Union within three months of the time of being placed on the staff of an elementary school.

10.—In all cases adopted by the Union the Law Committee shall have absolute power to carry on, compromise, or withdraw the same in such manner and on such terms as shall appear to them advisable ; in all cases of compromise made without the previous sanction of the Law Committee, the Executive shall have power to determine what, if any, costs shall be paid out of this Fund, and the balance of any costs incurred by the Executive in relation to the case shall be paid by the applicant to the Treasurer, and shall be recoverable by the Treasurer from the applicant.

11.—It shall be the duty of every Association to recommend the Executive for appointment a local solicitor, and in all cases conducted by the Union at the cost of the Fund in which local solicitors are engaged, the local solicitors shall act under the direction of the Law Committee of the Union, and all papers, briefs, opinions, and other documents, connected with such cases shall be and remain the property of the Executive of the Union.

12.—If any member suffer injury from any cause which, in the opinion of his Local Association and of the Executive, arises from any action taken on the advice of the Union in defence of professional rights or position, or from any cause which, in the opinion of the Executive, renders the member worthy of support, the Executive may make such grants out of the Funds towards the maintenance and relief of such member as they may deem desirable.

13.—The Fund may be applied to cases arising from the relations of teachers to any bodies with which they have professional connection.

14.—Advice on legal matters of a professional nature may be obtained by any member who fulfils the conditions named in Bye-Law 9. Such application for advice need not be submitted through the Local Association, but may be forwarded direct to the Law Clerk.

TWENTY-FOURTH ANNUAL CONFERENCE, 1893.

THE Twenty-fourth Annual Conference of the Union was held in the St. George's Hall, Liverpool, on April 3rd, 4th, 5th, and 6th, 1893. The chair was taken by Mr. R. Greenwood (Deputy President), at 2 p.m., on Easter Monday; and after some preliminary business, Mr. C. Bowden, Wesleyan School, Gateshead, was installed as president for the year 1893-4. Mr. Bowden conducted the business with ability, and in the course of the First Session delivered his inaugural address. More than eight hundred Representatives from all parts of the country attended the Conference. The most complete and satisfactory arrangements had been made by the Liverpool Conference Committee for the comfort and convenience of members of Conference.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

UNITY AND SYSTEM IN ENGLISH EDUCATION.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—The subject of National Education is so varied in its many-sidedness, so wide in its ramifications, and so prolific in phases of absorbing interest, that I felt some difficulty in making a choice out of the points of pressing importance to bring before you on the present occasion. One, however, seems to me to demand our serious attention to-day, and I desire for a short time to bring before you the subject of the necessity for Unity and System in English Education. Before doing so, however, it will be well to give a brief

Review of the Past Year.

My predecessor in the Presidential Chair, in an extremely able and comprehensive address, dealt with the question of Free Education—the necessity for freeing education from neglect, mistrust, and mismanagement. How far have his pleadings at Leeds last year been attended to? There is not the slightest doubt that he spoke with the general approval of the majority of the teachers in our National Union. The first item of "Neglect of Education" which he considered was "Absenteeism." The advocates of Education without the payment of fees fondly hoped that the abolition of fees would prove a strong incentive to more regular attendance. But absenteeism is as rife as ever. It is true that there is a large increase in the number on the rolls of children under five years of age, and in many cases there is no doubt this will be beneficial to the children, but the number of older children on the registers in average attendance does not appear to have more than kept pace with the increase of population, and I must, in your name, reiterate the necessity for a more stringent application of the remedies placed in the hands of the local authorities, and hope that strong representations may be made to the local magistracy by the Education Department to assist the various educational authorities in carrying out the compulsory clauses of the Education Acts.

The strictures upon "Makeshift" schools have received due attention at the hands of the Education Department. Ideas respecting the suitability of school premises have expanded since 1870. Many of the school buildings which have done duty since that date "were designed at a period when the laws of health were imperfectly understood, and when the external conditions of a sound and effective education were scarcely considered. An ill-ventilated, awkwardly-arranged, badly-lighted, or badly-warmed building is not only injurious to body and mind, but sadly interferes with successful teaching and discipline. Not unfrequently the sites were ill-chosen; the drainage is often imperfect; the lighting is occasionally so deficient or so ill-contrived as to be productive of constant discomfort, and injurious both to sight and to healthy bodily development; the ventilation is sometimes utterly inadequate, sometimes effected in the crudest ways; lavatories and cloak rooms are too often conspicuous by their absence; the offices are sometimes injudiciously placed, insufficient in number, and imperfectly separated; and play-grounds are not always proportioned to the size of the school. This is not a mere matter of State requirement, but of health, comfort, efficiency, and, in a large sense, of morality also."

There is hardly a teacher present who cannot endorse every word of the above description taken from the School Guardian. As teachers we thank the Vice-President of the Council for the issue of Circular 321. At the same time we trust he will—in seeing that the reforms needed are carried out—prevent the already underpaid teacher being compelled to suffer a reduction of salary so that these glaring defects may be remedied. Ample return in improved health of scholars and teachers, and increased educational efficiency will compensate the managers for the absolutely necessary outlay which the answers to these circulars will involve.

The "Mistrust" manifested in carrying on our educational affairs still continues, though happily there are signs of its passing away. The standards have not been abolished; the annual school parade still almost universally takes place; the stop-watch critic has not been removed; nor does his total removal as yet seem very imminent. True, one gap in the inspectorial ranks has been suitably filled, and for this small mercy we are thankful; but the step which will open the avenue to the highest position in educational affairs for the teachers in our primary schools has not yet been taken, and, as I shall presently show, it seems as if a further barrier were to be raised—impregnable—impassable—which will doom them for ever to be "hewers of wood and drawers of water" among the educators of the country.

Of the "Mismanagement of Education," I can only say that "As you were" describes the condition of affairs to-day. The various kinds of unsuitable managers, both Board and Voluntary, still hold on the even tenour of their way; some local authorities during the year have been able to secure the Second Standard as the standard of exemption for half-time; many covert and more than one flagrant act of injustice have been perpetrated upon members of our body during the year, and the Union has been compelled to resort to measures which we would have preferred rejecting had it been possible to avoid them.

Notwithstanding these glaring deficiencies the outlook for the future is more hopeful than at any former period. The exposure of abuses in the educational journals, and notably in the organ of the Union, must lead to remedial action being taken, while the persistent and consistent agitation carried on by the Union will lead to the passing of reforms which will eventually leave little to be desired.

I cannot refrain from expressing my opinion—an opinion which I am sure you share—that a great blow has been struck at the progress of education in this country by the action of the Chancellor of the Exchequer respecting the introduction of a decimal system of weights and measures. I need not point out to you, but it is well that the public should be again and again told that at least two years of useless drudgery on the part of the teacher, and of weariness and misery and often pain on the part of the scholar, would be saved if we could exchange the antiquated, absurd tables of weights, measures, and money for a simple decimal system. The arithmetic which now occupies three years in teaching could all be done in one at much less cost of time and trouble. We must continue to protest against the absurdity of being compelled to teach the blessings of a system which the Government of the country have thus deliberately and definitely refused to adopt. Could the National Union only secure the introduction of the metric system and a reform in orthography we should confer a boon upon English children for which unnumbered future ages would cordially bless us.

Work for this Conference.

Several educational problems of importance to the nation as well as to our profession are ripening for solution. Some of these will be brought before you in the papers which are to be read before Conference. I do not, therefore think it necessary to anticipate, except by a few words what the writers will say.

The question of Superannuation during the year has made a decided advance. The Select Committee on the subject, which sat during two sessions of Parliament, not only reported in favour of the immediate establishment of a State-aided Scheme of Superannuation, but the House of Commons, without a division and without a dissentient voice, adopted a resolution to the same effect. I venture to hope that before I vacate the office of President of the National Union of Teachers, a means of honourable retirement for teachers may be actually proposed for the acceptance of Parliament. Although the recommendations of the Select Committee are not by any means as generous as we could wish, or as the necessities of the case demand, yet the matter which has occupied so much of our attention for the last twenty years is nearer its accomplishment than at any previous period, and a just and generous English public will, I feel confident, enlarge the scheme when presented to them.

I trust that you will unanimously accept the practicable resolutions respecting Child Labour which will be placed before you. A slight step in the emancipation of English slave children was taken on the 1st January of this year.

That the step was not a larger one does not redound to the credit of the British nation, but persevering parliamentary action, and agitation in the country and among the masses will have their reward, and we shall yet see childhood unshorn of the delights which ought to belong to that period of existence.

The question of Assistant Teachers is one demanding your serious consideration. The conditions of service have changed so materially during the last twenty years that the matter will not right itself in the ordinary course of things. The resolutions on the agenda respecting assistants not only express the real opinions of most of the Executive, but contain at least a partial remedy for the evils which surround a question which has received and will continue to receive due attention at their hands.

A Vindication of the Certificated Teacher.

Having thus briefly indulged in a retrospect of the past, I purpose inviting your attention to the topic I have chosen for my address as a subject of supreme importance to education at the present moment.

The last decade of the nineteenth century will be an epoch-marking period in the history of education in this country. Notwithstanding the strictures which we must pass upon the defects in our school system, there is not the slightest doubt that so far as rival systems are concerned, impartial critics now tell us that we have gone ahead, and that, given certain improvements, we are a long way on the road to perfection. Badness of principle, incorrect methods of sustenance, inadequate buildings, insufficient means of maintenance, paucity of teaching staff, are all gradually disappearing, and the constant and continuous action towards the main aim of the Union, "the good of education," has in the past and will in the future bear much fruit. We hear less and less each day of the inferiority of our schools compared with Continental schools, and the latest of American writers on education confesses that for thoroughness, accuracy, neatness and steady plodding work English schools are better than American ones. If a similar comparison were made with European schools the verdict would be the same. It has been the fashion to depreciate the work of the teachers in the primary schools of this country. This practice has had its effect, and many have taken it for granted that everything said was gospel, and our work and position have suffered accordingly. During the past few years however, criticism has almost ceased, and impartial observers will say, and say with truth—that English primary schools are, as a whole, second to none in the world. If I am asked what has brought about this change, I unhesitatingly reply, the character of the class of teachers employed in the schools. More especially I refer to the course of preparation through which a man passes which gives him a claim to be called a trained teacher.

I use this term in its broadest sense, and not necessarily in the restricted way in which it is often understood. For the teacher himself, no preparation could be better than the routine through which most of us have gone. Self-reliance, ingenuity, fertility of resource, self-control, habits of constant application, skill in managing children, are among the benefits we have derived from bearing the yoke in our youth. The best of teachers are made by passing through the various grades of pupil teacher, training college student, assistant and head.

I do not wish it to be understood that I speak of our Training Colleges as perfect institutions, that the management of at least some of them leaves nothing to be desired, or that their curricula could not with advantage be so arranged as to give broader and more liberal views of life and duty; on the contrary, I feel persuaded that if they wish to hold their own they must be less exclusive, they must make many improvements, and must more readily adapt themselves to changing circumstances; but I do think, at the same time, that they are not altogether deserving of the contumely which has been heaped upon them, and I, for one, willingly and gratefully acknowledge my indebtedness many years ago to one of them for having brought me into intimate contact with men of considerable culture, great teaching ability, and the highest moral and religious influence.

I would remind you of one or two of the objects of the Union which have been constantly before us for the past twenty years. One is, "To improve the general education of the country by seeking to raise the qualifications and status of public school teachers." And another, "to raise teaching to the dignity of a profession by means of a public register of duly-qualified teachers for every class of schools, by the appointment of a representative Educational Council and the creation of a Ministry of Science and Education."

These objects have been constantly kept in mind. The enlargement of the curriculum in our day schools has always been advocated by us; nay it would never have shrunk to the miserable dimensions of the Revised Code of 1862 and following years if the teachers had been consulted; and where suitable means of instruction have existed, the introduction of any new subject has never been opposed. The better training of pupil teachers, and the extension of the requirements for the Queen's Scholarship Examination and for students in training colleges have met with our strongest support. This extension, we trust, is not by any means complete, but the results are still so good that Mr. Oakeley in his last report on training colleges, says:—"To pass in our first division at the end of the second year is nearly as difficult as to graduate. In some subjects, such as mathematics and physical geography, it is more difficult, and our third year's examination is at least as hard as the examination for an ordinary degree."

Notwithstanding this, those who look down upon us as simply certificated teachers are all too numerous, and a determined attempt is again being made not to recognise either the qualifications or the position of certificated teachers, lacking as most of us do the "hall mark" which is alone recognised as a mark of efficiency, for "a university degree is a public stamp of efficiency . . . and it always must have in every country a distinct and marketable value." But in addition to this common groundwork of knowledge, Mr. Oakeley goes on to say, students must all "spend an adequate time under strict supervision in the practising schools, take part in weekly criticism lessons, receive courses of lectures on school organisation and management, psychology in its application to the art of teaching, school hygiene, and on some prescribed book by an eminent writer on education." Even this does not comprise the whole of the preparation a teacher in our primary schools undergoes for his work, for most students take one or two languages in addition to English, and one or two sciences. But the student in the training college and the primary teacher in the school more than hold their own even in University examinations, despite the special studies and the arduous toil in which they are engaged. From the Training College Report of 1891 we learn that "Fifty-nine Battersea men passed University examinations last year, fifteen being resident students. At Borough-road six senior students matriculated at London University, and seven of the juniors passed in the first class. The list would be materially increased if students who had recently left the college were added. At Westminster eleven students passed well in the London Matriculation Examination, and four others did remarkably well in more advanced examinations of the same University. At St. Mark's three students in residence passed the Intermediate and eighteen the Matriculation Examination of London University of 1891; all but one of the latter were placed in the honours list or the first division." That all our teachers would just as easily pass University Examinations if working under the same conditions as University students is easily seen from the reports of the principals of those colleges of University rank to which day training departments are attached.

Principal Garnett, of the Durham College of Science, Newcastle, says, "Our day students appear to me to be in every respect a great gain to the college. They form a steady contingent of hard and regular workers, and they are now making their influence felt in the college clubs and societies. I should be very sorry to be without them." This is said of men who did not occupy even an average place on the scholarship list, but all of whom took University examinations before their college course ended.

At Cambridge three entered as non-collegiates in October, 1891, and the Director says: "They are very good, industrious fellows, and passed in their first term the mathematical part of the previous examination. They will go in for the classical in June."

From the University College in Liverpool we hear: "The Class List issued this week by University College shows that in comparison with other students, our men (the Day Training Department men) have done well. Two of them were top in Latin in their respective groups, and the majority obtained a first in Mathematics."

Yet these are only specimens, and not by any means even the best specimens of the men who are passing into the work of elementary education. Judged by the list of public school successes, our pupil teachers are doing better in those University examinations which are open to them than any of the public schools of the country.

Is it not time that the "public stamp of efficiency" should be placed upon all the students who leave our colleges, and on all who pass similar examinations? The sooner our training colleges are in some way either affiliated to the Universities, or able to hall-mark their students, the sooner will justice be done to them, and their proper position as educators of youth be assigned to them.

A few years ago we eliminated the word "elementary" from the title of our organisation, and rightly so, for although most of us were engaged in elementary schools, these schools by no means embraced the whole of the teaching done by us. There are no exact data procurable, but from a careful examination of the calendar of the Science and Art Department, I conclude that nearly four-fifths of the Science teaching in the country is in the hands of so-called elementary teachers; nearly all the organised Science schools in the country are taught by teachers who have gained their experience in primary schools, and of the certificates issued every year a large proportion are granted to teachers in the same kind of schools. Last year no less than 8,743 certificates were thus gained by Training College students alone, as well as upwards of 1,200 passes made in one or more foreign languages.

I have quoted thus at length particulars respecting the qualifications and work of the teachers in our primary schools because of the practical bearing it has on a matter which I consider of vital importance to the welfare of teachers and of our Union. I refer to the matter of Registration of Teachers, which is the first step to be taken in the unification of our educational system. Since our last Conference a Select Committee of the House of Commons has heard evidence and reported on the question. The report is not so precise and definite respecting our position as could be wished. In the present session of Parliament a Bill, promoted by a section of teachers who have, in my opinion, not by any means as good a title to be called teachers as ourselves, has again been introduced into the House of Commons. From registration under its provisions we are again excluded, and if allowed to become law it will be one of the greatest barriers to the unification of our educational system that could possibly be raised. This is a matter which concerns especially the younger members of our Union. They rightly complain of the inadequacy of the payment they now receive for their work, but if once the line is drawn between so-called primary and secondary teachers, all hope of a free passage to work in secondary schools or of promotion to the headship of a school where somewhat extended education is carried on, may be at once abandoned, for the primary school teachers will become known as a distinct, inferior, unregistered class, and will at once have to take the lowest place among the educators of the country. Let me commend to you the words of Mr. Acland when receiving the deputation of the Society for the Utilisation of the Welsh Language:—"I am glad you have the support of the National Union of Teachers, for I can assure you without that support any proposed alteration has very little chance indeed of being made." Think of your power, make up your minds that this is a serious question, vitally affecting your interests; push it with the same persistency as other questions in the past, and no Registration Bill will ever pass which does not include the trained teachers among the number.

Secondary Education.

I have said that the present decade will, like 1870, be an epoch-marking period in the history of education. The introduction of the Secondary Education Bill last year, and its re-introduction with slight modifications this year, may be the means of adding another to the list of authorities which have control of the education of the country, and of adding still further difficulties to the task of those who are aiming at the unification of our educational system. I make no apology, therefore, for bringing the subject before you to-day. It is one in which we are all interested to a greater or less degree. Changes have been made in the past which have proved detrimental to educational progress, because those who knew most about the subject were never consulted, and thirty years have been spent in undoing what ought never to have been done. This must never be the case again.

It seems to me that the great difficulty under which we labour is the amount of piecemeal legislation which takes place, so that the whole system of education is a thing of shreds and patches. Tinkering here, mending there, altering in another place is the order of the day. Some little evil exists, and forthwith an ardent reformer brings in his little Bill to relieve it, and creates others quite as bad in its stead.

PRESENT CHAOTIC CONDITION.

Where in the world will you find such a chaotic condition of education or such a large number of authorities controlling it as in England? From the bottom to the top it is one mass of anomalies and contradictions. We have Certified Industrial schools, Workhouse schools, and Reformatory schools working under and controlled by the Local Government Board and the Home Office. Elementary schools are under the Education Department, which is itself only a committee of another Council. These schools are some under the control of popularly elected bodies yet elected under a system entirely inconsistent with the spirit of the times, some under self-elected bodies, while others are governed by one man. Yet even these schools cannot be entirely placed under one central authority, for another department, which is a department of a department, steps in and has to examine a part of their work. Then we have science and art schools and classes, under the Science and Art Department, deriving their support partly from Imperial, partly from local, and partly from voluntary aid, some acting under self-constituted and others under properly elected committees. Technical schools are under the control of municipal or county councils. Secondary schools are under the Charity Commissioners, limited liability companies, and private adventurers. The great public schools have their own governing bodies. Universities are a law to themselves, although many of them are deriving aid from Imperial taxation.

The result of all this is an unwise overlapping of interests, a large waste of educational power, and a tremendous loss of private and public money. Is there no means of bringing about such a union of all these varied interests that all this shall be prevented? Is there no statesman bold enough to propose, and strong enough to carry through, a measure for the unification of our educational system? In my opinion the necessity for the creation and organisation of a secondary system of education affords the opportunity desired, and if allowed to slip, or if an improper course be taken, and more tinkering is effected by the addition of another brand new authority, it may be generations before the state of chaos is brought to an end.

SECONDARY EDUCATION FROM A PRIMARY TEACHER'S POINT OF VIEW.

Bearing always in mind the principles upon which our Union has hitherto been conducted—education first, and the educator afterwards—I propose to look at this question from our point of view, a view which I venture to believe will commend itself to the judgment and consideration of an enlightened public. Without egotism, I may claim that we are the educators of the children of the people, at present five-sixths of them being under our care. The aspirations of the people for higher and better things have been largely implanted and fostered by us. It has been unfortunate that in times past we have been kept from doing what we considered best for education by the system under which we have laboured for the past thirty years, but if that system has done nothing else, it has enabled us to lay deep a solid foundation of accurate primary knowledge upon which to build a noble structure of real and lasting worth. The demand of the present day for a higher education is not so much the demand of the class outside our elementary schools, but of the class which has used these schools, and has learned to appreciate the worth of education, and it is chiefly in their interests that our business with Secondary Education has to do.

Let us for a moment examine what is meant by Secondary Education, and the part which we have to play in it. The Elementary Education Act demands that every child of school age shall attend an elementary school unless his parents can show that he is being educated in some other manner. Local authorities are compelled to provide accommodation for one-sixth of the population—in many districts for one-fifth. There are believed to be outside the elementary schools of the country one-sixth of the children. Secondary Education is by many supposed to refer to the education of this section of the people. But we cannot think of using the term in this narrow sense. It will serve our purpose to take the definition contained in the 29th Clause of the Bill now before Parliament:—

“Secondary Education” means a course of education which does not consist principally of elementary instruction in reading, writing, and arithmetic, but which consists principally of instruction in the higher branches of knowledge, including one or more of the following subjects:—Latin, Greek, the English, and other modern languages and literature, mathematics, physical, natural and applied science, history, geography, and technical or manual instruction, as defined in the Technical Instruction Act, 1889.”

Who shall dare to say that education as thus described is solely the privilege of any one class of people in this country? For good or ill, the State has taken charge of education more or less in this country, and it is entitled to the benefit of the best that can be produced in any and every grade of society. The other day I read of a considerable number of titled individuals of France and England being employed in the streets of Paris, London, and New York as cabmen, omnibus-drivers, and organ-grinders. Is it not just possible that these have gravitated to their proper level in the world, just as certainly as that the honourable member for Morpeth, a graduate of the pits of Northumberland, is occupying his proper place as Secretary to the Board of Trade?

I shall not trouble you with a detailed statement of the existing provision for secondary education in this country. As it existed twenty-five years ago may be found described in the voluminous reports of the Schools Inquiry Commission, which may be seen in full in many public libraries, but which for all practical purposes are summarised clearly and faithfully in Mr. Acland's “Studies in Secondary Education.” With some of its conclusions you may not possibly agree. I am quite sure that Liverpool will think itself hardly treated, but I commend this volume to your notice as containing a large number of educational principles, which it is to be hoped that the present Vice-President of the Committee of Council may have a sufficiently long lease of office to put into practice. To the provision then existing additions have been made.

But it is still true that this portion of the population have been very largely left to shift for themselves in the matter of education. There are numbers of endowed and grammar schools throughout the country, some of which, under the Charity Commissioners, have been reformed and brought more into accord with modern requirements; but they are unequally distributed, their aims are not modern, their quality is very often poor, the quantity is insufficient, and, above all, they neither supply the needs of the class outside the users of elementary schools, nor the new requirements of those who have passed through those schools. Consequently the education of the middle-class has fallen into the hands of what I may call in no offensive manner private adventurers. Where there was a possibility of making a dividend, limited liability companies have in many cases started schools; private individuals, without pretence to qualifications in many cases, have opened select academies, and have received the parents' money, giving no adequate return. The class of persons seeking employment in even the best of these schools through the College of Preceptors' agency may be gathered from the fact that more than half of those applying in the year 1890 were possessed of no tested educational qualifications whatever, let alone the most important of all—the ability to teach. Of course it would be absurd to say that this is a description of the whole class of persons teaching in private schools. Many of them have the highest qualifications, are doing the State excellent service, and any future legislation must take cognizance of the work they are doing and their claims to consideration.

It is beside the mark in the present state of society to tell the man of the middle class in self-defence to make use of the public elementary schools. There are some reasons why he cannot, and others why he will not do so. The time may come when social prejudice and the present conditions and habits of people will so far disappear as to permit of an ideal system of schools. In this, of course, we should see children of the same educational status receiving their instruction under properly qualified teachers in the ordinary elementary school, and passed on step by step through the various stages irrespective of their social status to such a height as their abilities or ambition prompted. The present tendency is for each social grade to strive for a system of its own, zealously excluding those of a lower grade from participation in any of its benefits. And it is because I fear that this may be intensified by the proposals respecting secondary education that I draw your attention to it. Any organisation which does not recognise the oneness of education, which treats primary education as a thing entirely apart, which would call into existence an authority with circumscribed powers extending only to the bounds of one class of the people, must be condemned as hostile to the best interests of the mass of the people of this country.

"What those who have at heart the welfare of the masses want to see is the way of the poorer child, who has ability, made clear and free from the bottom to the top. We want, in short, to cull talent from whatever source we can get it for the benefit of the country, not merely from the rich as in former times, but from the poorer classes as well." These wise words of the present Secretary of the Education Department will be echoed by every lover of his kind, and especially by you whom I am addressing.

How to Supply Secondary Schools.

If there is at present a lack of means to carry out this purpose—if the parent above the working classes is unable to use the public elementary schools, and other provision is not already made, how is the end desired to be attained? As an elementary principle of right and justice that which is done by the State for one set of people should be done for all if they desire it. If it is incumbent on the local authority to provide school accommodation for five-sixths of the children of the country, it is equally incumbent on them to provide for the rest. No taxpayer feels the burden of taxation so much as the middle class man. He contributes more than his share towards both local and imperial funds, and in this matter I do not see why he should not be provided with buildings and receive aid in educating his children, at least, to the same extent as the poor man, out of the common fund.

The buildings being provided, where shall the Higher Education begin? For a full and practical answer to this question, I commend to your notice the address of Dr. Forsyth, a member of our Union, at the meeting of Higher Grade Teachers, in Manchester, on the 5th of January last, and published by the association in pamphlet form. You will agree that it is a fundamental principle that the basis of higher education must be laid in the elementary school. For nine-tenths of our scholars the elementary school is the only provision necessary for their education during the day. For the other tenth the curriculum should be clear and well-defined, so that there should be no breach of continuity in their education, and they would drop naturally into their places when they passed into the secondary school. Owing to the character of the syllabus of the older secondary schools, no system of scholarships to the present secondary schools would properly meet the needs of the vast masses of the people. Education should be looked at both as a mental training, and as a means to practical usefulness. The future of England will depend very largely upon the maintenance of her industrial supremacy, and that supremacy will be best maintained by the constant application of our methods of education to those branches of education which are of an industrial character. However good the mental training derived from the study of ancient languages, many of those who have distinguished themselves in the classics believe that the same mental discipline would be derived from the study of modern languages, and of such physical sciences as have their application in our every day industries. Hence the unsuitability of such schools as grammar schools with a curriculum based on constant instruction in the classics, while those schools which have tried to combine the two have, in the estimation of persons capable of judging, hitherto proved a failure. There will still be a place for these grammar schools and a foremost place too in our scheme of education, but the majority of the secondary schools of the future must be of a modern type, and must answer the expectations and fulfil the needs of the common people. No scheme of scholarships from elementary schools to endowed schools or grammar schools of the ordinary type will suffice to provide either the amount or the kind of higher education required, but the secondary school must grow organically out of the elementary schools, and have its curriculum based on the foundation laid by us in the primary schools, and must be so comprehensive in its character that it will lead to the universities, if necessary, on the one hand, or to proper technical schools or colleges on the other.

SECONDARY EDUCATION IN RURAL DISTRICTS.

I have said that the proposals for secondary education will materially affect the welfare of every elementary teacher, not only in the towns but in every village and hamlet in the country. Hence the necessity for bringing this matter prominently before the Conference, in which many thousands of country teachers are represented, and for its discussion in every association in the National Union.

In round numbers there are 14,000 civil parishes in England and Wales, and of these there are 10,000 in which there is only one kind of elementary school, and few, if any, schools where any kind of higher education can be obtained. There are nearly 6,000 schools in the country, and chiefly in the above parishes, which have less than 60 children in average attendance, and nearly as many more which have less than 120 in average attendance. It is obvious that in these places there is no room for a secondary school, and the organisation of even a class for secondary instruction is impossible; certainly so with the present means of sustenance of elementary schools. But although the relative proportion of population in urban and rural districts is changing, there is still a population of 8,198,000 in other than urban districts. Has this population to be deprived of the benefits of higher education? If so, the depletion of the villages will continue and the desire of all economists to retain the people on, or bring them back to, the land will be frustrated. The congestion of our great towns will increase, and the poverty and wretchedness incident upon this will also be immeasurably augmented. In these places then the public will have to look to the teacher of the elementary school to impart the secondary instruction. Any new scheme of secondary education must take cognizance of the needs of country places, and rural teachers will do well to be not of secondary education or of primary education merely, but of education generally.

UNSATISFACTORY ORGANISATION AT PRESENT.

The present condition of affairs is eminently unsatisfactory, and the prospects for the immediate future do not seem to me to be any more promising. On the one hand we are threatened with secondary education being placed in the hands of an authority selected for entirely different work and overburdened with other duties, and on the other with the fate of education and the educators of many millions of people being handed over to persons utterly incompetent to deal with a subject affecting the interests of a nation.

I have already said that there are 10,000 parishes where there is but one kind of school. In these places it is the rule that the school is under the control of one man. This one-man management we have had repeatedly to complain of. Teachers have been forced to perform duties beyond and outside their work as day school teachers. We are advocates of liberty. If a man voluntarily chooses to perform such duties it is not for us to say him nay. Speaking of my own personal experience it was a pleasure to me, and I dare say a benefit to the parish I lived in years ago, to expend some of my energy on work beyond the walls of the schoolroom. But our difficulty is with the manager who does not accept extra work as a favour, but exacts as a right—ay! and that often when the mental desire and physical ability for rendering such are gone—those services which teachers are able to give. But we are possibly face to face with a worse evil than the one-man manager. I have seen it somewhere stated that one advantage of the parochial religious system was that it placed an educated person in every parish. I have no hesitation in saying that if the choice were given me, I would infinitely prefer the tyranny of the parson to that of the persons who form the Boards whose dealings are related from time to time in the organ of our Union. And it is possible that these small Boards may be extended by the passing of a Bill for Parish Councils; for although the Bill introduced by the Government does not place the control of the village teachers and schools in the hands of the proposed councils, I should not be surprised if some meddling busybody, or some enthusiastic, but indiscreet supporter of universal School Boards, proposes an amendment to that effect. If such be the case then the teachers who are placed under them will be objects of commiseration indeed. Which of us would not prefer to be dismissed from our position as teachers because we would not play the organ in the church or attend the Sunday-school, rather than because we refused to marry or not to marry a petty school board or parish council member's daughter, to trade or not to trade at a certain shop—or because we would not clean the schoolroom or whitewash the offices connected with it at the command of such a board.

As a Union we know no politics, but we do know what is good for education, and we declare again our conviction that education ought to be in the hands of bodies, intelligent, active, educated, acting over sufficiently wide areas to prevent local jealousies from creeping in and injustice to teachers being done. It often happens that the teacher suffers because of the incidence of taxation. A rise or fall of salary to the extent of £5 may mean a difference of a penny in the pound. Hence the impecuniosity of many of the Boards, and the miserable actions they perform.

It is not, however, so much in the day schools as in the evening schools of country places that secondary education can be given. Many children who are forced by the exigencies of life to leave school at an early age, may be induced at present—we hope will be required in future—to attend evening schools. I am speaking before the issue of the Evening School Code for the year, but if, when it is issued, we find that Payment on Results of examination is abolished, that complete freedom of classification is given to teachers, that inspection is substituted for examination, that liberal grants are made for the usual subjects of instruction, then it will need but the aid of the authority having control of the local taxation money to supplement these payments by grants for manual instruction, and we shall have the continuation schools so long needed, to complete the work begun in our rural day schools.

It would be utterly impossible for either small School Boards, or for the managers of Voluntary schools, to forward the interests of secondary education in these places unaided, but with a great central body with funds at command as good work might be done as is now done in the counties of Banff, Aberdeen, and Elgin by means of the Dick Bequest.

The counties of England are unequal in area and still more unequal in population. But the Reform Bill of 1885 divided the counties into Parliamentary divisions, with as nearly as practicable the same population and largely engaged in the same pursuits. If on examination it were found that these districts were either too small or too large to be properly worked, then amalgamation or division might take place, as might be found necessary.

The strongest advocate of the new departure in education cannot say that the County Councils, even in the county boroughs, have been as a rule successful in the work given to them respecting education.

The amount of money placed at their disposal in 1890 was £734,000. This was £200,000 more annually than was being granted by the Science and Art Department after twenty years of existence. I cannot but think that it was a great pity that this large sum was pitchforked into the hands of bodies utterly unprepared to use it. True, two reports had urged the necessity of the introduction of technical education, but no Commission would have dreamt of giving three-quarters of a million of money out of the National exchequer without some definite plan of expenditure formed beforehand. The natural result has followed, and all sorts of plans for getting rid of the money have been adopted.

Some councils have paid their debts, some have reduced their rates, some have started schemes only to abandon them, and in a very large number of cases it cannot be denied that so far as any permanent benefit to technical education is concerned we are where we were, and the money might as well never have been given. In boroughs more especially has there been a conflict of interests. In more than one instance the Borough Council has started schemes for instruction in subjects which were already being well and thoroughly taught under the School Board in its evening schools and science and art classes, with the result that none of them are as successful as they now ought to be. In others, although some attempt at technical education has been made, no representative of a School Board has been thought necessary on the Technical Education Committee, although it is largely composed of outsiders. No greater misapprehension of the meaning of technical education so far as relates to a great industrial centre could have been formed, nor so needless an expenditure of public money have been made as at Manchester, where I understand the Technical Education Committee of the Corporation has actually agreed to expend a large sum of money for the purpose of teaching the mere elements of commercial subjects, for which ample provision is already made by the School Board and other institutions of the city. These are only some of the evils resulting from divided authority; among others the overlapping of interests, and a great waste of educational power and of public money. Where there has been any attempt to utilise the Customs and Excise money for education that has already been the case: Technical Education Committees doing the work already being done by School Boards; the Science and Art Department altering its method of payment in the expectation of any deficiency being made up by the County Councils, and the County Councils refusing to make grants for the purpose. Is it too late to alter the destination of this vast sum of money?

I am credibly informed that it is impossible that the Secondary Education Bill before Parliament can be passed this session, owing to the amount of opposition with which it will be met. There will be time to consider the whole question thoroughly; and I venture to place before you my views respecting the re-organisation of the educational forces of the country, which will place us on a rational basis. It will be perfectly understood that I do not commit the National Union of Teachers to the acceptance of such a scheme as I foreshadow. I place it before you in the hope that it will lead to a serious discussion of the whole matter in every association in the country, and, while it may be considered by many an ideal to be aimed at rather than a practical solution of the present problem, yet I trust that many will have such faith in it as to say, in the words used at the last Liverpool Conference in reference to another important subject, "We look upon this not as a scheme proposed, but as a deed accomplished."

Scheme for Educational Unity.

1. Education should be considered as a national concern, and should be placed under the charge of a responsible Minister, called the Minister of Science and Education, who should have control over every branch of education in the country; all the powers of inspection, control, and sustenance now exercised by the Education Department, by the Science and Art Department, and by the Charity Commissioners (so far as relates to education) being centred in him. The Minister of Education should be assisted by a representative Educational Council for the purpose of the registration and certification of teachers and schools, as suggested in Mr. Acland's Teachers' Registration Bill of 1892.

2. District Boards of Education should be established in counties or Parliamentary divisions of counties and in county boroughs; such Boards to be elected solely for the purposes of education, and to consist of representatives of the ratepayers, of the various classes of schools, and of the teachers of the district. These Boards should have invested in them the powers now vested in School Boards, and should have the power to call upon the County Council or County Borough for the rates now leviable on the precepts of School Boards, for those which may be levied under the Technical Education Acts, and the amounts receivable under the Local Taxation (Customs and Excise) Act of 1890; to these District Boards should be paid the money now disbursed by the Science and Art Department to science schools and classes, and to elementary schools by the Education Department. They should have control over the whole educational machinery of the district, and should maintain schools of every kind and act under the supervision of the Education Department. They should have power to delegate such parts of their duties as they might see fit to local bodies, whose acts should be supervised and controlled by the District Boards.

PRACTICABILITY OF SUCH A SCHEME.

In a few words I would now point out to you how such a scheme is practicable, and the advantages to be derived from it. I may at once pass over the appointment of a Minister of Education and a Representative Educational Council, for the advantages of these appointments are obvious. With regard to the District Boards many may be said now to be in existence.

Notwithstanding many defects which those of us who are not under School Boards see perhaps with a keener vision than those who are under them, I can think of no better bodies to whom to entrust the work of superintending education in the 62 urban districts, with more than 50,000 inhabitants, than the present School Boards enlarged as I have suggested. Knowing the wants and capabilities of the vast mass of the population, they would be able to provide such a secondary education as would best suit their locality. They would exercise only a general supervision over endowed and grammar schools, which would still have their governing bodies with an accredited representative on the Board of Education, but would be able to supplement such institutions by others if those in existence did not fulfil the functions they were expected to perform, or were inadequate in number, or exorbitant in their charges. It is well ascertained what is required to maintain a thoroughly satisfactory higher grade school. They would be able to modify the rigid syllabus of the Science and Art Department now applicable to organised science schools, and with the amount of that grant at their disposal, it being an essential part of the scheme that the payment of grants from that Department should not be dependent on results, a more satisfactory and useful course could be adopted. Revising the estimates of income and expenditure by the respective school committees in their district, they would have a general control over the whole of the schools in their district, and an absolute control over those provided by public money, and the managers of those schools would become local committees of the Board, and their wants be supplied accordingly. Every school in the country would thus virtually come under the Board of Education, the number and powers of the managers being clearly defined in a schedule to be appended to the new Education Act.

In the Parliamentary divisions or counties, as the case may be, new legislation would be required. Members of the County Councils elected for such a variety of reasons cannot be considered the most suitable persons to whom to entrust education any more than members of town councils. A District Board would require to be elected therefore, and a proportionate representation would be granted to the various educational bodies and the teachers, provided always that the elected representatives be in a majority on the Board.

ADVANTAGES OF SUCH A SCHEME.

The following are some of the advantages briefly stated which a County District Board would secure. Small School Boards would be disestablished and become only school committees, still, however, to be elected by the rate-payers to control schools erected by public money. Every school would require to conform to the general regulations laid down for the conduct of schools. One-man management would be done away with. Greater security of tenure would be given to the teacher, whose appointment and removal would be in the hands of the District Board. Schools would be helped according to their several necessities. Help towards secondary education could be given to rural schools out of the Local Taxation (Customs and Excise) money, as is proposed to be given in Scotch schools at the present time, or at the discretion of the Board to the amount granted by the Dick bequest to the north-eastern counties of Scotland; having control over every class of school, children showing exceptional ability would be passed on from school to school without the necessity of scholarships, each District Board by statute being allowed to assist not only with free schooling but with other help in cases commending themselves to their judgment; out of the rates central schools for secondary education could be established in the most suitable districts, in many respects similar to the burgh schools of Scotland, and where necessary schools, which are called first grade schools by the Schools Inquiry Commission, would also be built. Technical schools in the larger towns, agricultural schools in the country, and agricultural and manual instruction schools combined for the semi-agricultural parishes would be established. The vexed question of the Training of Teachers would be done away with, for knowing the value of training from their acquaintance with the work of trained teachers in primary schools, the Boards would be more likely to insist upon a thorough acquaintance with the theory and practice of education by those who sought employment under them. Elected for the purposes of education solely, and composed of persons who had an intimate knowledge of the character of the education given in the lower schools, secondary education, technical education, agricultural education, in fact education generally, would become a perfection under such Boards.

Conclusion.

I have thus briefly sketched what I believe to be a practicable method of solving the difficulties in the path of educational unity. I am well aware of the bitterness of the strife that still exists in some places and among some people respecting the management of schools. But the strife is not among the teachers. We know no sect, we know no party. It is our business as a National Union of Teachers to do all we can for Education, and to speak freely and fully that which we believe will be the best for the welfare of the children of England, and for the State as a whole. We must look at this question too as it affects ourselves. There is no use our inscribing on the forefront of our Organisation the intention of "opening out a career to the best qualified members of the profession" if we are to sit idly by, or remain indifferent while we are excluded from a register of teachers, and a line of demarcation is drawn between one class of schools and another, and therefore between one class of teachers and another, beyond which we are not allowed to pass. All mundane things are imperfect in one way or another. So long as human nature is what it is so long will imperfections creep into every organisation which we make. What we have to do is to make our suggestions as practicable and our plans as perfect as possible, using the best machinery at our command, and causing as little friction and inconvenience as we can, sacrificing however no principle which has in it truth and justice. There are other difficulties to be overcome in carrying out this great educational reform which, however much I wish, time will not allow me to dwell upon, but I do not believe any of them are insuperable except to those who object to the education of the people at all—and, I regret to say, there are many such still.

I do not to-day hold a brief for any kind of school, whether Secondary, Higher Grade, Board, or Voluntary. In this matter I belong neither to Church nor Dissent, to Tory nor Radical, but am simply an educationist anxious for the welfare of my country, the prosperity of her people, the success of her commerce, and the superiority of her manufactures. It is because I believe that the future welfare of our highly-favoured land, the social improvement and well-being of her people, and the diminution of crime and wretchedness are bound up in a thorough, intellectual, moral, and practical education, that I have deemed it fit to offer an opinion on these grave matters, and to protest against any further tinkering at the subject of Education.

The work in which we are daily engaged is apt to have a narrowing, cramping influence upon our character. Always commanding, always expecting implicit obedience, dealing with minds which are of inferior development to his own, a teacher is apt to become self-opinionated, and to attach undue importance to his own position, and to place an undue value upon his own abilities. It may be that I shall be charged with this offence for what I have said of the certificated teacher of to-day. Were I speaking only for myself I might plead guilty to the impeachment, but I have spoken of my brethren as a class whose merits I know, and whose character and ability are beyond reproach or doubt. I am further strengthened in the opinions I have expressed by the fact that there is hardly any teacher of eminence whose opinions do not accord with those herein expressed respecting the necessity for registration and unity. I need mention but two. Dr. Welldon, of Harrow, feels strongly the need of "unifying the educational profession from the most dignified of academical professors to the humblest and most hardily worked of School Board mistresses." Professor Young, of Glasgow, engaged in vastly different pursuits from our own, and whom we welcome among us for the first time to-day, made registration and unity in education strong points in his inaugural address to the Educational Institute of Scotland at the Paisley Congress at the beginning of this year.

Whether politicians accept the recommendations which we make respecting the organisation of Education in the country or not, they cannot deprive our profession of the dignity and nobility which attach to it. "We, the teachers of to-day," says Dr. Welldon, and with a hearty concurrence in the opinion, I would conclude, "we may make a hundred mistakes, we may fail again and again in temper and prudence, we may do evil in seeking to do good, but at least there is this blessing in our profession, that its aim is intrinsically noble. We do not care to win a great reputation. We are not ambitious of profit and reward, but we are trying to build up the moral character of the men and women who will make England the next generation."

As co-workers in this noble endeavour, I welcome you here to-day. I congratulate you on the magnificent addition to our numbers during the past year, making our Union the largest professional Union in the country. In your name I claim from the public a respectful attention to your decisions, and a serious consideration of the matters which you believe to be of importance.

THE TWENTY-THIRD ANNUAL REPORT OF THE EXECUTIVE TO CONFERENCE.

In presenting to Conference their Twenty-third Annual Report the Executive desire to congratulate members of Conference and the members of the Union generally upon the remarkable progress made during the past year. Not only has there been an increase of membership unequalled during any other year, but the public activity and influence of the Union have made a corresponding advance. In their last Report the Executive had to express regret that the year 1891 had been one of disaster so far as some of the principal workers in the Union were concerned. Death and infirmity had been busy among the officers and other leaders, and the year which the Executive now review has necessarily been a period of change and reorganisation. It is, therefore, all the more gratifying to the Executive to be able to report that the progress of the Union has been in no sense arrested, and that its responsibilities and duties have been earnestly and efficiently discharged. The Executive are glad to believe that at no time was the National Union of Teachers more worthy of the confidence and support of its members, and at no time have that confidence and support been more generally given.

The Conference of 1892 at Leeds, with which the work of the year began, was in every way successful. The meetings of the Executive during the year have been largely attended, and the important business transacted has received the most careful and prolonged attention. A re-establishment of the connection between the Union and the Schoolmaster as its organ has taken place upon satisfactory terms, and the services to the Union rendered by that organ under the editorship of Mr. T. J. Macnamara are services which at no former period have been exceeded, and which the Executive desire to acknowledge with thanks.

But there has also been a corresponding activity among the local associations and the members of the Union generally. The frequency and interest of the meetings of local associations have not only been maintained, but many joint meetings of groups of local associations have been successfully held. A new District Union has been started in the case of Cheshire, and the West Yorks District Union has been revived with striking success.

The relations between the Education Department and the Union continue to be of a most cordial character. Many communications and suggestions have been sent by the Executive to the Department, and to these full and courteous attention has been accorded; and whenever it has been necessary for the officers of the Union to seek information from the Department, the information has been most readily given. At Easter last the Union had the pleasure to welcome among the distinguished guests at the Conference dinner the Secretary of the Education Department. The Executive have addressed to Sir William Hart Dyke a valedictory letter of thanks for his services to public education, and to Mr. Acland a letter of welcome on his accession to the chair of the Education Department.

Important changes have taken place in the personnel of the Executive and of the official staff of the Union during the past year. In June, Mr. Yoxall resigned the Presidency of the Union in order to enter upon the duties of the Secretaryship, to which he had been unanimously appointed by Conference; and Mr. Organ in the same month ceased to be a member of the Executive and entered on his duties as law clerk. Mr. Bowden took office as Acting-President and Mr. Greenwood as Deputy-President, and the Executive co-opted Mr. C. D. Crisp and Mr. W. Wardale to fill the vacancies on the Executive thus caused. Advantage has been taken of the opportunity afforded by these changes to make certain rearrangements in the office, and the devolution of certain duties and responsibilities upon the assistant secretary, Mr. James, and the law official, Mr. Organ, has been found to conduce to the better discharge of the correspondence and committee work which have so greatly increased during the year.

But the Executive recognise that the central work of the Union is of so voluminous and important a character that even the energy and capacity of the staff as now augmented must have failed to cope successfully with that work, were it not for the devoted services rendered by the chairmen of the several standing committees. They desire to acknowledge gratefully the admirable discharge of duty by Mr. Wild, as Chairman of the Education Committee; by Mr. Ellery, as Chairman of the Finance, Press, and General Purposes Committee; by Mr. Gray, as Chairman of the Parliamentary Committee; by Mr. John, as Chairman of the Organisation Committee; and by Mr. Addiscott, in succession to Mr. Organ, as Chairman of the Law Committee. The Executive desire to recognise the devotion and valuable services rendered by the permanent staff.

I.—THE ORGANISATION OF THE UNION.

Membership.—At the close of the year 1891, the Union consisted of 372 associations, with an aggregate of 18,072 members. During the year 1892 seven associations have ceased to exist, being amalgamated with others, and thirty-two new associations have been formed, bringing the aggregate number of associations, at the close of 1892, to 392, and the membership of the Union for 1892 to 23,209. The number of district unions at the end of 1891 was five; the number now in existence is seven. In 1891, two members only had joined the Union centrally, under rule 27; in 1892, the number thus joining was thirteen. There has been a steady increase in the number of members reported at the end of each month of the year as compared with the corresponding month of the year before; and the following table shows that such increase has been, with only occasional exceptions, for the past four years a constant feature in the history of the Union :—

Total for the Year reported to Conf'ence	14,809	16,100	18,072	23,209

One of the most gratifying features in the increase of membership during the year has been the adhesion of a large number of assistant teachers, and the Executive are glad to believe that the Union enjoys the support and confidence of the younger members of the profession in a fuller degree than ever before.

Propaganda.—Early in the year 1892, Mr. Yoxall, as Acting-President, reported to the Executive as follows :—

“ So far, my experience has been that the ‘ combined ’ meeting is invariably successful and helpful. I commend it to Supervisors as a means of fostering friendly rivalry and local enthusiasm between associations in the same district, whilst also affording to the most remote member sufficient evidence that she or he is part of a great organisation. I believe that ‘ combined ’ meetings, if more widely adopted, would be more effectual than the individual deputation system, and at the same time less costly in money and time. Some method of economising both will need to be found, as the associations grow more and more in number.”

Immediately after Easter, and at various dates since then, resolutions were adopted by the Executive which tended in the direction thus indicated. Combined meetings of groups of associations have been promoted, to a much greater extent than in former years, and rules have been drawn up which limit the previously held powers of Supervisors to attend meetings of single associations. Nevertheless, the extraordinary increase in membership and in the number of associations during the year has augmented the number of applications for deputations ; and in spite of the most watchful care the number of deputations of all kinds during the year has been not less than 151, and the cost of these visits by members of the Executive has amounted to £216 2s. 4d.

Visits to the Bangor, Battersea, Borough Road, Bristol, Carnarvon, Carmarthen, Chelsea, Cheltenham, Edgehill, Hammersmith, Homerton, Norwich, Oxford, Saffron Walden, Whitlands, and York and Ripon Training Colleges have been paid by representatives of the Union, and the Executive desire to place on record their thanks to the Principals and other officers of the training colleges who have enabled these visits to be made. There is, it is believed, a good prospect of more teachers joining the Union in 1893 during the first few months of the professional career than during the first few months of any former year.

Forms and Circulars for Canvassing Purposes.—More than 20,000 copies of Form 33, which supplies general information respecting the work and advantages of the Union, and a large number of copies of draft rules, have been sent out from the office. Many thousands of the printed form of circular for calling local meetings have been supplied. Hardly a week has passed without a notice to non-members of the Union of some meeting or meetings of associations being prepared and circulated by the office, and the amount of correspondence and circularising with regard to membership has been unusually great.

Deputations to other Educational Bodies.—The Conferences and Assemblies of other Educational Bodies have been visited by officers and members of the Executive, in the case of the Irish National Teachers' Organisation, by Mr. Girling and Mr. John; in the case of the Federation Générale des Instituteurs Belges, by Mr. Bowden and Mr. Sykes; and in the case of the Educational Institute of Scotland, by Mr. Hamilton and Mr. Macnamara. On this last occasion, the Union was honoured through its Treasurer by the election of Mr. Hamilton to the Fellowship of the Institute.

Electoral Districts.—The Conference of 1892 resolved as follows:—

"Seeing that the principle of electoral districts has been twice confirmed, this Conference regrets that the outgoing Executive has not submitted to the associations a scheme which would carry that principle into effect, and it hereby requests the new Executive to prepare a scheme and submit it to the associations by October next."

The scheme thus required was sent out to the Associations in August, and the Executive present a special report upon the result of the vote which was taken.

Exclusion of Teachers under certain circumstances from Membership of the Union.—At the last Conference the following rule was added:—"That the Executive or any local association (subject to the approval of the Executive) may expel any member whose character or conduct makes it desirable that such member's name should not be retained on the roll of members." The Executive have to report that during the past year they have found it necessary in one case only to take action under the authority given to them by this rule.

II.—THE LEGAL WORK OF THE UNION.

General.—There has been a decided increase in the work of the Law Committee during the past year. Part of this increase is the natural consequence of the influx of new members. The Committee during the past year has held eighteen meetings, and the average number of cases dealt with at each meeting has shown a steady increase. The following comparative table gives particulars which show a steady growth of work:—

Year.		Cases.		Letters.
1890	...	373	...	2,768
1891	...	449	...	4,066
1892	...	776	...	5,017

With regard to the character of the cases the Executive has nothing to add to its former reports. The list of "Types of Cases" given in the report of last year includes all those which have arisen during the period now under review.

Funds.—The following table gives certain particulars as to expenditure:—

Year.		Law Costs.	No of Cases.		Average cost of each Case
1890	...	£1,206	...	373	£3 4 0
1892	...	1,008	...	776	1 5 7

On reference to the table it will be noted that during the past year there has been a remarkable diminution in the average cost of each case. This, in the opinion of the Executive, is attributable to the fact that the appointment of a separate law official, devoting the whole of his time to the work of the Legal Department, has enabled them to deal with this branch of their work more expeditiously, and consequently more economically.

In connection with this it is interesting to note that when the Conference last met in Liverpool, in the year 1876, the Executive reported that the Law Committee had dealt with thirty-nine cases, and that in the balance sheet there was an item of some magnitude entered as law expenses. The amount to which reference was thus made was £76 3s. 4d.

The Wimblington Case.—During a certain period of the year, this case engrossed a large amount of the time and energy of the Union officials. In the opinion of the Executive, Mr Tunncliffe, a member of the Union and a master under the Wimblington School Board, had been dismissed for reasons which had no connection with his professional work. As the triennial election of the Board was near, it was determined to make an attempt to return a majority to the new Board pledged to reinstate Mr Tunncliffe. This attempt was not successful, but the Executive believe that they only performed their 'bounden duty' in undertaking the contest. The contest has given unmistakable evidence of the determination of the Union to use all means in its power to defend the just interests and professional reputation of any one of its members, at whatever cost and trouble.

A New Departure.—Under the direction of the Executive, the Law Committee have entered upon a work which does not strictly fall within the term "legal." Cases of legal dismissal which are morally indefensible are continually brought under the notice of the Executive. In four cases of this kind, which have occurred during the past year, endeavours have been made to prevent the acceptance of the vacant post by other teachers. In one of these cases this action has been so successful as to result in the reinstatement of the old servant, and in the remaining cases great difficulties have been experienced in obtaining a teacher. A still further development of this mode of procedure has just been initiated, and it is hoped that during the coming year this will have good effect. A "Register of Schools" has been opened. It is proposed to record in this register any particulars which may be obtained, either directly or indirectly, as to certain schools.

The information as to any particular school, which is recorded, will be at the service of members of the Union. It is within the knowledge of the Executive that many teachers are induced to accept situations by misrepresentations. Certain managers and school boards suppress facts with which the teachers ought to be acquainted before making engagements. This "Register" is designed to supply members of the Union with facts and circumstances other than those likely to be supplied by these school authorities. It is hoped by this means that much misery and pecuniary loss to teachers within our ranks will be prevented.

Extraneous Tasks.—A vigorous campaign against the imposition of these tasks has been carried on during the past year through the media of the general and professional press. The attitude adopted is fully defined in the following official communication to the educational papers issued in November last:—

"SIR,—The Executive of the National Union of Teachers note with much satisfaction that certain advertisements for teachers recently appearing in the columns of the educational press specifically state that 'no extraneous duties will be required' from the teacher. They desire to call the special attention of teachers seeking situations to that fact, and to recommend them to answer only those advertisements which make no mention of 'extraneous duties,' or state definitely that such will not be imposed. This appeal is specially needful at the present time, when so many teachers are about to leave the training colleges. The Executive, in a fraternal spirit, offer the following suggestions to all teachers now entering upon their professional career:—

"1. Decline to accept any situation in which the management of the school demand, as a condition of appointment, the performance of duties other than those connected with school work.

"2. Decline to accept any situation where a private understanding is required from you that you will voluntarily undertake to train the choir, or play the organ, or do any other kind of work outside your school. The Executive in all their action upon this subject have steadily kept in view the right of a teacher to volunteer for whatever outside work he or she may choose; but they desire to warn the young teacher against situations where such work is nominally 'voluntary,' but virtually 'compulsory.'

"Before you accept any situation, see that it is clearly understood and stated in your agreement that the performance of any outside work which you may undertake shall not be a condition of your retention of your school appointment.

"If you accept a situation in which outside duties are required, take care to have a separate agreement which shall state the remuneration you are to receive for the performance of such duties, otherwise you may unconsciously lend yourself to a misuse of public money. For example, should you receive an inclusive salary as teacher and organist, and the amount paid to you be entered among the annual returns made to the Education Department on Form IX. as 'salary,' you then become a party to a practice condemned by the Education Department and harmful to the just interests of your profession.

"Sir William Hart Dyke, when Vice-President of the Committee of Council on Education, said:—'One thing strikes me with regard to these difficulties under which teachers in some instances are labouring. The National Union of Teachers in itself, as being a very powerful body, might take some action to protect teachers on their engagement.' He also said, 'it seems to me it might be possible for some document to be drawn up which should be binding upon the managers and teachers, by which the teacher should know on his engagement whether he would be called upon to undertake any extraneous work.' Such a document has been prepared, and is supplied from this office to members of the Union without charge, and to other teachers on payment of 2s. 6d.

"The Executive appeal to the younger members of their profession with all confidence that these suggestions will be met in a friendly manner. The Union has now incorporated a large number of those who have left the training colleges year by year, and it is confidently hoped that those who enter the profession in 1893 will, to a large extent identify themselves with the National Union of Teachers, and thus hasten the time when appeals of this nature will no longer be necessary.

Alteration of Bye-laws.—From experience gained during the past year, the Executive deem it necessary to recommend the Conference to make certain alterations in the Bye-laws for the administration of the Legal Assistance and Sustentation Fund. The alterations we recommend have reference to, (1) The conditions to be fulfilled in order to obtain legal assistance, (2) Cases in which the opposing parties are members of the Union. The Executive feel that the time has now come when the conditions under which legal assistance may be obtained should be more stringent, and it is also thought that an effort should be made to prevent the not unusual practice of paying subscriptions after the end of the year for which they fall due. The alterations in Bye-laws 9 and 14 are proposed in order to enforce more prompt payment of subscriptions, and to restrict the benefits of membership to those teachers who are regular subscribers.

In the proposed new Bye-law, provision is made for dealing with any case in which the opposing parties are members of the Union.

Typical Cases.—In dealing with this part of the report, the Executive wish to express their appreciation of the services which have been rendered by the Schoolmaster during the past in so fully reporting the cases which have been conducted by the Union. They feel that the prominence which has been given to this part of the Union work has in no slight degree tended to the marked strengthening and increasing of the spirit of Unionism, which has been so apparent during the last few months.

Assault on pupil.—A schoolmaster was fined for an assault on one of his pupils. The master had punished the boy for an offence committed after school hours, and off the school premises. The magistrates decided that, in their opinion, punishment for such an offence was illegal, and fined him accordingly. An appeal was made to the High Court, and was heard in the Divisional Court of Appeal. It was held that the magistrates were wrong on the point of law, and the case has been sent down to the Southampton Bench for reconsideration.

Illegal dismissal.—(1) In our last report we stated that the head teacher of a Board school had been charged with an indecent assault, and, as a consequence, had been dismissed by his Board. At the Assizes he was acquitted. Action was immediately taken in the High Court to recover damages for illegal dismissal. These damages to the amount of over £40 have been recovered, all the costs, in this case exceptionally heavy, of the proceedings falling on the Board in question.

(2) A master having received notice of dismissal from the vicar of the parish, who claimed to be the sole manager, was instructed to resist the enforcement of such notice. Under the trust deed it was considered by the Law Committee that the vicar had no power of himself to give such notice. The Executive agreed to pay a sum equivalent to the salary the master had been receiving, and to commence proceedings for the purpose of restraining the vicar from carrying out the notice. An action in the High Court is pending in this case.

Slander.—(1) A town councillor, in the course of an election speech, made certain statements with regard to the conduct of a schoolmaster in the same town. These statements having been reported to the Executive, a writ was issued. When the case came on for hearing a compromise was effected, one of the terms being that the councillor withdrew all imputations against the master.

(2) A curate in a country village had grossly slandered the schoolmaster. On being threatened with legal proceedings by the Union, the curate agreed to pay the sum of two guineas to the charitable funds, and admitted that the statement was unjustifiable, and unreservedly and unconditionally withdrew it. The text of the apology was published at the expense of the curate in the professional and local press.

Inquest.—A lad in the school of a member of the Union died, and an inquest was ordered to be held. At the first hearing the father alleged that the death had been caused by the effects of a blow which had been given by the master. The case was adjourned for the purpose of holding a post-mortem examination. The local practitioner asserted that it was his belief that tetanus was the cause of death, and that it had been induced by a blow. Special medical witnesses were engaged at a cost of thirty guineas. These witnesses supplied evidence which entirely overthrew that of the local practitioner, and as a result the master was acquitted.

Claim for Salary.—A master died, and his widow claimed from the managers of his school a certain sum which she alleged was due to her as executrix of her late husband. The managers refused to pay this sum, but eventually, when they found that the Union was determined to take legal proceedings in the event of non-payment, they forwarded a cheque for £84 9s. 2d. in liquidation of the claim and costs.

Assault cases.—To enumerate only the names and results of the cases falling under this head, including assaults by teachers and assaults on teachers would occupy too much space. We would, however, record that during the past year a much larger number of cases than usual have been dealt with in which assistant teachers have been concerned. Only in a few exceptional cases has the client of the Union been unsuccessful.

III.—THE PARLIAMENTARY WORK OF THE UNION.

The Union's Parliamentary work during the past year has been of special interest and importance, and the valued assistance of the Parliamentary correspondents in connection with the local associations has been promptly and efficiently rendered. Among other matters, the attention of Members of Parliament was drawn to the greatly increased difficulty of the freehand copy at the Second Grade drawing examination in 1892. A circular was sent to each member, containing facsimiles of the tests supplied during 1892 and 1891.

Mr. Acland indirectly confirmed the information already conveyed to the Executive by the General Secretary that the Government found themselves unable to introduce a Bill for teachers' superannuation during 1893. The deputation strongly suggested that in that case a sum of money should be apportioned by the Government in order to provide pensions for those teachers who entered service between 1851 and 1862, and who were at present unable to obtain a pension because of the very limited sum at the disposal of the Education Department.

7. The Secretary of the Education Department kindly consented, at the request of the Executive, to append to Form X. a form of inquiry with regard to the number of teachers breaking down while in service.
8. A motion on Superannuation was prepared and placed in the hands of Sir Richard Temple, who was fortunate enough to obtain an early and favourable date for its introduction to the House.
9. The services of Parliamentary correspondents were again called into play, and local associations were requested to pass resolutions affirming approval of the subject and terms of the motion. A circular letter was sent to all members of Parliament, and a similar communication, which appears on p. cxliii, was also sent to all daily newspapers.
10. Many other methods of influencing the result in the desired direction were adopted.
11. The motion stated on page xlii was unanimously affirmed by the House of Commons, and Mr. Acland announced that the Government were prepared at once to augment the sum now at their disposal in pensions for teachers who entered the service between the years 1851 and 1862.

The Executive desire to specially thank all those whose efforts tended to secure this highly satisfactory result, the members of the Government and of the Front Opposition Bench, the other members who by voice or presence supported the motion in the House of Commons, and all those teachers and other educationists throughout the country whose signatures to the memorial and whose other influential action assisted to create a favourable opinion in the minds of members of the House.

The Proposed Age and Attendance Qualification for Exemption from School.—The instruction of Conference upon this subject has been carried out by the preparation and circulation of a pamphlet and by the formulation of a Bill introduced by Sir Richard Temple. The pamphlet was prepared by Mr. Waddington, and 10,000 copies of it have been circulated to members of Parliament, members of school boards, school attendance committees, and the Press. A Special Committee, appointed by the Executive, prepared instructions for a Parliamentary draughtsman with regard to the Bill. In its final form the Bill did not meet with the approval of the Executive owing to alterations made in it by Sir Richard Temple and the draughtsman. The Union support for the Bill in that form has been withdrawn, and steps have been taken to introduce an amended Bill.

Other Educational Bills in Parliament.—The various other Bills on Education introduced during the present Session of Parliament have, from time to time, received the attention of the Executive, and from stage to stage have been watched and influenced, either in favour of their adoption, amendment, or rejection, by Mr. Gray, the Secretary, and other representatives of the Union in the Lobbies of the House of Commons. Steps have been taken to oppose a Bill for the registration of teachers other than those in public elementary schools, and a complete and satisfactory Registration Bill will be introduced as an alternative.

Direct Representation in Parliament.—The efforts of the Executive to obtain entrance into the House of Commons for Union experts in educational matters have during the past year been more than ever energetic. The candidature of Mr. Yoxall for the Bassetlaw Parliamentary Division of Nottinghamshire was undertaken at the request of the Executive, and shortly afterwards an attempt was made to secure the candidature of a member of the Executive belonging to the other political party elsewhere. The Executive regret that it was found impracticable to promote the candidature of two members of the Union at the General Election, and that Mr. Yoxall was not successful in his untiring efforts to win the Bassetlaw Division.

In September, the Executive passed the following resolution :—

“That the Executive records its high appreciation of the skill and energy with which Mr. Yoxall conducted his contest in the Bassetlaw Division of Notts, and cordially thanks him for the services thus rendered to the N. U. T. The Executive trusts that his efforts in the cause of education may be soon rewarded by a seat in the House of Commons.”

The Executive have the pleasure to report that early in January Mr. Gray was adopted as Parliamentary Candidate for North-West Ham.

IV. THE MORE STRICTLY EDUCATIONAL WORK OF THE UNION.

The past year has been fruitful in suggestions and recommendations made on behalf of the Union in order to amend the Code, the Instructions to Inspectors, and other conditions relating to the work of scholars and teachers in Public Elementary Schools. The resolutions on these subjects adopted by Conference were forwarded to the Department, and from time to time many other similar communications have been sent to that Department and to the Department of Science and Art.

The details of the recommendations respecting the Code, &c., appear in the resolutions for Conference asking for approval of the action taken.

Results of Pupil Teachers' Examinations.—The Executive recommended that the results of pupil teachers' examinations should be earlier made known, and in June it was reported that the Secretary of the Education Department had now arranged that in every case the result of the examination would be made known within six months.

Education in Wales.—Action has been taken by the Executive to secure representation of certificated teachers upon the proposed University Court, and upon the County Governing Boards of Technical and Intermediate Education in Wales. The required representation has been accorded in the case of the University, but up to the present only in the case of one of the said County Governing Boards. A special committee of Welsh teachers met the chairman of the Education Committee (Mr. Wild) and the General Secretary, at Shrewsbury, during the Christmas holidays, and the report of this committee embodied many important suggestions for the improvement of the teaching of English and in English, by the use, where necessary or desirable, of the Welsh language concurrently with the English language. Having been submitted to the Executive and to the Associations of the Union in Wales and Monmouthshire, these suggestions were, with only slight alterations, forwarded to the Education Department as an appendix to the Union's suggestions for the amendment of the Code. There is reason to believe that these suggestions in particular have been most favourably received by the Education Department.

Deputation to Science and Art Department.—In July last a deputation from the Executive, consisting of Mr. Greenwood and Mr. Wild, met on two occasions General Donnelly, the Secretary of the Science and Art Department, and at great length discussed the question of Drawing regulations and certificates. The effect of this deputation was to elicit statements which definitely tend in directions desired by the Union. The report of this interview appears on page cl.

Among other matters the deputation were promised that an easier certificate of capacity to teach Drawing in public elementary schools would henceforward be obtainable, and were informed that absolute freedom of classification in Drawing was conceded. General Donnelly further stated that objections to re-classification by the local inspector were not considered by the Department when awarding the Drawing grant to a school, but that if any such case should occur, this cause of objection should be definitely stated in the terms of the report on the school.

Assistant Teachers and School Discipline.—Much attention has been given during the year to the question of the powers of assistant teachers in the matter of school discipline. The Executive have resolved "that the teacher's certificate should carry with it plenary powers of discipline and organisation," and they have made several attempts to amend the regulations now in force under many School Boards, by which even certificated assistant teachers are prohibited from administering corporal chastisement. The Executive asked the School Board for London to receive evidence on this subject from the General Secretary and Mr. Organ, and although the School Board declined to receive evidence from witnesses representing the Union, they asked the Executive to supply written recommendations, and received evidence from Mr. Organ as a former servant of the Board. The recommendations adopted by the Executive, together with evidence in support of them obtained from important School Boards which permit to assistants the power of corporal chastisement, is contained in the following circular letter, which has been addressed to various School Boards in England and Wales.

"NATIONAL UNION OF TEACHERS.

"71, Russell Square, London, W.C.

"To the Clerk of the School Board for

"SIR,—Permit me to submit, for the consideration of your Board, the following evidence and suggestions with regard to corporal chastisement in schools.

"The Executive Committee of the National Union of Teachers have for many years observed and considered the development and effect of the restriction of one of the natural and legal functions of the teacher, in the adoption of regulations prohibiting subordinate teachers from administering bodily chastisement to scholars in Board Schools. Although this restriction has not been by any means the universal practice, it is the rule under most of the larger School Boards, and the example thus set, has, to a considerable extent, affected the School Board system in England and Wales. My Committee recognise that the Boards have approached this question with a laudable motive, and with the intention to promote the best interests of scholars, parents, and teachers alike. But we now submit that, after more than twenty years' experience of the prohibitory system, a period has been reached, when the whole question may profitably be reconsidered in the light of the knowledge thus obtained. My Committee venture to think that no educational expert will contend that the prohibitory system by which assistant teachers, no matter how fully certificated and experienced, are forbidden to use any power of corporal punishment as a means of discipline, and of checking untoward tendencies on the part of children, has proved a success. On the contrary, the prohibitive system has broken down in practice; and it has positively increased the amount of corporal punishment necessary, by encouraging, on the part of children, an insubordination to assistant teachers, which necessitates severer punishment from the head teacher than the original offences would have incurred from the assistant teacher. Further, the prohibition encourages clandestine and irregular forms of punishment which are most undesirable, but which exist in default of permission to use a regular and efficacious method of punishment. Moreover, there is evidence that much of the national good and diminution of crime resultant from education is discounted by a certain want of due respect towards elders, and of seemly bearing, on the part of the younger generation, of which there is plentiful complaint. Education was never so efficient, and the average teacher was never more capable, than now; but so long as education and the educator are hampered by impracticable regulations, which foment rather than alleviate the difficulty for which they are prescribed, education and the educator cannot work in the best way to obtain the best result. It is the deliberate and fortified opinion of my Committee that the only effectual way to diminish corporal punishment is to permit the exercise of it by all certificated teachers, whenever the exercise becomes necessary. Paradoxical though it may seem, the true way to reduce corporal punishment to a minimum is to empower the certificated assistant to use it. In support of this view, my Committee adduce evidence obtained from five of the chief School Boards in Great Britain, which permit the assistant teacher to use a reasonable amount of corporal punishment when required. From the School Board for Nottingham we learn as follows:—

"ALLOWING FULLY CERTIFICATED TEACHERS TO ADMINISTER MINOR CORPORAL PUNISHMENT."

"Head teachers report that this concession has aided discipline, and has largely done away with irregular and harmful forms of punishment, without increasing the number of cases of corporal punishment;" and the Clerk to the School Board adds:—

"So far as we can discover, this regulation has tended rather to decrease than increase the actual number of cases of punishment in our schools, and it has certainly assisted very materially in doing away with the very obnoxious forms of clandestine punishment which were previously too often resorted to. All teachers, both head and assistant, appear to heartily appreciate the concession, and declare themselves most anxious to carry out the spirit of the amended regulation."

The Clerk to the School Board for Glasgow writes:—

"Speaking generally, the regulations have worked satisfactorily, cases of excessive punishment are very rare, and where complaints have been made by parents it has been invariably found either that the charges were incorrect or that the punishment was deserved, and not severe."

The Clerk to the School Board for Edinburgh writes:—

"Very few complaints have been lodged by parents or others with this Board in regard to corporal punishment inflicted by any of their teachers. Indeed, the complaints are so rare that I have at present no recollection when the last one was made."

The Clerk to the School Board for Aberdeen writes:—

"The Board has had no occasion to interfere with the reasonable discretion of its teachers in the matter of punishment and does not fetter its assistants by any rule on the subject."

The Clerk to the School Board for Dundee writes:—

"These regulations have been found to work in a highly satisfactory manner."

In view of evidence so valuable and trustworthy as the foregoing, I express the hope that your Board will consent to reconsider the matter, with the view of adopting such modifications to present regulations as may provide for assistant teachers the power to use a reasonable amount of corporal punishment under proper conditions. And, therefore, I submit the following outline, recommended by my Committee, as likely to be efficient and satisfactory to all concerned:—

1. The responsibility of head teachers to the Board should not be impaired.
2. A recognised certificated assistant teacher should have power to administer corporal punishment by virtue of his or her office.
3. A head teacher should have the authority to withdraw from an assistant teacher the power to administer corporal punishment.
4. An assistant teacher, from whom the power to administer corporal punishment is withdrawn by the head teacher, should have the right to appeal to the Board against such withdrawal.
5. The use of "punishment books" should be discontinued.
6. Irregular modes of corporal punishment in any form should be absolutely prohibited.

We trust that your Board will give to these suggestions the consideration which experience and information drawn from many sources lead us to believe them to deserve, and I should be glad to learn from you the result.

(Signed) I am, Sir,

Your obedient servant,

J. H. YOXALL,

General Secretary.

The Executive are glad to report that in several instances considerable Boards have since permitted certificated assistant teachers to administer corporal punishment under regulations similar to those suggested by the Executive.

The Executive have also reprinted and largely circulated an admirable article on this subject, published in the Schoolmaster on the 24th December, 1892. On more than one occasion the good offices of members of the Executive have been used with success in difficulties between managers and teachers arising from this question.

School Attendance in Bad Weather.—As the result of an inquiry made by the Executive into the result of inclement weather upon school attendance, both in rural and urban schools, the Executive have suggested to the Education Department that only the best 400 attendances should be regarded when calculating the average attendance of a school.

University Extension.—During the course of the Oxford University Extension Summer Meeting a conference was held between some hundreds of certificated teachers then resident in Oxford, other Extension students, and the University Extension authorities. The subjects of the conference were—

- (a) The bearing of the new Evening Schools Code on the problems of continued education, and
- (b) The relations between the University and the teacher.

The General Secretary attended this conference at the invitation of the Extension leaders and the certificated teachers then present, many of whom were members of the N. U. T.

Girls' and Infants' Departments under one Head Teacher.—The Executive in November forwarded to the School Board for London the following resolution :—

“That the recent action of the London School Board, whereby in certain schools the girls' and infants' departments have been placed under the control of only one head teacher, will make it impossible for such teacher to devote the necessary care and attention to the moral and intellectual training of individual pupils, and will thus seriously injure the educational work in all schools where this principle of false economy is applied.”

The Executive have been unable to find precedents for placing a girls' department and an infants' department under one head mistress, on the part of School Boards in any other portion of the United Kingdom.

Technical Education.—Among other matters the action of the Executive has secured :—

- (1) Direct representation of the National Union of Teachers on the Technical Education Board of the London County Council. In response to a request by the Council, the Executive nominated, for appointment by the Council on the Technical Education Board, Mr. T. A. Organ, B.A., who has had much practical experience of the work which the Technical Education Board is likely to have to carry out.

- (2) The following definite statement of the legality of the payment of railway fares to certificated teachers visiting lecture-centres established by County Council Committees under the Technical Education Acts.

Department of Science and Art,

South Kensington, S.W., 18th January, 1893.

SIR,—Adverting to your letter of the 4th October last, and to the letter from this office, dated the 11th of that month, on the subject of the payment of travelling expenses incurred by elementary school teachers in attending Technical Classes established by County Councils, I am directed to acquaint you that the Department is now advised by the Law Officers of the Crown that the power to provide or assist in providing scholarships, given by Section 1 (1) (b) of the Technical Instruction Act, 1891, does entitle a Local Authority to apply funds to the payment of travelling expenses incurred by students in attending Classes for technical instruction, without its being necessary to employ any special machinery for the creation of scholarships.

In any case, or class of cases, the Local Authority may apply, in favour of a student or students, a sum sufficient to cover his or their travelling expenses, and this will be a Scholarship within the meaning of the Act, and may, if it is thought fit, be applied directly by the Local Authority in payment of the expenses.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

J. H. YOXALL, Esq.,

G. F. DUNCOMBE.

National Union of Teachers, 71, Russell-square, W.C.

The Teacher's Certificate as comprehensive of all Obligatory Subjects.—Most persistent efforts have been made during the year to secure the inviolability and comprehensiveness of the teacher's certificate when once granted. The full correspondence upon the subject appears on p. clvi. The Executive feel that this matter cannot be regarded as definitely settled, although a measure of assurance has been elicited.

As part of this subject the Executive have pressed for the removal of the words "for the present" from paragraph 7 of Art Form 1294. The words are still retained in the form, but, as a result of the representations made by the Executive, they are qualified and explained by the following recent addition to the regulations of the Science and Art Department:—

"If it should at any time be found expedient or necessary to impose the condition that the teacher of drawing should hold a certificate from the Department of Science and Art, teachers of elementary schools who were certificated as such and engaged in teaching before the 1st of January, 1893, will be exempted from its operation. That is to say, no school will be disqualified from earning a grant for drawing on the ground that its teacher was not certificated in drawing if he had been certificated as an elementary school teacher, and teaching as such in that or any other elementary school before the 1st of January, 1893."

This subject is being watched with the most jealous care, and every effort necessary will be made to secure that justice is done both to the teachers and the taught.

Efforts have from time to time been made by the Executive to secure that the full value of science certificates granted prior to 1888 should be recognised, and also that easier terms of qualification should be provided for the Second Class Elementary Drawing Certificate, but so far the efforts of the Executive have not been successful on these points. The correspondence appears on p. clix.

Decimal and Metric System.—In January, 1893, a deputation to the Chancellor of the Exchequer, asking for an introduction of the decimal system, was attended by Mr. Ellery and the General Secretary.

Inspectors of Schools.—The prolonged efforts of the Union to secure a system of justly promoting certificated teachers to the Inspectorate have at last met with some measure of success. One of the chief suggestions of the Executive was that Inspectors should henceforth be appointed from two sources:—

- (1) From the Sub-Inspectors and Inspectors' Assistants at present engaged, and
- (2) From among the most experienced and capable teachers at work in Public Elementary Schools.

The appointment of a Sub-Inspector, Mr. W. Northrop, as one of Her Majesty's Inspectors, may be regarded as a partial concession to the wishes of the Union in this matter, but the Executive have conveyed to the Vice-President of the Council the following resolution:—

"That, whilst congratulating Mr. Acland upon the election of so eminently capable and experienced an educationist as H.M. Sub-Inspector Mr. Wilkinson Northrop for the post of Inspector of Schools, this Executive begs respectfully to express its regret that the aforesaid appointment has not been followed by the promotion direct from the teaching ranks of one of the many distinguished and long-tried experts at present at work as primary teachers, such promotion being distinctly recommended by the recent Education Commission. At the same time this Executive, relying upon Mr. Acland's keen desire for the best interests of National Education, begs to express a sincere hope that such a step will be taken by him when next a vacancy in the Inspectorate is at his disposal."

The Teaching and Examination of Drawing.—In May the Executive resolved to call the attention of the Education Department to the increased difficulty of the freehand copy of the recent drawing examination, and passed a resolution regretting that as drawing is now made compulsory, and as teachers are earnestly striving to meet the requirements, greater difficulties than ever had been placed in their way. Parliamentary action was taken to support this contention. Repeated applications have also been made in favour of perfect freedom of classification in drawing, and the Executive have every assurance that it is the wish and the intention of the authorities that this should be everywhere secured.

Training Colleges.—The conditions of entrance to Training Colleges, and the arrangements for residence and instruction therein, have received attention from time to time during the past year. But the difficulties of obtaining evidence, and other considerations applying to this subject, have prevented the Executive from being in a position to take any action in the matter at present.

Secondary and Technical Education.—As the result of a careful consideration of the various proposals for the organisation of secondary education, the Executive submit to Conference resolutions dealing with this subject. The Executive have recommended that another Standing Committee shall be appointed next year to deal specially with questions of secondary and technical education, a duty which the Education Committee has hitherto performed.

Secondary Education Scholarships.—In conference with a Committee of the Headmasters' Association, a deputation from the Executive has had a considerable share in drawing up model regulations of examination for scholarships from elementary into secondary schools. The Union has become permanently identified with this movement by the appointment of Mr. Addiscott and Mr. Macnamara upon the Scholarships Sub-Committee of the council of the Headmasters' Association.

Free Education and the Fee Grant.—The Executive have requested the Education Department to pay the Fee Grant at the commencement of each quarter on the basis of the previous year, any differences to be adjusted when the Examination Grant is being paid.

An elaborate form of inquiry into the operation of the Fee Grant system has been adopted and circulated by the Executive in order to elicit the effect of the grant both upon school attendance and the salaries of teachers. The Executive desire to thank the officers and other members of Local Associations who have so carefully assisted in the filling up of this return, and also the many School Boards who have kindly co-operated with the Union in this matter. Mr. Wheeler has kindly undertaken to examine and report upon the information thus collected.

Letters of Advice.—Several hundred letters of advice to members of the Union on matters connected with the Code, the working of schools, &c., have been sent from the office during the past year. The Executive have decided that, in view of the value of the advice thus afforded, it shall now be necessary for the applicants for such advice to enclose with the letter the certificate of membership for the current year, which, of course, will be returned.

V.—THE FINANCIAL, PRESS, AND GENERAL WORK OF THE UNION.

Finance.—As the Balance Sheet and the Treasurer's statement deal with the details of the finances of the Union, nothing more than a general reference is here necessary. Serious monetary difficulties and loss have been experienced from delays in the payment of the annual subscriptions to the Union; but the Executive desire to recognise the general effort made by local officers to give effect to the alteration in Rule 18, by which the list of members must be received not later than the 30th November. At the same time it is necessary to state that supplementary lists were so numerously sent in later, that the economy in time and labour, which it was hoped that the rule would bring about, has not been experienced in the office. The Executive appeal to members of the Union to forward their subscriptions to the officers of local associations early in the year; and they request the treasurers of local associations to remit the subscriptions as soon as received, or, at least, not later than the end of each quarter.

Press Work.—Special attention has been given during the year to press work on behalf of the Union, and a Sub-committee has regularly dealt with this matter. A full and daily supply of newspaper cuttings, on all subjects connected with education has been arranged; and all articles, letters, and other information thus brought under notice receive prompt attention, and if needs be, an immediate reply. The Executive desire to acknowledge the services rendered by Mr. Ellery, chairman of the Committee, in examining these press cuttings and in answering or arranging with other members of the Executive to answer press statements requiring reply, during the earlier part of the year. Since August this work has been performed by the General Secretary, who, on many occasions, has supplied to the press articles, letters, and other communications with regard to education and the general work of the Union. Several pamphlets and public circulars have been issued under the auspices of the Sub-committee. The Executive desire to thank the many members of the Union who have sent to the Secretary marked copies of papers as a means of information. The Executive also desire to thank those publishers who have supplied copies of books for the Library, which was last year established. Mr. Addiscott has kindly consented to act as Librarian.

Publication of an Annotated Edition of the Code.—The Executive have decided to issue an annotated edition of the Code under the editorship of Mr. Yoxall and Mr. Organ, an enterprise which has largely increased the work of the office at the most busy time of the year. Nevertheless it is believed that such a publication will be of considerable value to members of the Union, and steps have been taken to make the book indispensable to all concerned in education. The Executive desire to express thanks for the aid afforded by the Secretaries of the Education Department and the Science and Art Department by the supply of official forms and other means of information.

The Executive have delegated to the Finance, Press, and General Purposes Committee, and the Press Sub-committee, much of the work necessary in connection with this publication.

Superannuation.—This subject is so fully dealt with under the head of Parliamentary work, that there is no need to do more in this part of the Executive's report than to acknowledge the services rendered to this movement by the Sub-committee on Superannuation and its Chairman, Mr. Ellery. From time to time the Executive has been able to afford assistance to teachers applying for a pension under Article 130 of the Code.

Proposed System of Life Assurance.—The Conference of 1892 passed the following resolution :—

“That this Conference requests the Executive to endeavour to secure for members of the N. U. T. from some leading insurance society, concessions similar to those granted by the North British and Mercantile Insurance Company to members of Her Majesty's Civil Service.”

The Executive has given much attention to the question, and has obtained from many leading life insurance companies quotations of terms of life assurance for members of the Union. The Executive has also had under consideration a proposal to establish a Life Assurance Society as a branch of the Union itself. On the whole, however, it appears to the Executive that no better terms can be obtained or supplied than are already placed at the disposal of members of the Union by the Teachers' Provident Society.

A Conference of representatives of the Teachers' Provident Society and of the Executive was held, as the result of which the General Board of Management decided to remove the limit which, in 1884, was placed upon the amount of assurances under tables IV, V, and VI, and to extend the operation of this branch of the work to £200, the full limit allowed by the Friendly Societies Act. The Executive note with satisfaction this action of the Provident Society. A motion on this subject is submitted to Conference, and it is hoped that all members of the Union will do their utmost to extend the operations of the Society, which has been established and which is being worked for their especial benefit.

Organ of the Union.—Prolonged consideration has been given to the arrangements necessary to carry out the following resolution by Conference:—

"That the Schoolmaster be reconstituted the organ of the Union on the terms agreed upon by the Executive and the Directors of the Educational Newspaper Company, and set out in the annual report of the Executive."

The Educational Newspaper Company have made certain necessary alterations in their Articles of Association, and have placed at the disposal of the Executive, at face-value, the shares requisite to constitute directorship on behalf of the Union. The Executive have requested Mr. Bowden, Mr. Gray, and Mr. Yoxall to act as directors during the first twelve months, and have decided that the appointment of Directors shall be made annually. A cheque for £100 has been received from the Educational Newspaper Company, according to the terms of the agreement, for the twelve months ending Easter, 1893. The necessary legal instrument has been drawn and signed by representatives of the Union and the Educational Newspaper Company. The Executive recognise with pleasure the desire shown by the directors of the Company to afford to the Union in the Schoolmaster the most friendly, full, and effectual support.

Certificate of Membership and Annual Report.—The adoption of an increase in the subscription, and the establishment of an entrance fee, have made necessary a revision of the form of certificate of membership. A form has been prepared for the use of local secretaries and treasurers in obtaining the necessary information from intending members who are not present at Association meetings.

The Executive have again considered the practicability of economising in the cost of publishing the Union's Annual Report, but have not found themselves justified in reducing the amount of information supplied by the Report, or in making any other change.

Rebate and Entrance Fee.—The Executive have decided to cease the payment of the rebate upon the subscriptions of new members, and to return to the local associations the sums paid to the office as entrance fees for the year 1893.

VI.—OTHER WORK OF THE UNION.

Meetings of the Executive, &c.—Ten ordinary and two special meetings of the Executive have been held during the year, but the pressure of the ever increasing amount of business to be performed has made it necessary to hold both morning and afternoon sessions on these occasions, with occasionally an additional session on the evening of the previous day. Since last Easter 23 sessions of the Executive, and 68 meetings of the Standing Committees in addition to Sub-Committees have been held. The following table shows the attendances made by each member of the Executive:—

‡ Member part of year. § Engaged in Parliamentary work during the Session.

The average attendance at meetings of the Executive has been 24·5, and at meetings of the Standing Committees 12·2.

Relations of the Benevolent and Orphan Funds to the Union.—From time to time during the past year some doubts have been expressed as to the legal and other relations in which the Teachers' Benevolent and the Teachers' Orphanage and Orphan Funds stand toward the Union. In order to obtain exact information on this matter, a conference between the representatives of the Executive and of the Committee and Council of these Funds has been held. There is no doubt that this meeting has tended to increase the harmonious working together of the different branches of the Union's operations.

The Executive have duly received the half-yearly reports of the management of the Funds, and desire to express their sense of the admirable work performed by the Committee and Council of these Funds on behalf of the Union generally.

Security of Tenure.—Frequently during the past year the Executive have had under consideration the present insecure conditions of tenure of office by teachers in public elementary schools. The case of Mr. Tunncliffe, of Wimblington, is dealt with under the head of the legal work of the Union, and the case of Mr. Baseden, of Brighton, will be still fresh in the memories of members of the Union. A public meeting and other methods of exposing the injustice done to Mr. Baseden were promoted by the Executive; and, from time to time, advertisements and letters in the Schoolmaster, authorised by the Executive, have conveyed to members of the Union information concerning undesirable schools and unjust school managers. During the past few months, the Executive and its committees have had under almost continual consideration various methods of obtaining reasonable security of tenure for certificated teachers, and their protection from unjustifiable dismissal; and on the part of the Education Department there has been manifested a similar desire. But the difficulties of the question are so many and so great that at present the Executive are unable to report any definitely adopted method of dealing with this matter. They hope, however, to be in a position, ere long, to act on behalf of the Union in a manner which, if successful, will obtain for the teacher all the protection with regard to tenure which can be reasonably asked or justly desired.

Office Arrangements.—Consequent upon changes in the official staff of the Union, one of the rooms in the office has been allotted to the Assistant Secretary, Mr James (to whom the Executive have expressed their thanks for efficient service rendered as Acting Secretary), and one of the vacant rooms has been fitted up as a Law Department. A certain amount of furnishing and refurnishing thus made necessary has been done. Certain necessary repairs have been effected, and as some improvement in the artificial light was necessary throughout, the Executive, examining the cost of the necessary alterations in gas fittings as compared with electric fittings, decided upon installing the electric light. The installation has been carried out in a very efficient way at a moderate charge. The light has been in use since the beginning of January with good effect both upon the illumination and the atmospheric condition of the rooms in the office, in which so much night work, both of the committees and the staff, is necessarily performed.

Agreements and Conditions of Appointment, &c.—An agreement has been entered into between the Officers of the Union and Mr. Organ, and a new agreement in the case of Mr. James; but the Executive have been unable to enter into a similar agreement with the General Secretary, because of his appointment by Conference direct. On the suggestion of the General Secretary, the Executive have prepared draft rules dealing with conditions of appointment and withdrawal in regard to the Secretaryship, and these they submit for the approval of Conference.

Clerical Work of the Office.—The considerable increase in the membership and in the operations of the Union generally has correspondingly taxed the energies of the staff, and on several occasions temporary help of a clerical nature has had to be obtained. The number of letters on the general work of the Union dealt with in the office during the year 1892 was 13,629, as compared with 11,266, in 1891, an increase of 2,363.

CONCLUSION.

The Executive cannot conclude their report without expressing sincere thanks to the officers and committees of Local Associations for most valuable services rendered to the profession and the Union. None can know so well as the Officers and Executive of the Union, who, on so many occasions, have visited Associations in different parts of the country, how zealously, ably, and unselfishly the work of the Local Associations is performed. Upon the vigorous existence of the Local Associations depends the very existence of the Union as a whole; and without their cordial co-operation and friendly trust, the work of the Executive would be rendered largely null and void. Particularly to the local secretaries the thanks of the Executive are due and paid, and the Executive earnestly express a hope that during the forthcoming year members of the Union will more than ever render to the local leaders a vigorous support and hearty co-operation. To the members of the Union generally the Executive wish to express congratulations upon the general success of the past year, and on the even brighter prospects of the year now opening. They feel that patient watching for the fruit of arduous labours long since undertaken, and for so long continued, has begun to be rewarded, and that the voice of reason and right has more than begun to be heard in the educational councils of the land. Strong in this hope and belief, the Executive claim for the Union the support of all right-thinking teachers, whether in public elementary or other schools. During the ensuing year, great problems in education will need to be ably grappled with, and the powers and resources of the Union will more than ever be called into play. From what is past, the Executive take courage and rejoice; for what lies ahead, they take heart and determination. The mission of the Union can never be regarded as accomplished. At every stage in its progress fresh duties and fresh responsibilities accrue. For what has been done, the Executive and the other members of the Union may well be thankful; but they may not rest until the whole educational system of the country is securely established upon a proper basis, and until the position of the teacher is accorded that consideration—professional, social, and pecuniary—which is its due.

THE TREASURER'S REPORT.

ONCE again it is my duty to place before Conference a Statement of the Accounts of the Union.

The Auditor, in his Report, having gone fully into various matters, I need not touch upon them here. There are, however, one or two points to which I desire to draw the attention of members.

Most of the items of expenditure are practically the same as last year, whilst in those which show an increase this is inseparable from increased membership. To this cause must be, in part, ascribed the largest item of increase—that of £145 in the cost of the Annual Report. In 1885, in order to bring our expenditure within our income, I was able to persuade the Executive to make certain omissions; but, remembering the very strong expressions of disapproval with which the Report of that year was received, I do not see how this expenditure can be curtailed, especially as it is very necessary to have a compendious record of each year's transactions. At the same time I fail to see the necessity for distributing over 400 miles of paper, closely printed on both sides, with names which can be of interest to few save the individuals concerned. By the omission of the members' names a substantial saving might be effected, but only after the current year, as it would need an alteration of Rule 36.

Taking the Balance Sheet of the General Fund, it will be seen that we are £137 more to the bad than at the end of 1891.

Turning to the Legal Assistance Fund, the whole of the expenditure here shows increased usefulness, and, although the actual law costs are less than in 1891, this was only to be expected, for, as I pointed out last year, the costs then were abnormally large in consequence of paying to date a very considerable sum on account of actions then in progress. The amount now shown fairly represents the costs incurred and paid in 1892.

The Parliamentary Fund Statement and Balance Sheet speak for themselves.

At the present moment the last two accounts show a considerable balance in hand, which, before Conference meets, will, I hope, be advantageously invested.

My thanks are again due to the Officers of the Local Associations for their zeal and energy in collecting individual subscriptions, and, knowing by experience the difficulty of the task, I feel sure they will consider my sincere thanks for their aid something more than formal words.

THE AUDITOR'S REPORT.

14th February, 1893.

TO THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF THE NATIONAL UNION OF TEACHERS.

GENTLEMEN,—In accordance with Rule 29 I have to make a report to be submitted at the Annual Conference.

My certificate, as appended to the accounts, sets forth in my opinion all that comes within the limits of the duties of an Auditor, the disposal of the various funds being outside my province.

It will be seen that the expenditure on the General Fund, as in the year preceding, is slightly in excess of the income, but such expenditure includes £42 8s. paid for commission earned in 1891, which should have been included in the previous year's accounts.

The outstanding commission for 1892 has now been treated as a liability.
The excess of expenditure over income is made up as follows:—

The other portions of the accounts scarcely require detailed explanation.
The books have been, as hitherto, carefully and correctly kept.

I am, yours faithfully,

SPECIAL REPORTS.

I.—ELECTION OF EXECUTIVE—ELECTORAL DISTRICTS.

At the Leeds Conference, 1892, the following resolution was adopted;—

“Seeing that the principle of Electoral Districts has been twice confirmed, this Conference regrets that the outgoing Executive has not submitted to the Associations a scheme which would carry that principle into effect, and it hereby requests the new Executive to prepare a scheme and submit it to the Associations by October next.”

The Executive at their first meeting referred the Resolution to the Organisation Committee for consideration and report. On the recommendation of that Committee the Executive appointed a Special Committee, consisting of the officers, with Messrs. Baldwin, Ellery, Grey, Jenkins, John, Macnamara, and Staines to prepare a scheme of electoral districts, and to report direct to the Executive.

The Special Committee met on June 17th and 18th, when they agreed to take as their basis for consideration the scheme suggested by Mr. Bowden and reported to the last Conference. As a result of their deliberations the Committee submitted a scheme, which was adopted by the Executive on July 2nd in the form appended to this report.

The Committee also reported to the Executive additional schemes submitted by Messrs. Jenkins and Macnamara, which it was agreed to forward to the Associations as a matter of information, together with the scheme adopted by the Executive.

The Executive, in accordance with the instruction from Conference, submitted the scheme to the local associations, with the following questions:—

1. Number of members in favour of the scheme of electoral districts suggested by the Executive.
2. Number of members against the scheme of electoral districts suggested by the Executive.

3. Number of members who prefer the scheme suggested by Mr. T. J. Macnamara.
4. Number of members who prefer the scheme suggested by Mr. J. S. Jenkins.
5. What modifications (if any) do the Association desire in the scheme preferred by them?

The Associations were requested to report the result of their consideration of the question by the end of the year.

At the meeting of the Executive on February 4th the following report on the replies was submitted, but the consideration of the matter was postponed until March :—

Number of Associations voting, 169.

Number of Associations voting according to the form supplied, 143.

Number of members present at the meetings of the 143 Associations, 2963.

NOTES.

NOTE (a). Twenty-nine Associations (twelve of which are accounted for in the votes against the Executive Scheme), have, by formal resolutions affirmed preference for the existing method of electing the Executive.

NOTE (b). A large Metropolitan Association has resolved, by the unanimous vote of 78 members present :—

“That this Association, while accepting the scheme suggested by the Executive so far as Districts 1 to 20 are concerned, is of opinion that the Metropolis should be treated on similar lines to the Provinces, and be divided into ‘one Member Districts,’ and they respectfully submit such a scheme for consideration.”

NOTE (c). An Association in Wales has resolved :—

“That no scheme of Electoral Districts should be acceptable to Wales that does not divide Wales into two Districts, each to be represented by one member.”

NOTE (d). Another Association in Wales has resolved unanimously :—

“That this Association is dissatisfied with the detail of each of the three schemes propounded, and thinks that the schemes should be referred back to their formulators for reconsideration.

The above report and summary of voting represents the voting of Associations upon this question as clearly as the somewhat confused issue in some of the returns permit. Confining attention now to the 143 Associations whose votes are recorded numerically according to the form adopted by the Executive, the following resolutions, suggestions, and hints, are to be observed :—

- That London be divided into single member constituencies (Associations affirming this, 2).
- That Local Supervisors be appointed as in the scheme suggested by Mr. Jenkins (1 Association).
- That Kent be separated from Middlesex, and be connected with ex-Metropolitan Surrey (1 Association).
- That the present scheme of forming District Unions be encouraged (1 Association).
- That Members of the Executive be resident in the district they represent (2 Associations).
- That the Associations in favour of the scheme of Electoral Districts leave the details to the Executive (1 Association).
- That the cumulative system of voting be adopted (1 Association).
- That Electoral Districts be re-arranged at fixed periods of, say, five years (1 Association).
- That Assistant Supervisors be appointed in each district by the Executive, and that, in the selection of Assistant Supervisors the wishes of the Associations in the district should be consulted (2 Associations).
- That Wales should be divided into two districts with one member each (5 Associations).
- That voting should be by ballot (4 Associations).
- That local secretaries should be appointed Supervisors each in his own district (1 Association).
- An Association at which eleven members were present, ten of whom voted in favour of Mr. Macnamara's scheme, and one in favour of Mr. Jenkins' scheme, resolved as follows:—
- “That the elective powers proposed under Mr. Macnamara's scheme be struck out, and that the present method of the election of the Executive be adhered to.”
- The districts provided in either scheme are too large to diminish the present evils of the system of voting (1 Association).
- Some scheme of Annual District Conferences should be brought into practice (2 Associations).
- Mr. Jenkins' idea of local Supervisors might be profitably included in Mr. Macnamara's three-member constituencies (1 Association).
- That Todmorden should be placed in a Yorkshire District instead of Lancashire (1 Association).
- That members retire after two years' service, one-half being elected annually (1 Association).
- The Southern Counties to have four members instead of five (1 Association).
- That local Supervisors be not paid (1 Association).
- That the Tees basin be taken as the basis of a district (1 Association).
- One Association preferring Mr. Macnamara's scheme does not pledge itself to its details, but wishes a scheme drawn up on that basis. There should be a greater proportion of Districts in agricultural localities. Additional Supervisors to each district (1 Association).
- The Electoral system would be most unfair to intending candidates who would have to pay their own expenses (1 Association).
- That a district be carved out of Nos. 1 and 3 (1 Association).

Leeds, Doncaster, and Louth are incongruously grouped, as also Derbyshire and Lincolnshire (1 Association).

The Executive to be enlarged to 36 members, exclusive of officers, one-third to retire annually (1 Association).

One Association in favour of the principle of electoral districts, but finds neither of the three schemes workable.

If the district should be represented by more than one member the members should retire in rotation (1 Association).

Some form of District Councils should be established, and the Executive should consist of representatives from the District Council.

The Executive, at their meeting on March 4th, considered the above report, and resolved:—

“That this Executive, while loyally carrying out the directions of Conference in preparing a scheme of electoral districts, is firmly of opinion that the suggested change would result in injury to the Union, and hereby asks Conference to discharge the reference.”

The Executive append to this report the three schemes which were submitted to the local Associations. In order to bring the information up to date the membership of the Associations for 1892 has been included in the scheme now submitted by the Executive.

APPENDIX.

A—SCHEME SUGGESTED BY EXECUTIVE.

Principles of Scheme.—The following principles have been adopted by the Executive in the preparation of the Scheme:—

- (a) Voting power should be in proportion to numbers as far as possible, modified by character of constituency and area of district.
- (b) Executive should have power to alter, re-arrange, or create districts every three years to equalise numbers.
- (c) The President, Vice-President, Ex-President, and Treasurer should be elected members of the Executive.
- (d) The candidate must be resident in the district for which he seeks election.

Scheme for the Election of the Executive.—The Executive recommend the following as the scheme for electing the representatives of the proposed districts :—

1. The Executive shall consist of thirty-one members (including the President, Vice-President, Ex-President, and Treasurer), chosen by the electoral districts as set out in schedule.

2. The President, Vice-President, Ex-President, and Treasurer shall be selected from among the elected members of the Executive. In the districts represented by the President and Vice-President no election will take place until the representative ceases to be an officer of the Union.

3. All nominations for the Executive shall be made not later than 31st December.

4. The associations in each district shall elect in the manner hereafter set forth a representative, or representatives, to serve on the Executive.

5. Voting papers for each district shall be prepared by the Secretary, and sufficient copies for all members shall be issued to local associations not later than 15th January. The poll shall be taken at a general meeting of the associations to be held on the last Saturday in January. At least seven days' notice stating the business of the meeting shall be given by the local secretary to every person who was a member of the association for the previous year. With the notice of such meeting shall be sent a copy of the voting paper.

6. The president (or in his absence the vice-president or duly elected chairman) of the association shall be the presiding officer, and the poll shall remain open two hours after the time fixed for the commencement of the meeting. Members may hand their papers to the presiding officer at the meeting, or may forward them to the secretary of the association previous to the election. At the close of the poll the presiding officer (or scrutineers appointed by the meeting), shall ascertain the number of votes for each candidate, and place such number opposite each candidate's name on the official return.

7. The official return from each association shall be signed by the presiding officer, and by the secretary of the local association, and shall be forwarded, together with the voting papers, to the Secretary of the Union within forty-eight hours.

8. The votes sent up by the associations shall be totalled by scrutineers appointed by the Executive at their first meeting in January, and the result of the election shall be published in the organ of the Union immediately it is known, and shall be reported to the next Conference.

[NOTE.—The election of officers to be conducted in the same manner as at present, but the voting papers to be issued to individual members by 15th March, and returned to the General Secretary not later than 20th March. The nominations for officers to be made not later than 31st December.]

B.—A SCHEME OF “THREE-MEMBER” CONSTITUENCIES.

SUGGESTED BY MR. T. J. MACNAMARA.

The object of this scheme is mainly to call into existence “District” Unions. Each territorial union would have its own officials, including probably a paid secretary, and, say, three local representatives to the Central Executive. The “District” Union so created would hold annual Conferences on educational and professional topics, to which each local association would send accredited delegates. Its Executive Committee would be competent to deal with much of the matter—especially in respect of local union organisation, the administration of the education of the district both by Imperial and local authorities, and the general development of local educational movements, now engaging much valuable time at 71, Russell-square. It would be in a position to sift out the questions coming before it, and decide which should be relegated to London for treatment. The Annual District Conference would bring about a similar result as affecting the Annual Union Conference. The result would be, I may fairly contend, that both the Central Executive and the Annual Union Conference would find themselves necessarily engaged upon the discussion rather of a few subjects of first-class educational and professional movement than of a great variety of topics, many of which must from the nature of things as at present constituted be of comparative insignificance.

I am not wedded to the “three-member” division of the country now suggested. I am willing to see the country divided into districts, each represented by four or even five Central Executive members.

But I submit this scheme as an alternative to the “one-member” scheme, because it breaks down decentralisation without going the length of completely isolating the teachers of any particular district—an objection brought with considerable force against the “one-member” scheme.

The following is a suggested schedule of districts for this scheme. It is capable of improvement, and if seriously entertained would no doubt receive suitable emendation at the hands of the members of the local associations.

I have taken a membership of 550, roughly, as at present, to constitute the right to a representation of one seat at the Executive. Devon, Cornwall, Somerset, and Dorset, have been suggested as a two-member constituency, because the geographical difficulties of the locality make it impossible to include so large an area the membership of which would entitle to three members. To London has been allocated ten members, in accordance with the resolution of the Cardiff Conference. It is a detail for later consideration as to whether or not London should be still further sub-divided. My division of the country into twelve districts would give an Executive of thirty-six, with about one-third or rather more from the metropolis and the home counties.

I admit again that in detailed particulars the division is probably not the best that an extensive local knowledge would have suggested. But that is a matter capable of easy remedy. All I want is that the Executive should seriously consider this District Union form of electoral divisions.

C.—A SCHEME FOR ELECTORAL DISTRICTS.

SUGGESTED BY MR. J. S. JENKINS.

To the Members of the Local Associations of the N.U.T.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Unless I conscientiously and heartily believed that a large and comprehensive scheme of Electoral Districts would accomplish results greatly to the benefit of the Union, I would be no party whatever to suggesting alterations in our constitution and method of organisation. I am, however, very dissatisfied with our present system. The scheme, therefore, which has been constructed by me, and to which I respectfully ask the close attention of every member of the N. U. T., is, in my opinion, the one best calculated to secure all the objects which the advocates of the system most earnestly desire.

(a) I have carefully compiled a table, from which you will see at a glance the scope there is for increased Union work, and also the locality where our weaknesses exist, as I have shown, not only the number of members, but also the "non-members" existing in each suggested Electoral District; and to these we should now direct our closest attention.

(b) I suggest, therefore, the utilisation of local talent in awakening, as well as keeping alive, the interest of the local branches of our Union by the appointment of prominent and able teachers living in the district as assistant supervisors, who would help the Executive member in the formation of new associations and deputising work, &c., &c., their expenses, of course, to be paid by the Central Office. This would not only be cheaper, but, in my opinion, a much more effectual plan of carrying out and extending systematic and well-organised work in each locality than we have at present.

(c) A careful study of the accompanying table will show that one Executive member has been allotted, on an average, for about 550 members of the Union—London being treated exceptionally as per resolution of Conference. But in addition to this, I place an Executive member with local supervisors in a locality where there is plenty of scope for additional work to be done; and, roughly speaking, I suggest the employment of a local assistant supervisor for every thousand, after the first thousand non-members found in each Electoral District. How can one man do the whole of the work? It is utterly impossible, hence our growth is comparatively so slow.

(d) The districts in my scheme have also been formed with due regard to geographical unity and railway facility, two highly important factors to be considered, so that the cost of visiting associations would be small, and there is no reason whatever why each district should not have its own organisation for combined meetings, annual meetings, conferences on prominent educational topics, and local work of other and varied kinds.

(e) London has ten Executive members given to it in accordance with a resolution of Conference, and my scheme provides for additional help for committee work from the home counties at a minimum cost. But if London is to have ten members, it is only fair and just that the number of Executive members for the provinces should be increased. This follows as a necessary corollary, not only of increased membership, but also in order to give them their due and rightful share in moulding and directing the policy of the National Union.

(f) My scheme, therefore, provides for thirty-three Executive members, whom I suggest should live in the district they seek to represent, together with at least twenty-two local supervisors.

It will thus be seen that I provide for thirty-one officially recognised extra workers of the Union. I suggest that the cost of each assistant local supervisor shall not exceed £25 per annum, at any rate for the first year or two. But even with this expenditure, after having gone carefully into the figures with the kind assistance of our Treasurer, I have no hesitation whatever in stating that the total cost of working my suggested scheme will not be greater, but rather less, than the total amount spent last year upon similar work, viz:—£2885 (see balance-sheet, Easter, 1892). And if only we assume, as I think we may most fairly do, that each new additional Executive member and local associated supervisor will be able, by careful and systematic work, to increase the membership in his own district by 100, we shall not only have a grand total increase of 3,000 members in the course of a year after the scheme has got into working order, but also an augmentation of the Funds of our Union to the tune of nearly £1,000.

I have the honour to remain,

Faithfully and sincerely yours,

J. S. JENKINS.

PAPERS READ AT CONFERENCE.

I.—SUPERANNUATION.

By MR. T. B. ELLERY (Member of Executive and Chairman of Superannuation Committee.)

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—The Executive having done me the honour of requesting me to read a paper on Superannuation this morning, I make no apology for inflicting a few facts and figures upon you. My first greeting is one of congratulation. By patient waiting, by consistent agitation on proper lines, by educating the House of Commons, the press and the country on this all-important subject we have succeeded at last. Englishmen are slow to be convinced, but once they see that injustice has been done, and that a change would be beneficial to the community at large as well as to the individual who is supposed to be most directly concerned, half the battle is over. So it has been with this educational problem, Superannuation. For years the question was looked upon as one in which teachers alone were interested, and on behalf of which, therefore, no public support—much less enthusiasm—could be expected. It is true, and we have never denied the fact, that it is partly a teacher's question, and so far we may be accused of selfishness; but we have insisted all along that

IT IS AT THE SAME TIME A NATIONAL QUESTION.

This has been the keynote of our agitation for many years past, and difficult as has been the fight, anxious as has been the time of watching and of organising, we have never lost heart, but we have worked on day and night, in season and out of season, confident that, sooner or later, the House of Commons would realise the importance of the question, would see that our position is sound, and would recognise that whatever sum of money might be necessary to float a Superannuation Scheme, the country would gain immensely by the change. The battle has been fought and won. We are here to-day to congratulate the House of Commons, the Government, and the country upon the happy change which has been effected, upon the almost unanimous desire that national education shall be improved, and that side by side with this, justice shall be done to a body of men and women whose work the general public is only now beginning to understand and appreciate, and upon the fact that it is admitted there must be no further delay in accomplishing so necessary a reform.

My first word at the opening of this paper was one of congratulation. My second is one of great sorrow. Our deeply loved and honoured friends, the two men who championed the cause from the first, and who continued to champion it, often when many would have given up the fight in despair—Thomas Edmund Heller and John William Grove—are absent from us. The former has retired from active work owing to long and serious illness, though we rejoice that he is still spared to us; the other entered into rest before the hour of victory. Ladies and Gentlemen, no teacher speaking on Superannuation would be doing his duty if he did not refer to these gallant leaders, and pay a tribute to their heroic struggle and their personal worth.

It will be impossible for me in the limits of this paper to give the history of the question and to trace the growth of public opinion as fully as I should like to do. This has been done so often that, perhaps, it is hardly necessary; still I feel this is a part of the subject which must not be wholly ignored even now, and therefore, in as few words as possible, and in the briefest manner, let us be "looking backward." In this branch of my subject, as in others, I shall use the arguments—ay, the very language—of Members of Parliament and others, whose words must have weight. Time was, and that not so very long ago, when this would have been impossible. Our "facts" were disputed and our "arguments" ignored. Now then, Ladies and Gentlemen, listen for a moment to Sir F. Milner, M.P. (House of Commons Debate on Superannuation, 24th February, 1893): "I do not think that sufficient attention has been paid to the class of teachers who were appointed before the year 1851. Their lot is an especially hard one, and they have been, I think, badly treated by Parliament. The facts I am about to bring forward to an adequate pension at the hands of the Government. In 1846 the Committee of the Council on Education passed a resolution to the effect that it was expedient to give pensions to teachers after a certain length of service, and, subsequently it was also resolved that a retiring pension, not exceeding two-thirds of his annual income, should be granted to a school teacher incapacitated by age or infirmity from continuing the duties of his profession. The Minute contained a direct promise of a certain pension to those teachers at that time. It was offered to them as a direct inducement. The object and purpose of this Pension Minute was clearly set forth in an official letter, dated March 11th, 1847, as follows:—"My Lords being desirous to offer the strongest inducement to schoolmasters and schoolmistresses to render long and efficient services to the public, have opened the prospect of a retiring pension to this class of teachers." Pensions and other direct benefits were, by their Lordships' orders, held out to the best qualified scholars as an inducement to become pupil teachers. In the same Minutes we find their Lordships giving special instructions to their Inspectors, during their ordinary tour of inspection, to inform the teachers and scholars of this offer of a distinct pension. These Pension Minutes were adopted in Parliament, and passed by the House of Commons by 372 votes to 47, and passed in the House of Lords without any division. Copies of each Minute were also circulated, and broadsheets were conspicuously exposed in parts of the schools where parents and scholars could read them. These broadsheets offered Queen's Scholarships to the most successful teachers and appointments in the public service to the less successful. Thus it actually came to this, that the less qualified teachers—those that did not succeed in obtaining appointments as schoolmasters and schoolmistresses—were sure of a pension when they got appointments in the civil service, and were incapacitated for the work of teaching. Is it reasonable to suppose that those who did not qualify for the post of teachers, were sure to receive a pension, while those who did qualify and proved themselves capable of taking that position were not to receive any pension? No doubt it was not exceeding two-thirds of the salary of the teachers; no doubt that was meant as a definite promise to them, and that teachers then appointed undertook their offices with the sure and certain hope that when the time came and they could no longer continue their work, they would receive an adequate pension as a reward for their long and arduous service. It was a GROSS BREACH OF FAITH on the part of Parliament towards those teachers. I submit, at any rate, that the alterations made in 1851 could not possibly affect the status of teachers appointed before 1851. There is a remarkable fact, that for several years after that date, the Pension Minute of 1846 continued to be sent out to all pupil teachers, and no intimation was given that the objects and intentions of that Minute were not going to be carried out by the Government."

PROVE THAT THOSE TEACHERS HAVE AN ABSOLUTE CLAIM

I will not add a word of my own to this clear statement of facts except to say that since 1870 the N. U. T. has, times out of number, told the same story in almost the same language. The "gross breach of faith" consisted in, first of all limiting the number and amount of the pensions awarded, and finally, in 1862, in withdrawing altogether the Pension Minute from the Code. In connection with this, it is curious to observe that Mr. Robert Lowe, who was responsible for this breach of faith, held the view, and stated it in evidence, that "Superannuation" (for Civil Servants, mark you, not for teachers) "was extremely economical"! For thirteen years the Government coolly pocketed the money due to teachers, nor could any representation move it until Lord Sandon took the matter in hand. The Pension Minutes were then reinserted in the Code.

Since that time various concessions have been wrung from the Government of the day, the most important, perhaps, being the right to a pension, of all teachers from 1846 to 1851. All these old servants come on the unlimited fund and enjoy princely allowances of £20, £25, and £30 per annum!

Those dating from 1851 to 1862 have to take their chance and wait their turn for a share of the annual grant. Hear what Mr. Kekewich had to tell the Select Committee of the House of Commons in 1892:—

"At the present time all our £6,500 is absorbed, therefore we can only award pensions for death vacancies; at Ladyday, 1891, we had eight pensions to award and 75 applicants, and at Michaelmas, 1891, we had four pensions and 75 applicants."

As an immediate result of the debate in the House on 24th February last, the grant will be increased to £10,580 for England and Wales; but I put it to you, how will this in any way meet the case? We are, of course, grateful for even this concession; it is an admission that our contention is right, but it does not go far enough. What the Government might well have done with the House of Commons at its back (as was plainly seen in the debate) was to allow all teachers between 1846 and 1862 to come on the unlimited fund.

And I ask the public, is this too great a demand? £6,500 per annum was withheld from the teachers for the 13 years—1862 to 1875. I put this (at compound interest) side by side with the loss involved by the action of the 1851 Minute and I am assessing the amount at an absurdly low figure when I say we have been robbed of a quarter of a million of money. The Government now proposes to pay an additional £5,000 per annum, and this is to run until the establishment of a general scheme—say one year or two—a total payment, at the outside, of £10,000. A very simple arithmetical calculation shows that this is honouring the debt to the tune of about 9½d. in the £.

I need hardly tell you that many, many cases of hardship, suffering, and want come before us in the course of a year. Some of you remember the case of the aged couple who had to give up school because they were past work. For a time they were maintained by the good vicar of the parish, but in the end that help failed and the workhouse was the next step. On the day preceding that on which these aged people were to enter the pauper's home the poor wife, maddened at the prospect, committed suicide.

Let one of the candidates for our own Benevolent Society annuities speak. In a letter to myself he says, "My wife and I are working in school for less than £50 a year, I am 67, and I feel unable to continue the work."

Many of these cases could I give you, but time forbids. Mr. Campbell-Bannerman in introducing the Army Estimates, on Saturday, 11th March, of this year, referred to the veterans who had served in campaigns before 1860, and said he hoped to make arrangements for a very large increase of the money voted for pensions during the coming year. These pensions, he said, were given in the interests of the army, because it was injurious to the interests of the army, and especially of recruiting, that men should be found loafing about the streets in a destitute condition, and so bringing disgrace upon the service.

Ladies and Gentlemen, we have in our ranks educational veterans who fought before 1860, and we claim consideration for each and every one of them.

I pass on to consider

A SUPERANNUATION SCHEME FOR ALL TEACHERS,

and in endeavouring to show why such a scheme should be established I again quote the words of others; I might be looked upon as an interested party, but this cannot be said of those whose opinions I venture to present to you this morning.

And, first, let us see what the House of Commons has to say of teachers as a body (Superannuation Debate, 24th February, 1893), "These men and women form one of the most useful, meritorious, and interesting classes in the community."—Sir R. Temple.

"They form a body of men and women second to none in the public service."—Mr. Mather.

"I believe there are no public servants more deserving of consideration and encouragement."—Chancellor of the Exchequer.

And so on throughout the whole debate.

If this estimate of character and service is accepted, there is at once an argument for Superannuation. But hon. members went further. The House was informed by those who spoke—

1. That the salaries of teachers are very low, that 50 per cent. of the incomes of the men fall below £100 a year, and those of the women are even less. Sir A. Rollit—Let me give you the correct figures, taken from the latest Blue Book:—

SALARIES.

CERTIFICATED MASTERS.		*CERTIFICATED MISTRESSES.
Under £50	270	Under £40	1,186
" £75	8,388	" £45	2,798
" £100	7,681	" £50	4,396
42 per cent. receive less than £100 a year.		" £75	15,845
		58 per cent. receive less than £75 a year. Only 20 in 100 receive £100 or more."

2. That the Education Department for England and Wales is one of the few Departments that has gone on up to the present date, destitute of a superannuation system.—Sir R. Temple. Here let me say that for officers other than teachers the Education Department has a superannuation scheme.

3. That France, Germany, Switzerland, and the United States have a scheme in force.—Mr. Mather.—Here I would say in passing that all European countries with but three exceptions (Great Britain being one) make this provision.

4. That it is imperative the teacher's calling should be made socially honourable and dignified.—Mr. Mather.

5. That in various branches of the civil service, in railway establishments, and in private concerns systems of pensions and superannuation are becoming increasingly prevalent.—Sir F. Powell.

6. That teachers, under present arrangements, must struggle on until the last, and in many cases by so doing injure their schools, or they must retire without any provision for themselves and those who are dependent upon them.—Sir F. Powell.

7. That by considering carefully the welfare of the teachers as well as the welfare of the child, we fulfil that educational duty which is always cast upon us—viz., to give to all the children an educational outfit as complete and as effective as we possibly can.—Mr. Acland.

8. That we have handsomely pensioned constables and civil servants, and we ought to give a pension also to these hard-working servants of the public, the teachers of our children.—Mr. Lawrence.

Also, with regard to the police we make provision for those who are engaged in the detection of crime and in bringing criminals to punishment, but in the present case we seek to reward those whose instruction tends to prevent a very large amount of crime in the country. In this matter parsimony is not economy.—Sir A. Rollit.

9. That if it was necessary in 1846 to deal adequately and generously with teachers, considering the increase of the strain put on teachers now, it is tenfold more incumbent upon us to frame some scheme or other.—Sir W. Hart-Dyke.

* Without going into these figures just imagine nearly 1,200 certificated mistresses working for less than 16s. a week! and having to live and present a decent appearance. The writer of the leader in one of the principal London dailies (7th March, 1893) could not have had these figures before him when he wrote: "No sensible man believes now in starvation wages nor in wages driven down by competition to the starvation point."

10. That the only way of getting rid of servants who have done good work but are somewhat past service is to have a pension scheme.—Mr. Courtney.

There are, of course, other arguments familiar to all of you, but I have contented myself with introducing a few of those used by honourable members in the course of the debate.

I refrain from giving you opinions of other public men—the late Cardinal Manning, the Right Hon. J. Chamberlain, Mr. J. R. Diggle, Chairman of the London School Board, and scores of others, for there is no time this morning. Nor do I stop to give you the opinions of the Press—opinions almost without exception in favour of the movement. We find in the Report of the Royal Commission on Education a strong recommendation to the Government to establish a scheme; there is a still stronger recommendation in the Report of the Select Committee of the House of Commons on Superannuation, and our recent Memorial on the subject was signed by the following:—The Archbishop of Canterbury, 14 Bishops, 102 Members of Parliament, 35 School Boards, 1,251 members of School Boards, 6,256 Managers of Schools, 84 Inspectors, 16,205 other persons interested in education, and about 37,000 teachers, students in training colleges, and members of staff of training colleges.

All this goes to show that Lord Cottesloe was right when, as one of a deputation of Peers to the Education Department in 1873, he said, "You will be compelled to adopt a system of retiring pensions, because public opinion will compel you, and the exigencies of the service will demand it."

THE REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE (1892).

For some time past many of you have been busily engaged in studying the report of the Select Committee, and the tables prepared by the Actuary, Mr. Sutton.

Briefly let me put before you the chief proposals of that Committee, with the modifications suggested by ourselves. We cannot be too grateful to the members of that Committee for their labours and for their evident desire to deal honourably with the teaching profession, but we cannot conceal the fact that in several particulars their recommendations are altogether inadequate. The figures presented by the Actuary seem to have frightened the honourable members, and consequently the scheme suggested is certainly not the best that might have been devised.

It is not necessary for me at this stage to explain the tables prepared by Mr. Sutton, or to enter into any minute and critical examination of them. Our purpose will be served by discussing the broad principles upon which the Select Committee Scheme is based.

The chief features of that Scheme are—(1) Government management; (2) Government subsidy; (3) Teachers' contributions. Teachers are to pay annually a minimum of £2 (women), and £3 (men), the option being given of contributing additional sums, for which there will be corresponding benefits. (The total pension in no case to exceed £100.) Sir Richard Temple told the House of Commons that the total of these contributions would reach £150,000 to £175,000 yearly, and this estimate is a low one. The suggested Government subsidy for existing teachers for years of service up to the passing of the Act is £1 per annum for those who have completed thirty years of service, 15s. for those who have served less than thirty, but more than ten. For years of service yet to be rendered the subsidy is to be 10s. Those who have not served more than ten years are to be classed as future teachers, for all of whom a subsidy of 10s. per annum is suggested.

The retiring age for teachers now at work, is fixed as follows:—

	Men.		Women.
Compulsory .....	65	.. ..	60
Optional.....	From 60 to 65	.. ..	From 55 to 60—of course, on reduced superannuation. But for the extremely low pension at that age I should put in a plea for women, especially for those working in rural schools—in hundreds of cases with absolutely no help, that they might be allowed to retire at 50. Perhaps, after all, something will be done.

After ten years' service, teachers leaving in good health can withdraw a portion of their contributions, this to be calculated according to the table prepared by the Actuary.

If out of employment, teachers may contribute for a period not exceeding three years, but they are not to receive the State subsidy in respect to the period of absence. There is no provision for those who break down in the service before reaching the pension age. Such teachers, indeed, would not be allowed the privilege accorded to those who retire in good health, after ten years' service. We are aware, of course, that this is in strict accordance with the principles which govern and must govern Pension schemes, so that it would be the merest folly to attack the tables. Our policy is to make out a case for a subsidy which is beyond that contemplated by the Select Committee.

One other point is the Return of Premiums, and here we suggest that the Government should make provision, by means of an optional ancillary scheme, for the return of premiums in the event of death; otherwise, I fear, in many cases, widows and orphans will be left to the tender mercies of the world.

I now propose to offer a few remarks on the points I have raised, and,

FIRST, WE MUST SEE THAT SUPERANNUATION IS ACCOMPANIED BY REASONABLE SECURITY OF TENURE.

Mr. Courtney put the case well on 24th February, when he said to the House "I must call attention to one consequence of this action of the State in recognising teachers as public servants in a manner it has never done before. We are going to award, as a matter of right, pensions to these persons. Those who pay the piper have some right to call the tune; and if you are going to give pensions to the teachers of your public elementary schools, and to recognise them as State servants, it will be impossible that they should hold their offices wholly dependent upon the will of the managers, or even of the School Boards, because your scheme of pensions might be defeated by an arbitrary act on their part. If then you are going to recognise these persons, either as State servants or as public servants, you must be prepared to give the Education Department some kind of hold on the tenure of their office. That would be a necessary consequence."

On this point we are quite clear. Before teachers are called upon to invest in this scheme, they must be assured that so long as they do their duty in their schools, and act as honourable men and women, so long shall they be secure in their office.

Without this provision, superannuation will not be worth the paper upon which the provisions of the Bill are printed. We want, too, an assurance from the Government that the teacher's certificate shall be held to cover the teaching of all the obligatory subjects of the Code, so that once having qualified for the certificate he shall be secure, no matter what changes may be made in the Code. Our past experience teaches us we must be extremely careful in this matter.

Looking now at the proposed scheme, we find that all the benefits are clearly set out by Mr. Sutton. He shows what provision may be secured (at 60 and 65) by the investment of £1 at any age, and it is, therefore, only a matter of calculation to find what the pension will be, whatever the sum invested. For example—a contribution of £1 a year, beginning at the age of 20, and continuing to 65, will secure a pension of £18 17s. (at age 60 this falls to £11 2s.). Beginning at 30, a teacher may, by similar payments, secure a pension of £6 9s. at 60, and £11 4s. at 65. Beginning at 40, he will receive £3 6s. at the earlier age, and £6 2s. at the later, and this, remember, is for a payment of £1 per annum.

Taking the suggested premium for men (£3) we find that, beginning at thirty years of age and continuing the yearly payment until he is sixty-five, a man can secure a pension of £33 12s. Beginning at forty, the teacher will receive £18 6s., and beginning at 50, £8 2s. Of course these amounts may be increased by additional contributions.

And here it is well to notice that all these benefits are to be paid for entirely by the teachers. No Government subsidy is included. I felt it my duty to compare these benefits with those offered by existing life assurance societies, and, as I have reported before,

THEY ARE NOT SUPERIOR TO THOSE OFFERED BY THE BEST OF THESE SOCIETIES.

We have, therefore, to examine the proposed Government subsidy, and in connection with this I would say, as I stated to Mr. Acland at the Education Department a short time ago, we cannot look upon the payment of any smaller amount than £1 per annum for back years of service for all existing teachers as an equitable arrangement.

We contend that £1 a year for all future years of service, too, would be by no means a large return on the part of the Government for the work done; but, failing that, we have laid it down, respectfully but firmly, that 10s. is the minimum we can advise teachers to accept. I have made some calculations based upon the figures of the Actuary, and I find that the present value of a pension of £1 per annum for years of service yet to be rendered as well as for back years of service (for existing teachers) would be 5½ millions, males retiring at sixty-five and females at sixty; or, if the ages are taken at sixty and fifty-five respectively, 7½ millions—surely no great demand, especially when we consider that those now at work, many of them, have been engaged in laying the foundations of national education. They undertook the work when there was by no means a healthy public spirit on the question and when the difficulties and hardships were almost appalling.

The report of the Committee says:—"In short, the Superannuation Scheme for future teachers would cost the State an annual sum, small at first, but gradually rising in about thirty-five years to £829,000 a year, and would continue stationary at that sum; and £243,395 for thirty years during the early part of the coming century for existing teachers, and would then disappear." An increase of 5 to 10 per cent. on the Education Estimate for the next thirty years would be sufficient to meet this, and after that a 5 per cent. increase only would suffice to provide the allowances suggested by the Select Committee.

On the 3rd December last, Mr. Acland put the total cost at £12,000,000 for future teachers, and £10,000,000 for existing teachers. (The Actuary estimates the present value at less than £4,000,000 for the latter.)

On the 24th February, 1893, the Chancellor of the Exchequer ran these figures up to £25,000,000, and yet the House was not frightened. The Government, in fact, chose to take the whole charge in the case of existing teachers for a generation, and in the case of future teachers for all time. Sir F. Powell said:—"The country ought not to be frightened by even that large figure of £25,000,000. The Education Grant is now upwards of £6,000,000 per year, and to add to it an amount the capital of which is £25,000,000, is not a significant or appalling increase." Sir W. Hart-Dyke said:—"The sum of money first and last that is to be spent in securing this Superannuation may be a large one, but when we compare the enormous amount we are now expending on our elementary education, I hope we shall not be niggardly in meeting these claims put forward on behalf of a most deserving class."

In leaving this branch of my subject, I would say that this sum of £20,000,000 or £25,000,000 (remember it is not for one year or for a generation only, but for all time) is, after all,

ONLY EQUAL TO THE ARMY ESTIMATES FOR ONE YEAR.

And now I come to the question of what is to be done for those who break down in the service. Under the Committee's Scheme, there is, as we have seen, absolutely no provision. Yet public men are all agreed that this is a most important and indeed an essential feature of any scheme. Taking one expression of opinion only, I give you the words of the Bishop of Salisbury:—

"If teachers break down they ought to be able to withdraw not only their own contributions but a proportionate part of the pensions." In our evidence before the Select Committee we pointed out that some provision ought to be made, and the honourable members agreed that we had made out a case. Sir Richard Temple, speaking on this point in the Peckham Public Hall, on 14th May last, said: Any Actuary would tell them that there were great difficulties in the way of making calculations about a break-down system. Nevertheless under certain limitations a sound and certain plan could be devised; he would not say that it was perfect, or that it would meet every possible case. It was rough and ready, but it would work, and it was financially safe, and could be calculated to the last farthing. Therefore he hoped they would be able to recommend some provision in cases of break-down. And in their report the Select Committee said: "It cannot be doubted that great hardship would arise in many cases if no such provision be made. If, for example, teachers having served say thirty years, became physically incapable at the age of fifty, and after having subscribed to the fund for thirty years, were compelled to retire leaving behind them the whole of their subscriptions for superannuation, without any right to claim any pension or gratuity whatever, the case would, by universal consent, be deemed one of extreme hardship." Yet in spite of this, Sir Richard and his colleagues hesitated to include in their report to the House any scheme which would meet the admitted hardship. The House, however, did not shrink from a consideration of the subject. Let three or four of the honourable and right honourable members speak for themselves:—"Something must be done—my colleagues and I were of the same opinion" (Sir R. Temple), "I hope the Vice-President will offer some suggestions respecting these melancholy cases of breakdown" (Mr. Brodrick). "I confess, from all I have seen of the working of our small Pension Scheme, that it is almost impossible to leave out of sight the question of 'breakdowns.' If a man, who has paid into the Pension Fund from the age of twenty-three, break down at fifty-nine, just one year before the pensionable age, is he to get nothing at all?" (Mr. Acland) "Above all I hope he will deal generously with those who have broken down from overwork and ill-health" (Sir W. Hart-Dyke).

In connection with this matter I may say that no information is at hand as to the number of cases of breakdown in our schools, and it says much for the good feeling of Mr. Acland and Mr. Kekewich that they have agreed to send out a form of inquiry, the answers to which should assist the Department in dealing with the question. These returns are to be tabulated at the wish of the Department at the N. U. T. Offices—another proof of the confidence reposed in the Union, and of the relations existing between the officials and ourselves.

Mr. Sutton, in his evidence before the Select Committee, suggested, as a way of meeting the difficulty, an additional payment of 5s. per annum from each teacher; but surely, as the breakdown occurs through the strain of the school work, the State should supply the whole of the fund. In France, for example Mr. Matthew Arnold says:—

"EXCEPTIONAL PENSIONS ARE GRANTED IN CASES OF PREMATURE

and "in Prussia, a teacher can claim a pension after ten years' service if a breakdown of health forces him to retire. His pension is then fifteen-sixtieths of his salary. Speaking of France and Prussia leads me on to say a very few words as to Pension Schemes for teachers in foreign countries, in several of which provision is also made for widows and orphans.

In Austria, after fifteen years' service, a teacher receives an annuity equal to one-third of his salary, and, after 40 years retires upon a pension of full salary.

In Belgium, a teacher receives one fifty-fifth of the average of the last five years' salary for each year of service up to two-thirds of salary. As a matter of fact, the pension may reach £200.

In Holland the conditions are somewhat similar.

Italy rewards its teachers with a pension equal to the average salary of the last five years. In France the pension can be claimed at the age of 55, after 25 years of service, is calculated on an average of the six years when the salary was highest, and can in no case exceed three-fourths of that average salary. The law of 1876 permits teachers to count as years of service the years passed at the Normal School after the age of 20.

In Prussia, the arrangement runs as follows:—Within the first ten years, fifteen-sixtieths of salary. For each year after add one-sixtieth to a maximum of forty-five-sixtieths.

In Denmark the pension is calculated on an increasing scale, the maximum being two-thirds of the pay fixed for the particular post. In order to be entitled to this maximum rate of pension, a teacher must have been in the service for 29 years. The official letter which gives us this information goes on to say:—"It has not been found that this scheme tends to keep inferior teachers in the service, this danger being, it is thought, in a great measure obviated by rendering pension obtainable only after ten years of service."

I have also an official letter with reference to the system in force in Sweden.

"As in the rules of the pension institution no limit of age has been fixed when a school teacher is obliged to resign, and thus receives a pension, a certain inclination has appeared in some instances of teachers serving longer than can be considered compatible with the proper discharge of their duties. But no inconvenience worth mentioning has, however, arisen from this system in general." I think these official communications very fairly meet the objections raised by Mr. Aoland and others, when I was giving evidence before the Committee, that inferior teachers might be kept in the profession, and that experience went to show that teachers who would otherwise inevitably have retired, stayed on an extra number of years just to get to the point where the pension was due. In answer to our inquiries, we have received no information that such an evil, if it be an evil, exists to any appreciable extent. It would be quite an easy matter to obviate anything of the sort in this country; the Government has only to make the pension sufficiently high, say, at 55, to tempt teachers to give up the work. But while the proposal is to give, as Sir Richard Temple says, "only a bare pittance," the Government must not expect an ideal educational system.

Before leaving the subject of pensions, we may glance at the provisions of the Pension Bill in South Australia. After five years of subscription, a master retires upon £52 per annum, and a mistress on £39; after 10 years, £65 6s. 8d., and £46 10s.; 20 years, £92, and £61 10s.; 28 years, £113 6s. 8d., and £73 10s. 1d. respectively, after which time the woman's subscription ceases whether she retire or not, and after 38 years, £140 for masters, and £65 for their widows—38 being the maximum number of payments and £140 the maximum retiring allowance.

Coming home, let us look for a moment at the provisions of schemes at work for public servants other than teachers:

1. With Medical Certificate.

Police.—After 29 years' service  $\frac{3}{4}$  of pay.

Civil Service.—After 30 years' service  $\frac{1}{2}$  of pay.

Railway Clearing House Scale.—After 30 years' service  $\frac{1}{100}$  of pay.

" " " " 40 " "  $\frac{1}{100}$  "

2. Without Medical Certificate.

Police.—After 25 years' service with no condition of age  $\frac{3}{4}$  of pay.

Royal Irish Constabulary and Dublin Metropolitan Police.—After 25 years' Service with no condition of age  $\frac{3}{4}$  of pay.

City of London Police.—After 25 years' service, if he is not less than 50,  $\frac{3}{4}$  of pay.

Civil Service.—After ten years' service, if he is not less than 60, pension according to the length of service.

In his evidence before the Select Committee Mr. Gray stated:— "I find that an ordinary police-constable in London is subsidised to the extent of, at least, 30s. for each year of service; that a police sergeant is subsidised to the extent of £2 for each year of service at least; and an inspector with a salary of £162 a year, that is, on a level with some of our head-masters, is subsidised to the extent of £8 for each year of service, and he is only required to serve 25 years in order to earn that pension; that is, that a police constable, commencing at the age of 20 can retire at the age of 45, and enjoy that subsidy for the remainder of his life; £3 a year secures to the inspector £97 10s. I have taken Mr. Sutton's calculations, and I find that the difference that has to be made up to that man is, at least, £78 per annum, or at the rate of £3 for each year of service during the 25 years."

The following comparison has been drawn between Mr. Sutton's figures and those of the Great Western Railway Company, the assumption being that the commencing age is 35 and that men pay £5 per annum:—

Scheme.	Age.	Annual Payment.	Pension at 60.	Pension before 60.	On leaving Service.
Mr. Sutton.	35	£5	£23	0	Some return after 10 years' service if in good health; nothing at all if not in good health.
G.W.R.	35	£5	£50	One-fiftieth of salary for each year of service.	All premiums returned.

I must not weary you with the examination of other schemes, though they ought to be considered in connection with the extremely low figures suggested for the teachers of this country. We can only hope the Government will immediately take steps to float a scheme. In the Debate in the House, to which I have so often referred, Mr. Mather said it was a question which would have to be immediately dealt with. Sir R. Paget insisted that and thus blast the hopes raised. So say we all.

In concluding this paper I venture to quote from the observations I made on 3rd December last at the Education Department when speaking in your name. "The Actuary consulted by the Select Committee has certainly taken great pains to guard the fund:—From a comparison with other schemes it would appear to us that he has erred on the side of caution. If we take, for example, the scheme of the L. & N. W. Railway Company, what do we find? That after thirty years' experience the interest upon the funded capital was more than sufficient to meet all demands, and a surplus profit of £30,000 was realised in one year, and added to the fund, which then amounted to £370,000. As a matter of fact 63 per cent. of the interest alone for that year was sufficient to meet all demands. With that experience before them the promoters of the Railway Clearing System in addition to a very liberal scheme of superannuation allowances provided that the amount of payment to members voluntarily retiring from the service shall be half of their contribution, that the amount of payment to members compelled to leave on account of ill-health before they have been members ten years shall be member's contribution and £4 per cent. simple interest, and in the event of death before Superannuation, member's contributions plus £4 per cent."

There is no comparison between the benefits offered by a scheme like this and that of the Select Committee, and I merely mention the matter that financial considerations based upon the Select Committee's Actuary's Report may not lead to the establishment of a scheme which would be unsatisfactory to teachers generally, and which would bring no credit to the Government suggesting it.

Both the Police Pension and the Civil Service Pension are far and away in advance of anything that we propose, and we can only hope that as a scheme is already in existence—and properly so—for the benefit of the whole inspectorate, its benefits may be extended to include those whose work is at least as exacting and as important."

I have, I fear, dealt imperfectly with this great question, but I am limited by considerations of time, and hence it has been impossible to deal with it in a full and comprehensive manner. You will, perhaps, agree however, that I have taken up the main principles and said sufficient to show our position.

Throughout the agitation we have adopted a very moderate line, so as to convince Parliament that we are not unreasonable. We can look back upon our work—our extremely difficult work—with satisfaction; for the public now understands the question, and the House and the country are determined that justice shall be done. You have been good enough to place confidence in us year after year, and I trust that you will again declare we have not forfeited that confidence.

I suppose I ought not to quote the recently highly flattering remarks of our old friend, Mr. H. Dickie, B.A., LL.D. (Rector, Kilmarnock Academy), but I cannot resist the temptation. Speaking of Superannuation and of Mr. Acland, he said:—"We leave him (Mr. Acland) to the care of the earnest and able Executive of the N. U. T. who fought this cause so nobly last year, and brought success so near that they have earned the eternal gratitude of their fellow-teachers."

Ladies and Gentlemen, if you can, only in part, echo this sentiment, we shall feel we have not striven in vain.

II.—THE POSITION AND PAY OF ASSISTANT CERTIFICATED TEACHERS IN PUBLIC ELEMENTARY SCHOOLS.

By MR. J. H. YOXALL, General Secretary to the National Union of Teachers.

FROM THE CHRYSALIS.

AT twenty years of age one comes out of Training College as the winged creature from its sheath—alert and glad, youth in the veins, joy in the pulse, ambition prompting, ideals beckoning, victory awaiting—ah, why cannot we all be twenty years of age once more? Well, for my own part, I would not be twenty years of age again if I must also be again an assistant teacher in a public elementary school. One remembers that portion of one's professional career with something like a rising of the gorge. I recall my first day as an assistant teacher; I found myself invited and impelled by Codes and Regulations to teach the wrong things, in the wrong way, with the wrong objects; and for the wrong rewards. The Code forbade me to teach my best; the Regulations forbade me to control my best; and yet I had spent seven arduous years in learning how to teach and to control! Carefully trained to work with skill under right conditions, I found myself, in face of improper conditions, helpless and handfast. I soon discovered that—and so did a sharp boy in my class. In fact, the sharp lad discovered it before I did, and "Ah!" thought that diamond-pointed youngster, "Here's another of 'em!" and he "chortled in his joy."

At twenty years of age one comes out of Training College filled with the idea of a "high calling and election"; but the young teacher is cruelly disillusioned when he emerges into the actual from the ideal. At nearly every point he finds himself in mental conflict with the environment that conditions his work in school. Over-worked and under-paid, much-inspected and little trusted, often blamed and seldom praised, the assistant certificated teacher is the helot and the scape-goat of the public elementary school. His services are under-valued, his personality is under-rated. The "man in the street" takes an assistant to be a boy or girl in the tadpole or apprentice stage of development; and even School Board members do not appear to know that the certificated assistant is a man or woman guaranteed by the State as fit to be a head teacher to-morrow. Many school managers (who should know better) and some head teachers (who do know better) appear to regard the assistant as merely a pupil teacher telescopically prolonged.

THE ASSISTANT PORTRAYED.

Now, the certificated assistant teacher (strange to say) is invariably an adult, and, indeed, is often something of an oldster. He is skilful and hardworking in his profession, honourable in the discharge of duty, honest and seemly in his relations with the world. He cuts no figure on the Stock Exchange, in the Bankruptcy Court, or any of the other arenas of publicity, high or low; but he is a law-abiding citizen who serves the nation and pays his way. Changing these nouns and pronouns, I can say all that of the certificated mistress also; the only reservation I make in her case is, of course, the reference to age. In short, the certificated assistant is a fully qualified teacher who has, by choice or circumstance, become the subordinate in a large school instead of the head of a small school; he is not a "beardless boy," and she is not "a giddy girl."

FUNCTION AND VALUE.

The work performed by these men and women is in itself sufficient evidence of adult growth and capacity. Here are a few examples:—

- (1) "I teach 90 boys daily, and instruct the whole school in drawing and singing."
- (2) "My class includes 74 girls, and I am further responsible for the needle-work of two other Standards."
- (3) "I teach Standards V., VI., and VII., and drawing throughout the school is under my care. I have frequently had the responsible charge of the school when the head master has been absent for many weeks at a time, ill."
- (4) "Teach Standard IV. (more than 80 girls), teach all the school sewing, and partly instruct the pupil teachers."
- (5) "French, chemistry, drill, all drawing, and nearly a hundred boys."

It is a pet opinion of the man in the street that a teacher (and especially an assistant teacher) has an easy and joyful time of it; but work of that kind is no child's play, and you who hear me know that the examples quoted do not overstate the case. Without the loyal efficient discharge of duty by the assistant teachers, the primary schools of England and Wales would come to a standstill to-morrow; and surely the due performance of work so intrinsically valuable, work so necessary, work so essentially difficult, work so potentially influential, is worthy of high consideration and fair pay. But this debt of high consideration and fair pay is seldom paid. Certificated assistant teachers have grave cause for dissatisfaction. Their work is honest work, and therefore, perhaps, it is so little honoured; the work is difficult work—and therefore, perhaps, it is so artificially hampered; the work is useful work—and therefore, perhaps it is so badly paid.

"SO LITTLE HONOURED."

A system of large schools and class-room teaching necessarily consigns the majority of these men and women to lifelong existence in a subordinate professional rank; but there is as yet no public recognition of assistantship as a permanent and honourable position. Assert themselves before employers as they may, singly or collectively, the very title of "assistant" discounts their representations and their claims. A School Board may listen patiently and answer courteously, but the nature of the answer tends to be a foregone conclusion from the first. Now this is a state of things without parallel in any other vocation. The sober, industrious, skilled mechanic is valued, whether he be master or man; the surgeon is not contemned because he is not a physician; the curate is duly honoured although he may never become vicar or dean. Why should the amply qualified assistant be disregarded as not a head teacher? The assistant is often the equal and sometimes the superior of his chief officer, in all but experience—and, indeed, occasionally in that. So long as there is no official grading of schools according to importance, and no official grading of teachers according to experience and skill—so long as questions of creeds and politics, and backstairs influence, can counteract solid professional claims to preference—there will be gray-haired assistants sickened by hope deferred. I plead for an honourable public recognition for the status of the permanent subaltern. Assistants with high degrees in arts or science, or both, are plentiful; there is no new movement in education with which they do not keep themselves abreast. The conscripts in the Education Army are worthy of the veterans. There should be honour for the Old Guard, of course; but let there be honour for the Young Guard too.

"SO ARTIFICIALLY HAMPERED."

There is one chief particular in which a rooted mistrust and an invidious want of honour are shown by School Boards towards the assistants in their employ. The assistant may be scholarly, experienced, successful, well on in years, and a parent—but he is totally unfit, it would appear, to administer even the slightest bodily chastisement to an erring child. The School Board places an assistant in a separate class-room, and looks upon him as equal to the education of eighty or a hundred boys in reading, writing, spelling, composition, recitation, arithmetic, music, drawing, drill, manual instruction, in grammar and geography, or history and elementary science, in mathematics or mechanics, physiology or French, navigation or what not. By the Code, he is expressly expected to "bring up the children in habits of punctuality, of good manners and language, of cleanliness and neatness, and also to impress upon the children the importance of cheerful obedience to duty, consideration and respect for others, and of honour and truthfulness in word and act." He is required to satisfy H.M. Inspectors that the ordinary discipline of the class is prompt and exact, and that the class-room is a place for the formation of right habits. He must care always, and care much, for the behaviour of the scholars, their cleanliness, obedience, and honesty. But all this he must do without recourse to physical persuasion, even in the case of children the most animal and abandoned. He must put down bullying, lying, profanity, thieving, filthiness, and obscenity; he must "eradicate habits of lawlessness and rowdiness"; he must not only teach, but civilise—nay, humanise; he must repress and obviate the early signs of atavism and original sin. "But all this you must do"—say the regulations of a hundred School Boards—"by verbal remonstrance and moral suasion alone. Lay not a finger on the 'holy human boy'; for, chastise you never so mildly a child—a child, no matter how insolent and obstinate, no matter how vicious and contaminating, you shall be liable to instant dismissal, your character ruined, your vocation, your livelihood gone."

"TU QUOQUE."

Those good well-meaning ladies and gentlemen of the School Boards who frame or confirm such a regulation as that, I wonder how they managed with their own children. I wonder how many of them brought up their own families without recourse to the birch? Moral suasion! Yes, whenever practicable; but if practicable anywhere, practicable with the three, four, or half-dozen well-fed, well-bred brothers and sisters, in the home of affluence, culture, and piety. For if not there, it is certainly less practicable in the crowded, hot-house class-room, teeming with four or five score children from homes less enviable, and often from homes not enviable at all. Moral suasion! Yes, as a general rule; but let there be the ultimatum of physical suasion behind it, for use at need, in the last resort. Moral suasion only! If the average school class numbered twenty instead of seventy or eighty, perhaps it might be so; but for economy's sake large classes have been created systematically and intentionally, and upon the certificated assistant in these islands has been laid a burden such as no other teacher in any other age or country or kind of school was ever expected to bear. Increased by the prohibition of that ultima ratio which is the essence of all authority, this burden has become cruelly intolerable; and we have a right to say to school authorities, "Either lessen the size of the teacher's class or permit the class teacher to deal effectively with the worst difficulties that large classes occasion." It is unreasonable, it is stupid, it is bitterly unjust to expect the end and forbid the means. These regulations are a standing invitation and incitement to hypocrisy, neglect, and sham. "Carried into practice" (as Mr. Pope has said) "the dictum of the School Boards comes to this; slur over everything, see nothing bad, hear nothing bad, paint over everything bad, let children be impertinent, never mind their future, never mind the corruption of others, rear up a set of young rowdies, rule by love, keep out of the police courts, and gain for yourself the reputation of having a high moral tone."

THE INEVITABLE RESULT.

And now I would ask the School Board members to observe, with eye and ear, at street corners and along suburban roads, the effects of the false philanthropy which cares more for the epidermis than for the morals. For every spared rod he will find a hundred spoiled men and women. Public education has done much, but it might have done so much more; it would have done so much more had not the Board school and the prohibition of the rod sprung up together, wheat and tare. For the want of due respect to elders, the pert precocity of modern youth, and those more positive ill-features, the corner gangs, the sophisticated lasses, the salacious lads, the indecency and profanity which thicken the air, the covert or overt insults to respectable women, I, on the part of my fellow-teachers, disclaim responsibility. The goat, the ape, and the tiger are not yet eradicated from the blood, of course; but social evolution has been hindered, and all kinds of evils fostered and encouraged, by the restrictions upon the teacher's desire and power to nip the mischief in the bud. Medical journals concur with the best authorities on the science of education in the belief that physical punishment is both necessary and wholesome. The chief School Boards that empower certificated assistants to administer a moderate amount of such punishment are unanimous in satisfaction with the result. There is evidence beyond all question that the possession of the ultima ratio lessens the need for its exercise, and diminishes its nett amount. Theory and practice combine to prove that the best way to minimise the total amount of punishment and maximise the total amount of right behaviour during childhood is to empower the fully qualified assistant to chastise in a moderate and regulated way. Several important School Boards have lately adopted this view of the question; but there are others which, in spite of argument and proof, persist in the old bad rule.

OBJECTIONS ANSWERED.

Well-meaning and honestly-intentioned members of these Boards would tell me, no doubt, that subaltern teachers in secondary schools do not chastise. I answer that they deal with home-trained children, and have but few of even those to control. I shall be told that there are cases of abuse of punishment by assistant teachers. I answer that the law courts are a safeguard, that we suggest a further precaution—the withdrawal of the power from those who do not use it wisely—and that it is irrational as well as unfair to make the just suffer for the unrighteous. I shall be told that head teachers have the power to punish for offences reported by the class teacher. I answer that the typical child thinks little of a possible severe but postponed punishment by the head teacher, as compared to the probability of a slighter but immediate chastisement by the assistant. And although I am far from screening or defending the chief who fails to support and vindicate the authority of his subordinate, one can well understand a head teacher's dislike to become a locomotive castigating machine. Significant as well as humorous was that letter from a parent who did not know that assistant teachers were forbidden to cane. "Sir," wrote the parent to the head teacher, "You've been hitting our Bill again. You must have got a grudge against him; none of the other teachers ever hits him but you!"

In passing from this ungrateful subject, on which nothing but sheer necessity has detained me so long, I will only add that there is "a good deal of human nature" about the assistant teacher. He is not without a heart, or some sense of moral responsibility; the School Board member most opposed to corporal punishment may discover, without the aid of a lens, some germs of tenderness and love for his kind in even the assistant's breast. The assistant is often a parent, and in such cases has been known (incredible as it may seem) to feel a parent's tenderness for "God's little ones," no matter of what brood. In short, the assistant is neither ogre nor baby-farmer. "Hath he not eyes? Hath he not dimensions, senses, affections? Fed with the same food, subject to the same diseases, hurt with the same weapons, healed by the same means," as the children are? Indeed, it is credibly reported that the assistant teacher has even been a child himself.

"SO BADLY PAID."

And what of the assistant teacher's remuneration?

According to the latest Blue Book there were, in 1892, certificated assistant teachers employed to the number and salaried to the amounts that follow:—

872 paid less than £40 per year.
8,087	"	"	"	£50
18,054	"	"	"	£100

Thirteen of every seventeen certificated assistants receive less than thirty-nine shillings per week; nine out of seventeen receive less than twenty-nine shillings per week; three out of seventeen receive less than nineteen shillings per week; eleven hundred receive less than 17s. 6d. per week; and nearly nine hundred less than 16s. The great and wealthy Church of England pays the certificated assistant masters in its schools an average of £67—£7 less than even Roman Catholic schools afford; the prosperous moneyed Wesleyan Connexion pays only £76; and in the case of School Boards, even when including the Board for London, the average is only £100. The average salaries of certificated assistant mistresses are even more ignoble—the Boards pay £77; the Roman Catholics and Wesleyans £48; and the Church of England £47. It costs seven to twenty-five years of professional training and experience to qualify for these exorbitant stipends ; but, in the opinion of certain school managers who are crying out, teachers are not plentiful enough and not cheap enough, even yet !

"Supply and demand, the market price you know," growls the pursy believer in exploded economic fallacies. But of late "the cheapest market" has ceased to rule the tariff in other departments of the public service. Of late we have heard a good deal about "sweating" and "trade rates of wages"; and Governments, County Councils, and School Boards have vied with each other in stipulating that the labour they contract for shall be honestly paid. Is it not time that School Boards should show some anxiety to discover the trade rate of teachers' wages also? We have not been united enough to establish a "trade rate" for ourselves; but that is no just reason why School Boards should take an advantage of the teacher which they decline to take of the mason. The labourer is worthy of his hire, although he merely works in the plastic of 'brain and character. Financial harass may, perhaps, extenuate some of the "sweating" in Voluntary schools; but there is no such excuse for the School Boards. And yet there are great provincial Boards mean enough to speciously offer a maximum salary, which is seldom or never reached, and dishonourable enough to dangle the bait of promised increments, that any pretext suffices to postpone. To discharge his duties fully, the teacher, above all other workers, needs to labour æquo animo; but how can the teacher work with calm and content of mind when he knows that financial justice and the keeping of a bond stand second to a farthing decrease in the rates? If there were any sufficient chance of promotion to head teachership at the end of six or ten years of subordination, the assistant might more quietly take the hardships of his case; but the flow of promotion has almost stagnated; it is a mere rill, even in the provinces; and under the London School Board only some three per thousand of the assistants were made head teachers last year.

FINALE.

Over-worked, over-inspected, seldom-thanked, little-valued, little-trusted, under-paid, the assistant's lot is "not a happy one." The comic muse has sung the woes of the policeman; but compared to the assistant teacher the constable is the better paid, the better clad, the better pensioned, and the better trusted—as witness his baton. I have shown how much the nation owes the assistant teacher. I have shown how little the nation pays the assistant teacher. It does not come within the scope of this paper to expose the woes of other members of the profession, although I know that there are many head teachers in as bad a case or worse.

III.—CHILD LABOUR.

By MR. R. WADDINGTON (Bolton—Member of the Executive).

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—That it should be necessary in the last decade of the nineteenth century to plead for the emancipation of the ten and eleven year old child-labourer is hardly a matter for congratulation. The land that can boast of Wilberforce, Howard, and Ashley lags behind Germany, Switzerland, Austria, and France. Notwithstanding the very wise words of Sir John Gorst, speaking in the name of Great Britain at the Berlin International Congress when he said,

"The limit of twelve years has been generally adopted by the Conference in consideration of the demands of the physical, moral, and intellectual development of the children," the vast majority of the English children of to-day are entering the labour market at the early age of ten years.

The Statute Book is replete with anomalies, and the topsy-turvy character of the law regulating the employment of children results in a huge travesty of compulsory education. Simultaneous with the introduction of compulsion, "local option" in fixing the requirements for partial and total exemption after the tenth birthday was created.

Each local authority was vested with the power to totally exempt children from school attendance at ten through the local bye-laws, and grievous as may be the sins of omission and commission of these authorities, it is impossible to add failure to take advantage to the full of the power to free the child from school attendance at the earliest possible moment. Nay, amid the wrangling of parties and the conflict of sects, these too often interested local authorities have secured for the offspring of the present generation entry into the labour market with the barest possible educational equipment. The law allows every child to leave school at fourteen; at thirteen the child may work full time after passing the Fourth Standard, or making 250 attendances after 5 years of age in not more than two schools during each year for five years; at 12 under the Mines Act, after passing the total exemption standard, which is generally the Fourth, and at 10 outside a mine, factory, or workshop after passing the total exemption standard fixed by the local bye-laws.

From a return presented to Parliament, 3rd March, 1890, the standards for total exemption fixed by the local bye-laws are :—

	Standard.
	IV.	V.	VI.
Parishes ... ..	6,766	4,016	38
Municipal Boroughs under School Boards ... ..	17	130	19
Municipal Boroughs under School Attendance Committees ...	49	70	1
Urban Sanitary Authorities under School Attendance Committees ... ..	20	47	3
	6,852	4,263	61

There are twenty-seven districts in England and Wales, where there is no total exemption standard, and where compulsion ceases at 10 years of age, irrespective of educational proficiency. In these twenty-seven districts, if the child can evade the local authority, not a very difficult matter, from 5 to 10, then the child is destined to remain illiterate so far as the Legislature is concerned. As the law stands at present, at 12 a child may be employed full time as a miner, but not as a piecer or a tenter; at 10 a child may be a butcher but not a baker, a shopkeeper but not a tailor, a furniture broker but not a cabinet maker, a book-keeper but not a bookbinder.

WHAT IS THE RESULT?

The upper classes in our primary schools are a beggarly array of empty benches, except in a few towns where Standard VI. is the total exemption standard. Of the 934,597 children who were presented for examination above the Third Standard in 1890, 459,433 children, or 50 per cent. disappeared from the school registers of the following year, and the Report of the Committee of Council on Education says:—"We are sorry to find, on examining the school returns, that the education of so many children of 10 years of age and upwards is discontinued as soon as, by passing the prescribed standard, they are freed from the obligation to attend school, and become entitled to go to work."

Day by day children of ten, with a Fourth Standard certificate as evidence of their educational equipment, pass from the hand of the teacher to scurry the streets of our towns and enter on an apprenticeship to qualify as members of that growing community which besmears our street corners with foul expletives and unlimited expectoration.

TO WORK HALF-TIME

in a factory or workshop a child must be eleven, and outside a factory or workshop, ten, and have passed the partial exemption standard fixed by the local bye-laws. The standard fixed is generally the Third, but in 1,223 districts, including Chorley, Darwen, Glossop, Bacup, Dewsbury, Halifax, Macclesfield and Rochdale, it is the Second, and in twenty-seven districts it is the First.

The raising of the age for half-time employment, under the Factory and Workshop Act, to eleven has intensified the anomalous state of the law. Take the case of a child in Darwen, where the total exemption standard is the Fourth, and the partial exemption standard is the Second. A child at the age of ten, who has passed the Fourth Standard, cannot be compelled to attend school, and, since employment in the mill is impossible until a year later, the child reaps the disadvantages of a street education from ten to eleven, when, work in the mill as a half-timer becoming possible, the child returns to school as a "factory half-timer." But in the town of Bolton, only a few miles away, the child must pass the Seventh Standard for total exemption before thirteen.

To meet cases like Darwen, Mr. Acland has introduced a Bill to make total exemption illegal before eleven years of age. But this Bill meets only half the difficulty. In nearly every district children will be able to become half-timers under the Education Act at ten. In Darwen a child may work half-time outside a factory at ten, after passing the Second Standard, while in Bolton, a child cannot work either in or out of a factory until eleven, and having passed the Fourth Standard. The standard qualification for half-time employment at eleven in Bolton would wholly free the child a year earlier in Darwen, and in some 6,850 school districts. Is Mr. Acland content to leave these glaring anomalies untouched?

Thousands of children are running the streets as half-timers, because, being ten years of age they have passed the First or Second Standard. Ignoring the other essential condition that the child must be "necessarily and beneficially employed," many local authorities, with a zeal that might well be directed into other channels, publicly proclaim that only half-time attendance at school is necessary on attaining ten years of age, and passing the Second Standard. Thus are the best energies of the teacher, the golden opportunities of the taught, and the possibilities of the rising generation frittered away because, perforce, the Minister of Education is occupied in distributing sixpennyworths of moral training, shillingsworths of grammar and needlework, and eighteenpennyworths of discipline.

Mr. Acland has formed a Departmental Committee to inquire into the matter, and, if it be impossible to add a teacher to that committee, as the Executive has asked, it is surely possible to get the experience of teachers as to the working of the law in these districts. It is to be hoped that the pledge given at Berlin that England would allow no child under twelve years of age to work is destined to receive early fulfilment. If the commercial supremacy of England is to be maintained out of the flesh and blood of these little child-workers, then at least the age in England should not be lower than in the most backward of European nations. If the youth of England is not to have the same educational opportunities as the youth of France, Germany, and Switzerland, then at least the present chaotic state of the Statute Book ought to be reduced to simplicity by the abolition of all forms of full-time employment before thirteen years of age, as is now the case under the Factory and Workshop Act.

The half-time system is undermining the physique of the operatives of the North of England. Dr. Barwise, the medical officer for Blackburn, says 20·9 per cent. of the deaths of cotton operatives over ten years of age took place between ten and twenty-five, while for labourers between the same ages the percentage was 6·8. Dr. Torrop, certifying surgeon for Heywood, says: "The promising child of ten degenerates into the lean and sallow young person of thirteen, and this process is continued until a whole population becomes stunted, and thus the condition of life in factory towns becomes a real source of danger to England's future."

When on a cold winter's morning I hear the dismal "buzzer," or "the factory bell," and feel that to one-half of the 73,000 little children between ten and thirteen it means in the words of Edwin Waugh, the Burns of Lancashire:

"Come, Billy, come; dost yer yon bell?
Thou'll ha' yon mill agate
Afore thou'rt up! Do stir thisel',
Or else thou'll be too late!"

And soon the muffled patter of Billy's clog-bound feet are to be heard as he trudges through the snow-covered streets of our northern towns, ill clad—physically and materially—to meet the driving sleet, and half awake. But Billy is not alone. As he nears the mill he meets a host of similar sacrifices to greed, selfishness, and indifference, some sleepy, many ill-clad for such miserable weather, and all weary and careworn. Lack-lustre eyes, sunken cheeks, pale sallow faces, and garments besmeared with "fluff" abound. Into the mill they rush to spend the next six hours in the hot and vitiated atmosphere "piecing," "doffing," "tenting," or "scavenging"—outside Arctic gloom, inside tropical heat.

Cruel as it is to turn out these little boys, still worse is the case of the girls. A factory inspector, after some twelve years in a half-time district says:—"The Inspector questions whether the employment of young children at such an early age as under eleven is desirable when their occupation necessitates a standing position for something like six hours per diem when on the morning turn."

The Statute Book bears undeniable witness to the dangers of factory life. The manager of one firm says :—"They (the half-timers) were always liable to injury, and at the present time there are boys in the warehouse, practically pensioners on the firm, in consequence of accidents sustained at a tender age in the mill." Too often the bandaged limb or absent digit bears silent witness to the dangerous occupation to which these children of tender age are put. Mr. James Henderson, factory inspector, speaking of the dangers of the machinery in his evidence before the Royal Commission on Labour said, in reply to the question, "What do you attribute these accidents to generally?"—"To a great deal of carelessness both on the part of the persons injured and very often on the part of the workman who employs them. Under the Act the employment of children under 13 is forbidden between the moving part and the fixed part of machinery. I am sorry to say we have very frequent accidents arising from the violation of that Act, and I am afraid it is because of the instructions given to the children by the spinner."

"That is one of the most fruitful causes of accident, is it not, in textile factories?"—It is not the most fruitful cause, but it is a cause; and very frequently there are very serious accidents—frequently the children are killed."

The surroundings and associations of factory life are not conducive to the cultivation of ideas of propriety, gentleness, and nobility in young children. Entry into the mill is marked by a loss of childishness and the acquirement of a precociousness that oft mars the best influence of the teacher who feels "Just as the twig is bent, the tree's inclined." Day by day the teacher is reminded "Ill habits grow by unseen degrees,

As brooks make rivers, rivers run to seas."

But the influence of the half-time system extends beyond the schoolroom.

There is a social aspect of the question of serious import. The parents and the children live in an atmosphere redolent with the necessity for yoking the labour harness at ten. It is almost part of the religious belief in the North of England that the child must become a wage-earner at ten. The disciplinary influence of the parent is subordinated by the all-powerful half-crown, to the detriment of the child and the lowering of the moral tone of our manufacturing towns. The Statute Book has taught the parent to look at the monetary value of his offspring, and the weekly half-crown covers a multitude of shortcomings.

ON EDUCATIONAL GROUNDS

this dovetailing of the factory and the school stands condemned by "My Lords" of the Education Department, who instruct the Inspectors in the following words—"In schools attended by half-time children, teachers have to contend with special difficulties, and in recommending the various grants you may fairly accept a somewhat lower standard of quality than in the case of other schools, both as regards attainments and organisation."

Six hours in the heated and unhealthy atmosphere of a mill is not conducive to that mental alertness so necessary in the primary school pupil of to-day. See these little mites rush out of our mills at 12.30 and scurry off to snatch a hasty mid-day meal ere they present themselves at school, since a wise and beneficent Legislature enacts that after six hours in a mill there must follow three in mastering the laws of syntax, the peculiarities of the substantive verb, or, perchance, the conjugation of the verb "to sleep." The education of the half-timer is the very thinnest of veneer. Physically overwrought, there is little hope of mental training when the child arrives at the afternoon school.

The technical education of the artisan is receiving the attention it deserves. But so long as one-half the children enter on the battle of life with an educational equipment represented by passing the Fourth Standard, 70,000 children are educationally sacrificed under the Factory and Workshop Act, and 100,000 children spend half their school career, after the tenth birthday, in the streets, sound technical knowledge will be difficult to disseminate and acquire.

Thus far I have dealt mainly with the factory half-timer, but bad as is the educational influence of the little "piecer," "tenter," or "doffer," that of the

DOMESTIC HALF-TIMER IS STILL WORSE.

Practically invited by the supineness or indifference of the local authorities to spend half the school day at the foot of that ladder which is said to reach from the gutter to the university, on passing perchance the Second Standard, he becomes a real source of concern to the teacher. The factory half-timer must attend on the alternate day or half-day system, but the domestic, or Education Act half-timer attends with an irregularity that is only exceeded by the difficulty of the teacher to arrange the school time-table so that the domestic half-timer shall get a little of each subject in the curriculum. The spasmodic attendance of the Education Act half-timer is a concrete illustration of the laws of variations, combinations, and computations. The Bolton School Board refuse partial exemption unless attendance be on the alternate half-day system, but in the large majority of districts it is sufficient if half-time attendance is registered, no matter how irregularly, and in many districts the bye-laws, copied from the "Model Bye-laws" issued by the Department, define half-time by requiring 150 attendances to be made at pleasure during the year. From one school register I cull the following: Two half-timers attended only twice on a Friday out of thirteen weeks, and another was only present once on a Wednesday during the same period. There is no certainty about the attendance of the domestic half-timer, it is a case of "go as you please" under most local authorities.

It passes the wit of man to devise an arrangement of the school work to meet these spasmodic forms of attendance. Take the position of many a teacher who has in addition to whole-day scholars—(1) morning half-timers, (2) afternoon half-timers, (3) alternate morning and afternoon half-timers, (4) alternate day half-timers, (5) the half-timer who attends six months at a stretch and works the other six months, and (6) the "go-as-he-pleases" half-timer.

Parents who refuse to sacrifice the physical, moral, and intellectual welfare of their offspring for the miserable pittance earned by these little workers find the education "cribb'd, cabin'd, and confined" by the presence of these children. In Bolton, where two out of every three children over ten years of age who have passed the required standard are at work half-time, the School Board found that in order to introduce cookery for the girls, the girls must cease to take geography as a class subject throughout their schools. And so it is throughout the half-time district—the education of the country is being restricted by early child labour. Sir John Gorst stated the case admirably at the Berlin International Congress in combating the attempt to fix a lower age than twelve for the southern countries when he said:—"It is specially because lesser restrictions would not be sufficient for the necessary primary instruction nor for the making of good citizens that these first years of life should be consecrated to education." And why are these first years of life not held as sacred to education in England as in Germany, Switzerland, or France?

IS IT POVERTY?

The Lancashire operative is as well paid as the artisan in any country in the world, and he is the chief supporter of child labour. It is the Lancashire spinner with his 30s. to 40s. per week who rushes his offspring into the mill at the earliest possible moment the law allows. The manager of a mill where 326 half-timers are employed "strongly denied that the children entering at ten were those of the poorest parents, as many came from families where the various members took home in aggregate wages as much as £8 per week."

Only the other week I came across a case where a mill owner, running 500 looms, turned his little girl into the mill as a half-timer. There are poor widows, and badly-paid artisans in the North of England as elsewhere, but they are not the supporters of child labour. It is the comparatively well-paid weaver, or spinner who is not only the user, but the direct employer of child labour, because it is cheap labour. Cease to make the spinner the direct employer by the abolition of "piece-work," and the half-time little piecer will soon disappear. Look at the distribution of the half-timers:—

	No. of half-timers under Factory Act.		Per cent.		No. of half-timers under Education Act.		Per cent.
Lancashire .....	41,832	.....	57	.....	47,402	.....	49
Yorkshire .....	24,859	.....	38	.....	23,416	.....	24
Cheshire.....	4,097	.....	5	.....	5,542	.....	6
Rest of England and Wales	3,531	.....	5 nearly	.....	20,507	.....	21
	<hr/> 78,819				<hr/> 96,867

Lancashire employs 57 per cent. of the Factory Act half-timers, and 49 per cent. of the domestic half-timers. If half-time is in any sense an index of poverty then Lancashire must be in a terrible state of destitution, and some of the Southern towns must be in a state of affluence beyond the dreams of avarice. Bolton has 3,500 half-timers, and Manchester, with a population at least four times as great, has 500. Bradford has 5,300, and the larger population of Leeds only 700. Halifax requires 3,500, and Huddersfield 800. In Lancashire one child out of every two over ten years of age attends school as a half-timer; in Yorkshire the proportion is one out of four; and in Staffordshire it is one out of fourteen; while in the rest of England and Wales, excluding Lancashire, Yorkshire, Cheshire Staffordshire, and Leicestershire, it is one out of thirty-one.

Lancashire is not poorer than Yorkshire, nor is there greater destitution in Yorkshire than in Staffordshire. Lancashire not only absorbs more than one-half of the factory half-timers, but also a similar proportion of the domestic half-timers. the Lancashire parent has been taught by custom and the Statute Book to look on his offspring as a wage earner at ten, and if he cannot get him into the mill he finds employment for him outside the mill. Is the flexible joint of the infantile digit necessary to the industry? Only the other week I heard a Trades' Union official declare that the child who came in at thirteen was in three months a better worker than those who had spent from ten to thirteen as half-timers. Many mills refuse to utilise half-time employment, and these not the least successful. Necessity has ever been the plea for oppression. When the age was eight, the same plea existed. There are numerous evidences of the falsity of the plea that the commercial supremacy of England depends upon the sacrifice of the physical, moral, and intellectual development of the children of "Clogland," and the supporters of child labour have very shrewdly relegated the infantile digit theory along with the grand technical education theory, the brightening of the intellect, and the sanatoriums to be found studding our northern towns styled mills and factories, to the limbo of exploded fictions.

WHAT SHOULD BE DONE?

The numerous Acts of Parliament that bear on child labour want consolidating. After twenty-one years of total exemption at ten it is time we moved on. If the resolution of the Trades' Union Congress, that no child should work under thirteen years of age, is destined to remain a pious opinion, then the unification of the law is necessary in the interests of the child and the nation. Whatever the qualifications, they should be universal, and fixed imperially. The pledge given at Berlin, three years ago, that no child under 12 should be employed, should be honoured by prohibiting half-time employment under 12 years of age either in or out of a factory.

The cry goes up for eight hours a day for adults. Are the working classes content that little children of 10 and 11 shall work six? The Bolton cotton operatives decided almost unanimously that eight hours in the vitiated and unhealthy atmosphere of a mill was sufficient, and the same operatives decided unanimously that the age for half-time employment should remain at 10. Surely if eight hours are sufficient for adult men and women, six is more than sufficient for little children of ten. At Berlin it was agreed that no child under 14 should work underground. Are the miners content to allow boys of 12, too often without producing the educational certificate, to work at the dangerous occupation of mining? The inquiry into the Bamfurlong disaster revealed the fact that the lives were sacrificed through the inadvertence of a boy who had entered the mine without producing a labour certificate. Mr. Brewer, H.M. Inspector of Schools for the Wigan District, says in his report:—"The girls leave school for so-called domestic employment, the boys for the 'training of the street'; for as these latter mostly find employment in the coal pits, and thus cannot begin until the age of 12, they have two years without employment in which to unlearn and lose what they have acquired at school." Full-time employment under the Factory and Workshop Act cannot commence before 13, and only then on production of an educational qualification which at present is measured by passing the Fourth Standard, or having made 250 attendances after five years of age, in not more than two schools during each year for five years whether consecutive or not. This should be extended to all forms of employment, whether in a factory or not, so far as the age is concerned, but in view of the introduction of sample examination, and the placing in the hands of the teachers the natural classification of the scholars, the standard qualification ought to be abolished, and regularity of attendance over the school life substituted. This would make the abolition of total exemption before thirteen possible, and reduce the present varying qualifications to uniformity. Mr. W. Scott Coward, H.M. Inspector, states the case for such an alteration in his report for the year 1891, when he says:—"It is due to this cause (the low exemption standards) that hundreds of children of ten and eleven are spending their time at the best in fitful periods of employment alternated with school going, gaining little good either by the discipline of constant employment and its concomitant training in habits of punctuality and steady industry, or, at the worst, roaming aimlessly about and acquiring habits ruinous to body and mind. I have met them in scores in the evening schools in Manchester, and known them to be the dread of the teachers of the day schools, in and out of which they drift. It surely should be made a condition of total exemption if the low standards and early ages are to be continued that the child be actually employed.

The best remedy for much of this would be the adoption of the "age and attendance" qualification instead of the present one. The requirement of regular attendance in a public elementary school during several years of a child's life as the condition of earning the privilege of going to work would be much more effectual in improving the attendance in our schools. Under the existing system the object is to pass the examination prescribed for the standard of exemption. To do this it is thought to suffice to condense regularity of attendance and the effort of preparation within the compass of a few weeks. But of what value is such an effort? What real knowledge is gained? What habits of mind acquired that can stand as a strong foundation upon which to build up a thoughtful, well-balanced character? Make regular attendance at an efficient public school the test of fitness to enter upon the labour of life, and you will secure for the child the surest path to an education worthy of the name, and you will add the most powerful stimulus to the parent to send his children to school. The steady, continued application which it would entail would make the learning acquired more fruitful and abiding than the mere cram which the present system now encourages.

The gain to education at large would also be considerable, for by dealing a final blow to preparation for individual examination, which often is resolved into a narrow drill, a wider scope would be given to the instruction, and more freshness and originality imported into the methods of our schools."

In addition to fulfilling the Berlin pledge by raising the age for half-time employment to twelve, care should be taken to secure due inquiry as to whether the child is "necessarily and beneficially employed." If we are to have half-time, let it be restricted to the poor widow and badly paid artisan. Of the 170,000 half-timers at present attending school, not a tithe of them would survive such inquiry. Next, there should be uniformity of half-time attendance throughout the country by the statutory enactment of the alternate half-day system. During the winter months the employment of children below 13 years of age should be prohibited before 8 in the morning. I know that these restrictions would bear hardly on employers, but if they are to be allowed to sacrifice the rising generation on the altar of cheap labour, they must be content to bear such restrictions as the welfare of the children demands. The administration of any scheme of exemption from school will fail if the existing local authorities are to be the responsible bodies for securing fulfilment. The success of our Factory Acts has been due to the system of inspection, and, if we are to have the employment of children outside the factories and workshops properly supervised,

INSPECTORS OF ATTENDANCE

must be imperially appointed where it is impossible to extend the powers of the Factory Inspector. In conclusion I would appeal to the trades' unionists engaged in textile industries. Shall every step in the emancipation of your offspring be accomplished in spite of your influence? Education is national insurance. At no period in our history was it so true as now that the welfare of our country depends on the democracy. Patriotism is a love of country, and he who loves the land of his nativity will aspire to place the next generation physically, morally, and intellectually in advance of the present.

(The Paper is printed on p lxxxv.)

13. "That the best thanks of the Conference be, and they are hereby, given to Mr. T. B. Ellery for his admirable paper on Superannuation."

14. "That having regard to the Report of the Royal Commission on Education (1888), the Report of the Select Committee of the House of Commons on Superannuation (1892), and to the unanimous vote of the House itself on the motion of Sir Richard Temple, 24th February, 1893, this Conference urges the Government to introduce at the earliest possible date a complete and equitable Scheme of Superannuation for Certificated Teachers, and requests the Executive to use every effort to safeguard the interests of all classes of teachers.

15. "That, in the opinion of this Conference, teachers qualified at the passing of the Act should have the privileges and advantages granted to other present teachers."

PENSIONS.

16. "That this Conference, while thanking the Government for the substantial increase they have made in the amount voted by Parliament as pensions to teachers, requests the Executive to urge upon the Government the claims of those teachers who entered the service under the Minutes of 1846 to pensions on a scale more proportioned to the original intentions of the Department, as set forth in the broad sheet of that date."

RECEPTION OF DEPUTATIONS.

17. "That the best thanks of the Conference be, and they are hereby, given to the Deputations from Scotland and Ireland for their presence, and this Conference hopes that education may be advanced by these interchanges of opinion and goodwill between the teachers of various countries. The Conference also expresses its regret that the deputation appointed to represent the Belgian teachers was unable to attend."

APPOINTMENT OF INSPECTORS.

18. "That, in the opinion of this Conference, all persons appointed as Inspectors should have had such adequate practical experience within a State-aided school as would insure a competent knowledge of the work of the schools they will be required to inspect."

PROCEEDINGS OF PRIVATE SESSION.

19. That the Third Session of Conference be open to the newspaper press."

20. "That members of the National Union of Teachers be admitted to the gallery during the Third Session"

21. "That the public be admitted to the gallery during the Third Session."

ELIMINATION OF EXECUTIVE.

A special report on the subject was submitted by the Executive. (The report is printed on p. lxvii.)

22. "That the report be now received."

23. "That, having regard to the resolution of the Executive of 4th March—viz.: 'That this Executive, while loyally carrying out the directions of Conference in preparing a scheme of Electoral Districts, is firmly of opinion that the suggested change would result in injury to the Union, and hereby asks Conference to discharge the reference,' this Conference hereby discharges the reference."

ALTERATION OF RULE.

24. That Rule 18 be amended by the omission of the words "then ending."

ASSISTANT CERTIFICATED TEACHERS.

A Paper on "The Position and Pay of Assistant Certificated Teachers in Public Elementary Schools" was read by Mr. J. H. YOXALL, General Secretary. (For Paper see p. xviii.)

25. "That the best thanks of this Conference be given to Mr. J. H. Yoxall, for his admirable paper on the position and pay of Certificated Assistant Teachers in Public Elementary Schools; and that the paper be specially printed for general circulation."

26. "That, having regard to the fact that 41 per cent. of certificated men teachers at present at work are in receipt of salaries of less than £100 per annum, and 58 per cent. of the certificated women teachers are receiving salaries of less than £75 per annum; that of the certificated men assistants, one out of every three receives less than 30s. per week, and three out of four receive less than 40s. per week; and that one out of four of the certificated women assistants receives less than 20s. per week, and three out of four less than 30s. per week, this Conference deploras the inadequacy of the salaries paid to the great majority of teachers, and especially to assistant teachers, deems such salaries hostile to the best interests of education, and, considering the prolonged training required, the severe duties exacted, the outward respectability demanded, and the reduced chance of promotion necessitated by the modern tendency towards large schools, utterly unjust to teachers."

27. "That this Conference is of opinion that a fixed mode of increase by which all teachers should, except in proved cases of incapacity or wilful neglect, receive such promised advances, would act in the interest of education, and be a bare act of justice to teachers."

28. "That the time has arrived when definite steps should be taken to raise the present low minimum salaries in primary schools. That the Executive be instructed to appoint a committee to consider the advisability of providing a special fund for the purpose of sustaining a member of the Union who refuses to work for a miserable pittance."

29. "That this Conference is of opinion that as so many teachers are put to immense inconvenience owing to the irregularity in the payment of their salaries it should be an instruction of the Department that all teachers in State-aided schools should be paid regularly and punctually."

SCHOOL DISCIPLINE.

30. "That this Conference, while anxious to see the infliction of corporal punishment reduced to a minimum, is nevertheless of opinion that the present prohibitive regulations, by fostering a spirit of defiance, tend to increase the amount of corporal punishment inflicted, and thus defeat the end they have in view, and, being under many circumstances utterly unworkable, place certificated assistants in a false and degrading position. That the adoption of a system by which all certificated assistants should have power to administer corporal punishment would remove, to a great extent, the tendency towards defiance that the present regulations generate; would lessen the friction that exists between managers and teachers, and teachers and parents; would reduce corporal punishment to a minimum; and contribute materially to the improvement of education. That the certificate of the Education Department should empower the holder to exercise plenary powers of discipline."

CHILD LABOUR.

A Paper on this subject was submitted by Mr. R. Waddington, Member of the Executive. (For Paper see p. civ.)

31. "That the paper be taken as read."

32. "That the best thanks of the Conference be given to Mr. R. Waddington for his admirable paper on 'Child Labour.'"

VOTE OF SYMPATHY.

33. "That this Conference laments the loss the National Union has sustained by the death of Mr. J. T. Carlyon (Devonport), and hereby expresses its sympathy with the widow and family in their bereavement."

THE NEW CODE AND INSTRUCTIONS.

34. "That in view of the following in the Annual Reports of the Committee of Council on Education :—'Of the teachers, however, who, from whatever cause, have not attended a training college a considerable proportion cannot, except in a technical sense of the word, be classed as untrained, having, under the superintendence of some of our best teachers, passed through the pupil teachers' course and served as assistants in large schools before passing the examination for a certificate,—no distinction be made in any article in the Code between certificated teachers, whether they have been trained at a training college or not."

35. "That this Conference notes with satisfaction the following alterations in the Code:—

1. "The complete abolition of the individual examination in the three elementary subjects, except in the case of those scholars for whom a labour certificate is required. (Art. 101 (a), vii.)
2. "The further freedom given by the introduction of an additional scheme of arithmetic. (Schedule I.)
3. "The recognition of students in Training Colleges in August, 1851, and May, 1862, respectively, as eligible for pensions under Art. 130.
4. "The extension of the limit of the amount of pensions for those who were employed or were recognised students between 1851 and 1862 from £5,580 to £10,580. (Art. 130.)
5. "The introduction of special provision for bi-lingual teaching in Welsh-speaking districts."

36. "That this Conference is of opinion that; in the case of persons recognised by the Department under Art. 51 as assistant teachers, in consequence of having passed certain examinations, effective provision should be made to insure that such persons possess sufficient practical skill as teachers."

37. "That this Conference expresses regret—

1. "That by the recent alteration of Art. 52 the qualification for the provisional certificate has been reduced; and thereby an addition has been made to the number of imperfectly-qualified teachers admitted to the profession.
2. "That the additional 'cutting out' required in the Needlework Schedule for girls is impracticable and excessive.
3. "That the requirements of the course in English taught bi-lingually for Welsh-speaking districts exceed the limits recommended as practicable by the Executive.

38. "That this Conference, while thanking the Executive for its action in respect of Welsh schools, is of opinion that the English-Welsh Scheme will cause hardship in some schools in Wales if generally introduced; and requests the Executive to endeavour to get provisions inserted in the Code safeguarding the interests of teachers and children in those districts where English is the language of the majority of the children.

39. "That this Conference protests against the provision in the Code which makes drawing a failing subject for the teachers' certificate, and calls upon the Education Department to withdraw this provision and place drawing simply on a level with other equally important subjects.

40. "That this Conference is of opinion that any revision of the Code should be based upon the following general principles:—

1. Pecuniary considerations should not influence either the teaching or the examination of the scholars.
2. All schools receiving Parliamentary Grants should be under the management of responsible committees.

- '3. Means should be provided so that every public elementary school may be efficient.
- '4. Safeguards against continued inefficiency should be provided.
- '5. Local option as to the choice and range of the school curriculum should be established.'"

41. "That this Conference approves the following recommendations already adopted by the Executive and forwarded to the Education Department as the basis for giving effect to the above general principles."

State Aid and Control of Schools.

1. No portion of the Government Grant should be dependent upon the results of examination.

2. The Parliamentary Grant should be a fixed sum based on a graduating scale according to the average attendance, and provide for the smaller schools a higher proportionate payment.

3. All schools receiving the Government Grant should be inspected by H.M. Inspectors, who should report on (a) suitability of buildings and apparatus, (b) sufficiency and efficiency of staff, (c) organisation, (d) discipline and tone of school, (e) efficiency of training. The Inspector should not be compelled to formally examine schools at the end of the financial year, but the annual report should be based on data furnished by intermittent inspection.

4. If any serious defect in the management, control, teaching, or work of any school be found by the Education Department, notification of the fact should be made to the managers of the school, who should be required to remedy it. In the event of neglect to comply with this requirement, formal warning should be given in accordance with Art. 86, but the grant should not be withheld until two formal warnings have been given.

5. The scheme of education laid down in the Code should comprehend all that can be properly included in the education of the scholars. It should not be compulsory upon any school to cover the whole curriculum, but the managers in conference with the Inspector and teachers should adopt so much of the scheme as may be suited to the capacities of the scholars and the wants of the locality. The report of H.M. Inspector should be based upon that portion of the curriculum selected for the work of the school. The standards as such should be abolished.

6. The school year should begin and end with the civil year.

7. A portion of the annual grant to schools should be paid in quarterly instalments, the total amount of grant being adjusted at the end of the year.

8. Provision should be made in the Code for effective means of appeal against the capricious removal of teachers from their position.

9. In accordance with the intimation contained in the concluding words of Paragraph 17 of Instructions to Inspectors, the power given to managers to demand results of the individual examination of the scholars should be withdrawn.

10. No adverse report should be made upon the school work unless the attention of the head teacher and the assistant teachers concerned be drawn to the matter by H.M. Inspector at the time of the examination.

Local Management.

11. All schools receiving the Parliamentary Grants should be under the management of responsible committees of not less than seven persons, who would be required to conduct their business in accordance with the following regulations, to be appended to the Code or Education Act:—

- (a) Every school committee shall meet at least once a quarter. Minutes of all proceedings of the committee shall be recorded in a book provided for the purpose, no business to be transacted if a quorum be not present, three to form a quorum.
- (b) Each school committee shall appoint a chairman, a treasurer, and a secretary. Not more than one of those offices to be held by the same person. The accounts and the receipt for the share of the Government Grant to be signed by at least three managers.
- (c) All accounts and minutes of the committee shall be open to the inspection of the Education Department, and all receipts for salaries shall be given in accordance with the form appended—

"Received from the managers of ..... Day School, the sum of ..... pounds in payment of one ..... 's salary for duties performed solely as schoolm..... of the said ..... Day School.

[SIGNED] .....

(d) If at any time a vacancy shall occur in a school committee which reduces the number of members to less than seven, it shall be filled up by those qualified to appoint within a period of two calendar months.

12. If, under existing deeds of trust in Voluntary schools, no provision is made for the appointment of a school committee, the existing trustees, subscribers, or managers should be required to appoint a school committee of any number not less than seven.

42. "That pending the adoption of the above recommendations this Conference approves the following proposals made by the Executive for the amendment of the Code on this present basis; and this Conference, while agreeing that the number of children attending a cookery class should be reduced, is of opinion that an increased grant ought to be paid for this subject."

PROPOSALS FOR AMENDMENTS OF THE CODE ON ITS PRESENT BASIS.

School Curriculum.

13. The time has arrived when the interests of commerce and education demand the introduction into this country of a decimal system of money, weights, and measures.

14. Girls attending cookery classes during the time of instruction in needlework should be exempt from presenting a garment to the Inspector.

15. Note 2 should be amended so as to read as follows:—"At least half as many garments should be shown as there are children on the books in Standards I.-VII. who have attended school six months or upwards."

16. Marking should be removed from Standards V. and VI. to Standard VII.

17. That darning of a diagonal cut should be removed from Standard VI. to Standard VII. (See Table of Requirements in Appendix I. of Instruction to Inspectors.)

18. The patterns for the first year pupil teachers should be stated.

19. In the third year's work of pupil teachers the age of children should be stated, as in the syllabus for the certificate examination.

20. The teaching of cookery should not be required as a condition of girls earning the grant for drawing.

Pupil Teachers.

21. The results of the pupil teacher examinations should be made known by the Education Department within three months.

22. The examination for pupil teachers should extend over two days, and additional centres should be provided.

23. The regulations in Paragraph 47 of the Instructions to Inspectors respecting the examination of pupil teachers at the end of the second year should be rigidly enforced.

24. Before sanctioning the appointment of any candidate for pupil teachership, the Education Department should satisfy itself that the school in which it is proposed to apprentice the candidate is organised, so as to afford opportunities for the due training of pupil teachers in the art and science of teaching.

25. Article 42 should be amended to read as follows:—"The number of pupil teachers recognised by the Department must not exceed one for each certificated teacher, and must not exceed two in any department of a school."

26. Welsh should be added to the languages under Note 5 as a subject for the pupil teachers' Queen's Scholarship Examinations.

27. Algebra and Euclid should be included in the scholarship examination and the annual pupil teachers' examination as optional subjects for girls.

28. The number of science subjects for which marks are given in the Queen's Scholarship Examination should be limited to two. A pass in the First Stage Mathematics should count for girls, and a pass in any stage mathematics above the first should count for boys.

29. That Schedule V. should be remodelled so as to provide for all pupil teachers examined in one year taking the same portion of geography and history.

80. English Grammar and Composition.—For the four years the requirements to be:—

- (a) Parsing, analysis, and paraphrase of sentences.
- (b) Prefixes and affixes generally.

81. Arithmetic.—Boys and girls, first and second years: vulgar and decimal fractions, with their applications. Proportion, with its application to interest, averages, (omitting stocks), and percentage. Third and fourth years: stocks and square root, with more difficult problems in arithmetic generally.

82. Drawing.—Marks to be given for passes obtained during the year, provided they have not been credited in a previous year.

83. Languages.—An optional paper should be set in, and marks to be given for, not more than one of the following languages:—Latin, Greek, French, German, Hebrew, and Welsh.

84. Detailed Syllabus.—The Education Department should publish a detailed syllabus for pupil teachers, indicating the requirements of Schedule V. in the same manner as the Science and Art Department issue the syllabus requirements in the science subjects.

Qualification for Labour.

85. Age and attendance should be the only qualification for labour.

86. The Executive suggest that the following be the conditions for full-time employment under the Education, Mines, Factory, and Workshop Acts:—

- (a) Thirteen years of age, and 2,400 attendances since the fifth birthday, and after the 1st January, 1894, 2,600 attendances since the fifth birthday; or
- (b) Fourteen years of age.

And that the following be the conditions for half-time employment:—

- (a) Eleven years of age, and 2,100 attendances since the fifth birthday, and after the 1st January, 1894, twelve years of age, and 2,400 attendances since the fifth birthday.

- (d) That no child under thirteen years of age be employed before 8 a.m. between the 1st October and 31st March.
- (e) One half at least of the attendances of any child attending school half-time only shall be during the morning, and such child shall attend school during mornings one week and afternoons the next.

Teachers' Certificate.

87. The teachers' Certificate issued by the Education Department should be a sufficient qualification for teaching and earning grants upon all obligatory subjects in the Code, and the Education Department should be requested to announce that if teachers will send their certificate to the Department, they will be stamped to that effect.

Article 63.—Probation for Certificates.

88. Certificated teachers should have granted to them their parchment, if, during the period of probation, they have been serving successfully, even if they have been in more than one school during the probationary period.

Article 66.—Teachers' Claim to a Copy of the School Report.

89. Any certificated teacher who has worked in a school not less than six months during the school year should be entitled to a certified copy of the Inspector's report for that year.

Article 78.—Minimum School Staff.

40. Article 78 should read as follows :—In estimating the minimum school staff required, the Department consider that the principal certificated teacher should not count on the staff in schools of 150 or more in average attendance; but in schools of less than 150 in average attendance the principal teacher will be considered sufficient for an average attendance of 80, each additional certificated teacher in any school for an average attendance of 40, each assistant teacher for an average attendance of 85, and each pupil teacher in the third and fourth years for 25.

Article 101.—Grants.

41. So long as the present system of grants is retained, the following alterations should be made :—

- (a) No differential principal grants, such as 12s. 6d. and 14s., but there should be only one principal grant of, say, 14s., which might be entirely withheld after two warnings.
- (b) A fixed grant for discipline and organisation of, say, 1s. 6d.
- (c) A fixed grant of, say, 2s. per head on average for each class subject.
- (d) A fixed grant of, say, 3s. per head for each scholar presented in a specific subject.
- (e) Special grants for small schools as at present.

42. The average attendance for calculating the amount of grant should be ascertained by taking into account only the 400 highest attendances.

Requirements for Drawing.

43. For small schools not exceeding 100 boys in average attendance a syllabus for drawing not exceeding the present requirements of Standard IV. should be adopted similar in principle to the Course "B" of class subjects.

Optional Drawing.

44. The teaching of drawing should be optional in all schools, so long as the Department have not made such arrangements as will provide that each school shall be properly staffed and equipped.

Training of Teachers.

45. All teachers should be required to pass through the pupil-teacher and the training college course, or should have received an equivalent amount of training in the art and science of teaching.

Teachers' Certificate.

46. The teacher's certificate should carry with it plenary powers of discipline and organisation.

Article 130.—Pensions.

47. That all pensions awarded under Article 130 of the Code to teachers employed before August, 1851, should be a fixed amount of £40, or at the rate of £1 for each year of service, and that this should apply to those teachers, to whom pensions have already been awarded.

48. That an addition of £15,000 per annum be made to the amount at the disposal of the Department for awarding pensions to teachers who entered the profession between August, 1851, and May, 1862.

49. That students in training at the time of the introduction of the Minutes be regarded as eligible for pensions under this Article.

Instructions to Inspectors.

50. The Instructions to Her Majesty's Inspectors should form an integral part of the Code.

Needlework.

51. It was the experience of teachers of needlework in the Pupil Teachers' Centres established by the London School Board that the work set at the October Examination was excessive, considering the amount of time given for the exercises, and that this was especially the case in the work for the Third Year.

52. That alternative exercises should be set in each year, and at the Queen's Scholarship Examination.

53. That the amount of material supplied by the Department is insufficient for the purposes in several exercises—e.g., the tape and print in the Second Year, and the tape, binding, and print in the Third Year.

54. There is need for a Syllabus of work in cutting out in the First Year. Nothing is specified, and we are informed that the exercises given to First Year Pupil Teachers in 1892 at Pupil Teachers' Centres in London was an exercise scheduled for the Second Year.

55. That "a child's frock" be substituted for "a child's frock bodice" in the Third Year.

56. In all cases where patterns of children's clothing is required as an exercise, the schedule should state the age of the supposed child, as is done in the syllabus of work at the Training Colleges.

57. That in place of the samplers required for the Fourth Year, the requirement should be "a garment suitable for a girl entering Training College."

58. Teachers should be informed of the marks given for needlework, both for exercises and for finished garments.

59. It should be stated whether marks are given for the Fourth Year work to count for the Queen's Scholarship Examination, or whether only those marks are counted which are obtained at the Queen's Scholarship Examination.

SUGGESTIONS BY THE EXECUTIVE FOR THE AMENDMENT OF EDUCATION CODE WITH REGARD TO SCHOOLS IN WALES.

I.—Objects.

The object of the following suggestions is the improvement of the teaching of English, and the teaching in English, in Welsh schools, by affording a graduated scheme of means for studying Welsh as explanatory of English.

II.—Limitations.

No portion of these suggestions is proposed as compulsory on any school. Everything is to be at the option of the managers, and these proposals should only be approved where means for conveniently carrying them out exist.

III.—Article 98.

Infant Schools and Classes.—Teaching, examining, and answering in the work of infant schools or classes in Welsh districts may, at the option of the managers, be conducted in Welsh, provided that instruction in reading and writing in English proceed concurrently.

IV.—Article 101.

Recitation.—In Welsh districts the recitation may be wholly or in part in Welsh, at the discretion of the managers.

Singing.—In Welsh districts songs may be wholly or in part in Welsh, at the discretion of the managers.

V.—Schedule I.

Reading.—Bi-lingual reading books should be used throughout the schools.

Writing.—Exercises in writing and dictation may, at the option of the managers, be given by Inspectors in Welsh districts, in Welsh, to Standards II., III., and IV., and in writing to Standard I.

Arithmetic.—In the arithmetic examination in Welsh districts problems should be printed both in Welsh and English, and the more difficult problems in mental arithmetic should, when the managers require it, be stated both in English and Welsh.

Foot-note.—In the words “at the discretion of the Inspector” omit “inspector” in order to insert the word “managers.”

VI.—Schedule II.

English-Welsh.—Insert courses in “English-Welsh” as a class-subject alternative to any of the courses in English.

SUGGESTED COURSES.

(1) For any School.

Standard I.—To give English names for Welsh names of common objects of school or home. A list of forty such to be prepared by the teacher, for the Inspector to choose from, a list of ten common adjectives also to be prepared.

The Inspector to connect any one of the adjectives with any suitable noun in the list, and to ask for a translation.

The children to be examined orally.

Standard II.—The lists prepared for Standard I. to be extended so as to include 50 additional names of common objects of daily life, 15 additional common adjectives, and 15 verbs denoting common actions.

The Inspector to form simple sentences, each containing not more than 4 or 5 of the above words, and to ask for a translation.

The children to be examined orally.

Standard III.—A list to be prepared including 60 nouns, 25 common adjectives, 25 common verbs (none of which have been included in the preceding list), and 15 simple prepositions. Welsh words selected from this list to be combined by the Inspector into sentences to be translated by the children into English.

The children to be examined orally.

Standard IV.—The foregoing vocabulary to be extended so as to include simple personal pronouns, adverbs formed from adjectives in the vocabulary, a few common adverbs of time and place, and 4 or 5 of the more common conjunctions.

To form simple English sentences, each containing not more than two or three words chosen by the Inspector from the extended vocabulary, and to name the “part of speech” for each English word in a sentence so formed.

The children to be examined orally.

Standard V.—A knowledge of prefixes commonly used in English, and their meanings in Welsh, the more simple forms only to be required. To analyse easy English “simple” sentences, to have a knowledge of number and gender, in nouns and pronouns, and of the simple syntax of nouns and verbs.

The children to be examined orally.

Standard VI.—To know the method of forming in English and Welsh nouns, adjectives, and verbs from one another.

Correction of English sentences containing common errors of speech.

To analyse and parse easy English “simple” sentences.

Standard VII.—Paraphrase, in Welsh or English, of simple poetical passages. Making sentences illustrating the right use of given words and phrases.

To analyse and parse short complex English sentences.

Notes.—1. In the work of Standards I. II., and III., the children not to be required to parse any word or distinguish any “parts of speech” as such, but simply to know the words in both languages and their use in sentence making.

2. In the work of Standards VI. and VII., examination to be oral or written at the option of the managers.

3. In schools in which this class subject is taken for the first time, the instruction shall not, during the first year, extend beyond Standard IV.

Stage I.—Lists including 80 names of common objects of daily life, 10 common adjectives, and 10 verbs denoting common actions to be prepared in each of the two years over which this stage extends. The Inspector to combine any one of the adjectives with any suitable noun in the list, and to ask for a translation. He may also require from children in the second year of this stage a translation of simple sentences formed by the Inspector from the above lists, and containing not more than four or five words.

Stage II.—A list to be prepared, including 60 nouns, 25 common adjectives, 25 common verbs, and 15 simple prepositions, none of which have been included in the preceding lists. Welsh words selected from this list to be combined by the Inspector into sentences to be translated by the children into English.

To form simple English sentences, each containing not more than two or three words chosen by the Inspector from the extended vocabulary, and to name the "parts of speech" for each English word in a sentence so formed.

The children to be examined orally. Answers in the latter part to be expected only from children in the second year of this stage.

Stage III.—A knowledge of prefixes commonly used in English, and their meanings in Welsh. The more simple forms only to be required.

Note 1.—Classification for these stages to be at the discretion of the managers, although as a rule Stage I. may be expected to correspond with Standards I. and II., Stage II. with Standards III. and IV., and Stage III. with Standards V. and upwards. The work of these Standards is modified in this course to meet the special difficulties of the smaller schools.

2. In the work of Standards I., II., and III., the children not to be required to parse any word, or distinguish any "parts of speech" as such, but simply to know the words in both languages, and their use in sentence making.

ORGANISATION OF THE UNION.

As to the Local Authority.

60. "That this Conference again affirms the principle that the control of all schools, whether Primary or Secondary, should be vested in one and the same authority, elected for educational purposes only; and that the area should be in each case an administrative county, as defined in the Local Government Act of 1888."

65. "That this Conference of the National Union of Teachers, representing some thousands of teachers in the public elementary schools of Wales and Monmouthshire, deprecates the omission, from draft educational schemes now under consideration in Wales, of provision for direct representation of certificated teachers upon the local committees, the county governing bodies, and the proposed Central Intermediate Board of Management of Education in Wales."

DOCUMENTS ISSUED DURING THE YEAR.

I.—REPORT OF DEPUTATION TO THE EDUCATION DEPARTMENT ON TEACHERS' SUPERANNUATION.

[Reprinted from "The Schoolmaster," December 10th, 1892.]

THE Executive of the National Union of Teachers, immediately after the publication of the report of the Select Committee on Teachers' Superannuation, agreed that a memorial should be prepared before the recess, praying the Government to include the question of Superannuation in the Government programme for the next session, and appointed Messrs. Bowden (Acting-President), Ellery (Chairman of Superannuation and General Purposes Committees), Gray (Chairman of Parliamentary Committee), and Yoxall (General Secretary), to present the memorial. A large number of signatures was collected in a few days, but the General Election caused a postponement of the presentation of the memorial. The Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone, in reply to a request that he should receive the deputation, stated that the question should before reaching him go first to the Vice-President of the Committee of Council on Education, and then to the Chancellor of the Exchequer. As a result of communications to these Departments, the deputation waited upon the Vice-President of the Education Department on Saturday last.

Mr. YOXALL having introduced the deputation,

Mr. BOWDEN, on behalf of the National Union of Teachers, thanked the Vice-President for receiving them. He could speak with greater freedom on account of the Vice-President's intimate knowledge of this question, not only as an educationist, but also as a member of the Select Committee on Superannuation. It seemed hardly necessary at this time to press upon the Education Department the need for the superannuation of teachers. The very fact of the Government offering pensions to teachers when they first desired to have a State supply of teachers in 1846 showed that the Government of that day had in view the possibility of such a time coming as they had now reached. The same arguments used then were applicable now, but in his opinion the necessity for superannuation was much increased from the fact that there were now in the service of the State a large number of teachers who had reached the age when they felt themselves incompetent to perform the duties which devolved upon them. This was a State question—a matter for the Department which had the control of education—that teachers should be relieved from their school duties when unable to perform them efficiently. Teachers, although not recognised as civil servants, were discharging public duties entirely under the control of a Government Department; the teacher's certificate was granted by the State, and by the same authority might be suspended. In consequence of the Government admitting to the certificate as many teachers as they pleased each year, the law of supply and demand did not apply to the teaching profession. Besides, the Government did not undertake to find employment for those they certified. The practice of the Government in admitting to the certificate a larger number than could find employment in schools had the effect of reducing the salaries below their natural level. The consequence was that the salaries were very much reduced below what they would be if the laws of supply and demand operated. Teachers therefore could not provide for themselves, and it became the duty of those who employed them to assist the teachers in providing for superannuation. The necessity for superannuation was shown by the Royal Commission which devoted a large part of its inquiry to this subject, and in its report said: "On the whole we should be glad to see a superannuation scheme established. . . . We are of opinion that this scheme of superannuation should be made compulsory upon all teachers certificated after a date to be decided by Parliament. We think that cases not capable of being covered by these simple provisions would not be large in number, and might be met by grants from the Department in augmentation of benevolent funds until the effect of the above scheme was fully developed." The Select Committee on Teachers' Superannuation, which sat during two years, made a report which practically showed the absolute necessity for a scheme of superannuation for teachers. [Mr. Bowden here read extracts from the Report which appeared in The Schoolmaster of 4th June last.] As a witness before the Select Committee [one of the questions put to him was whether he spoke not only for the members of the Union, but also for those outside. The National Union of Teachers then consisted of about 18,000 members. Since that time the number had increased, and by the end of this year would probably reach about 21,000. The Memorial of the Union was sent to all its local branches, but as some of the members are in remote districts and the signatures were collected hastily, the list of signatures did not contain the whole of the members of the Union. The form of Memorial had been signed by the Archbishop of Canterbury, 14 bishops, 102 members of Parliament, in addition to a large number of members who had expressed themselves in favour of a scheme of superannuation for teachers, 35 School Boards whose seal was attached or the Memorial signed on behalf of the Board by order of a resolution, 1,251 members of School Boards, 6,526 managers of schools, 34 Inspectors, 16,205 other persons interested in Education, 1,159 students in Training Colleges, 161 members of staff of Training Colleges, and 35,668 teachers. [Mr. ACLAND: How many outside the Union?] Mr. BOWDEN thought the number would be about 17,000. The number of teachers who had signed the Memorial was more than double the number of members of the Union who had signed, and had the signatures not been collected so hastily, no doubt the whole of the 49,000 teachers in the country would have signed the Memorial. The various School Boards throughout the country were endeavouring to provide schemes of superannuation for their teachers, and many schemes would have been afloat before now but for the idea that the State itself would take the matter up. School managers were extremely anxious about it. Local bodies were not without sympathy, but the funds at their disposal were of such a nature that they could not superannuate teachers themselves. Their sympathies went so far as to retain teachers who would otherwise have retired and made way for other and more active teachers. The teachers' benevolent funds showed the great amount of misery existing among the teachers, and he had no doubt the applications made to the Education Department confirmed what he said as to the need. The very fact that there were 434 female teachers over 55, and 322 males over 60 years of age now at work in schools, showed the necessity for a scheme of superannuation being set on foot. They asked the Education Department to use its influence with the Government to introduce during the next session, if possible, a Bill for the superannuation of teachers.

Mr. ELLERY said it was his duty as Chairman of the Superannuation Committee to hand in the proposals of the Select Committee, together with the recommendations of the N. U. T., the two being arranged in parallel columns for easy reference and comparison. The National Union was grateful to the Royal Commission and the Select Committee of the House for the reports in favour of superannuation. There could be no question that there was now an overwhelming consensus of opinion in favour of the superannuation of teachers, and this opinion had grown up quite as much from the point of view of the education of the country, as from the feeling that fair play should be given to a class of servants admittedly badly paid. It was evident that the Royal Commission and the Select Committee recognised the principle that if teachers were to retire for the good of education, the State must do something for them. The recommendations of the Select Committee were undoubtedly lower than they would have been but for the fear that the amount required to carry out the scheme would be greater than the House might be inclined to sanction. But the House would be prepared, he believed, to be just and generous, and everything, therefore, seemed to depend upon the Treasury. He did not think it necessary to take up time with a recapitulation of the whole of the details of the scheme. They were briefly summarised, and he would only take up a point or two. The proposal of the Select Committee was that teachers at present at work should on retirement receive a £1 a year for each year of service. This, however, was limited to those who had been at work more than 30 years. Those whose services ranged from 10 to 30 years were to receive 15s. per annum, and all others were to be treated as future teachers and receive 10s. a year. The National Union could not look upon this as satisfactory, and suggested that all teachers at present at work should receive £1 a year for each year of service. They could not look upon the payment of any smaller amount as an equitable arrangement. [Mr. AGLAND: Even if they have been at work only two or three years?] Mr. ELLERY thought there would be considerable heartburning if it were otherwise. The Select Committee very properly recommended that existing teachers should be allowed the option of remaining outside the scheme; and in view of the meagre allowance proposed for those of less than 30 years' work this provision was reasonable, but in the interests of education the subsidy should have been sufficiently large to admit of the scheme being compulsory all round. In addition to the Government subsidy there was the proposal that men should contribute at least £3, and women £2 per annum. These payments would buy a pension certainly no greater than could be obtained from any good society, and therefore this part of the scheme would be no burden to the State. He pointed out that teachers would in this way provide for themselves considerably the larger portion of the total amount received. For this very reason they did not see why the Select Committee recommended that the teachers' pension should not exceed £100—the amount of the Government subsidy being fixed in every case, and the remainder being provided by the teachers themselves. In connection with this the National Union suggested that teachers should be allowed to contribute any sum annually from £3 to £20. The actuary consulted by the Select Committee had certainly taken great pains to guard the fund. From a comparison with other schemes it would appear he had erred on the side of caution. If they took for example the scheme of the L. & N. W. Railway Co., what did they find? That after thirty years' experience the interest upon the funded capital was more than sufficient to meet all demands, and a surplus profit of £30,000 was realised in one year and added to the fund, which then amounted to £370,000. As a matter of fact, 63 per cent. of the interest alone for that year was sufficient to meet all demands. With that experience before them the promoters of the Railway Clearing System, in addition to a very liberal scheme of superannuation allowance, provided that the amount of payment to members voluntarily retiring from the service should be half of their contribution, that the amount of payment t members compelled to leave on account of ill-health before they had been members ten years should be the member's contribution and £4 per cent. simple interest, and in the event of death before superannuation, the member's contribution plus £4 per cent. There was no comparison between the benefits offered by a scheme like this and that of the Select Committee, and he merely mentioned the matter that financial considerations based upon the Select Committee's actuary's report might not lead to the establishment of a scheme which would be unsatisfactory to teachers generally. Both the Police Pension and the Civil Service Pension were far and away in advance of anything that even the National Union proposed, and they could only hope that as a scheme was already in existence—and properly so—for the benefit of the whole Inspectorate, its benefits might be extended to include those whose work was at least as exacting and as important. The Governor of the Isle of Man had just proposed a scheme to the Legislative Council which, in many, if not in all, of its provisions, would form an admirable suggestion to those whose duty it might be to work out some plan for the teachers of England. There it was proposed to deduct 2 per cent. from salaries and award pensions which would undoubtedly give satisfaction here. For example, a man whose salary at retirement was £150 would under this scheme receive a pension of £100, and so on. They hoped and believed that whatever measures might be before the Government in the coming session, the Department would agree with the National Union that in importance the education of the country could not fall behind any one of them, and they trusted, too, that the Government would meet them generously, for in the words of the Bolton working man who, at a public meeting there the other day, spoke in favour of the superannuation of teachers: "No matter how much you pay for education, it is cheap."

Mr. GRAY said his duty was to plead, as they had done before, in favour of a special feature of the superannuation proposals, which was, that whatever scheme should be adopted, adequate provision should be made for those who might break down through physical or mental incapacity before reaching the ordinary age for retirement. He was aware the Committee dealt to some extent with this, but not so fully as they would have liked, and he wished to press very earnestly the wishes of teachers on this point. There was no division of opinion among them. One and all felt that, before they could enter willingly into any National Scheme of Superannuation, it must provide for those hard cases where teachers broke down very often through the zeal with which they performed their own work in school. He referred to the evidence of Mr. Kekewich before the Select Committee, and said that the teachers of the country were intensely grateful to him for the sympathetic spirit which ran through his evidence. Mr. Kekewich there pointed out that a scheme would inflict very great hardship on the teachers if those who were at work in the most difficult schools, and who, through failure of health before reaching the retiring age should not receive the benefit of their own contributions and State aid. Those who were doing the most difficult work, or working under the most trying conditions, were the most likely to break down a few years before reaching the pensionable age. A scheme would be altogether unjust unless it included some provision for such cases. Superannuation was necessary in the interests of Education, and the object of it would be defeated if persons whose health had given way were retained in their schools in order that in a few years' time they might be qualified to retire on account of age. He referred to the practice which obtained in every country in Europe where superannuation schemes were in force. From the report published by the Select Committee it would be found that, incapacity was in every case considered good grounds for awarding the superannuation. The practice at home was the same in other superannuation schemes, such as the Civil Service, and in the existing minutes of the Education Department providing for pensions to teachers who commenced work before 1851, incapacity was regarded as a sufficient ground for awarding the pension. He asked that it should always be considered an adequate ground for the teacher to receive the benefits of a general Superannuation Scheme. There seemed to be a fear in the Superannuation Committee that this would lead to a great deal of abuse, and that it would be impossible to safeguard the State. He suggested that with the medical officers under the control of the Local Government Board it would always be possible to have an official report, and the Inspector of Schools would have had an opportunity of watching the health of the teacher. It would be possible, therefore, for the State to demand not only the recommendation of the managers of the school, but also of H.M. Inspector and the medical certificate from the local officer of health. They considered that with these safeguards there would be no unwarrantable drain on the fund. He admitted the difficulty arising from the fact that there were no statistics showing the number of cases of breakdown, and the number of years they were likely to live afterwards. If the breakdown fund were kept separate from the fund for superannuation, the difficulty would not be so great. It was pleaded in connection with the Irish fund that the difficulty was caused by the claims of this character. The suggestion by the deputation was that looking to the absence of statistical information, and the difficulties of working it should be met by a definite grant in aid for this purpose alone. They believed that the benefit that would be secured, the possibility of imposing a compulsory scheme on the country, and the gain to the schools, would more than recoup the State for what it would cost. They were glad to find that the Department was making some effort to discover the number of cases likely to arise. They hoped it would furnish sufficient information for including a clause of this character in the Bill which they trusted the Government would introduce to the House. He then urged the claims of the aged teachers, who contended that the faith of the State had been broken in the matter of pensions. In 1846 the Education Department issued a Minute that teachers who satisfied certain conditions might receive a pension on retirement. No age was fixed, and the word "may," which appeared in that Minute, although it did not give a legal claim, was generally interpreted, not only by teachers, but by officers of the Department, as giving an absolute claim. The Department for some years declined to recognise the claims of those teachers, but they had finally recognised and admitted it. That Minute remained in force for five years only. In 1851 another Minute was published, limiting the amount that could be awarded to £6,500 a year, 20 pensions of £30 each, 100 at £25, and 150 miserable doles of £20, and the remainder in gratuities, while the original Minute held out that the amount might be as much as two-thirds of the teacher's salary. They did not claim that that meant two-thirds of the present salary, but it undoubtedly meant two-thirds of the average salary then paid to teachers. No one would contend that £30 represented two-thirds of the salary then being paid. Probably £50 to £60 was much nearer the mark. So far as they could gather, no single teacher had ever received the fulfilment of that Minute to the extent of two-thirds of his salary. From 1851 to 1862 the amount was limited to £6,500 a year, and then occurred a change which he could hardly dare to characterise. From the year 1862 to 1875 the operation of that Minute was entirely suspended without the slightest justification—without any reason being assigned. No pensions were awarded, but the money dropped out of the Code entirely. The teachers during that period were unorganised and unable to represent their views. In 1874 the matter was brought forward, and the pensions were reintroduced. During this period about £78,000 was taken for the use of the public service, from the service of the teachers, and at the very least the teachers felt that they were justified in asking that this should be paid back. From 1875 to 1884 those who entered upon teaching under the minute of 1846 never had their claims fully satisfied, but were subjected to the limited Minute of 1851, and it was not until 1884 that the amount was thrown open. Those who became pupil teachers during the period were not admitted to its advantages until 1890 or 1891, and even now there was a small class of teachers who had never received the fulfilment of the promises made to them by the Department at that time. He referred to those who, instead of becoming pupil teachers, went as students to the training college. Whatever might be the prospect of a Superannuation Bill, those teachers should be admitted to the privileges of the Minutes of 1846 and 1851. He knew it was held that those who entered a training college were not bound to follow the profession of teaching. Those who did not could not claim under the Minute, and the Department, consequently, had not those cases to consider, but only those who actually became teachers, and who remained teaching from that day to this. There were men now who had done more than forty years' work who entered the training college to qualify themselves for their work instead of taking the easier course. They claimed that these should be included in the Minute. He drew attention to the bitter distress at present existing among some of those aged teachers. Without entering into the question of superannuation for the whole of the teachers in the country, there were a certain number who were coaxed into the profession by the promise of a pension. H.M. Inspectors and managers of schools visited them and their parents, and they were distinctly urged to enter the profession with the prospect of a pension at the retiring age. As regards those who came in between 1851 and 1862 he believed the Department had about 75 applicants each half year, and was only able to award about 4 pensions. He could quote the evidence of the Secretary of the Department given at the Pension Committee, in which he characterised the amount available as absurdly inadequate. The late Vice-President also referred to it in almost the same terms as the most painful part of his work. To the teachers the amount meant absolute poverty. He had no doubt many teachers, enticed into the profession, after lifelong service for the State, with most miserable salaries, had died in abject poverty in consequence of the failure of the Department to carry out the promises made. In view of the fact that the public service had received the amount he mentioned, whether a Bill be introduced next month or next year—even if introduced early it would take some months to go through—he submitted that the time from now to the passing of the Act should be bridged over by a large extension of the amount granted under Article 130 of the present Code. He urged that the miserable pensions of £20 each were altogether inadequate and should be increased to a minimum of £40 or £1 for each year of service. Those who came in on the unlimited Minute and also the limited should receive a pension approaching £1 a week, no very great sum for the few years they had to live. Those were nearly all people over sixty-five years of age, most of them having seen forty to forty-five years of service. He suggested that the intense distress existing among those older teachers should be met at once by an enlargement of the £6,500 grant. [If the Department were able by the simple publication of a Minute to limit the amount, it was now able by a similar publication to increase it. Without entering into calculations which induced them to make the suggestion the National Union recommended that the sum of £6,500 should be increased until the adoption of a Superannuation Act by a further sum of £15,000 per annum, and that the whole of the pensions under the unlimited Minute should be increased to £40, those already being paid as well as those to be awarded. The amount would not then reach two-thirds of the salary. He ventured to suggest this, knowing the distress among those who, having themselves fulfilled all the conditions of their contract, now looked with intense anxiety to the Department to fulfil the promises into which they entered in 1846. The amount lying in abeyance now reached about £200,000. It was about twenty-three years from the middle of the period when the money was dropped. The amount would have doubled itself by this time, and would have reached about £150,000. The limit which existed from 1851 to 1875 would give another £50,000, and the teachers therefore had lost no less than £200,000 which would have been paid to them had not the Code of 1862 dropped the whole of that Minute.

Mr. AGLAND, in reply, said:—I am very glad to have had the pleasure of receiving so important a deputation from a body so representative as your own. I am glad to have heard that a very strong memorial has been signed and to know how many different classes take a great interest in this subject. For myself, the part which I took on the Committee which reported this year shows the sympathy which I have with your cause, and I shall not enlarge upon that. The whole question of pensions for those who have done good service either to the State or to the best of their ability in private life is occupying a large share of public attention at the present time. The question of the superannuation of teachers has occupied attention for some years not only in the sphere of teachers of elementary schools. For a long time it never occurred to persons in our old Universities that aged teachers were not always the best teachers. But of late years in many of the statutes of the various colleges special provisions have been inserted with a view of providing for the superannuation of the more aged members of the teaching staff of the colleges. In the same way in many of the schemes for grammar schools which have been drafted by the Charity Commissioners of late years provision has been inserted for pensions for teachers. I am afraid that in many cases, although the provisions are there, they have not always been taken advantage of as they ought to have been by the governors in the arrangements for the schools. You have put your case strongly and moderately, and the question we have to ask ourselves is, Why do the teachers come with a special plea of their own on this subject? I think they may fairly point to the fact that already there are public servants to be found who have been liberally dealt with in the matter of pensions. Some allusion had been made to the police; and I understand that the Metropolitan Police alone are receiving as a contribution towards their pensions a sum of £150,000 a year from the Local Taxation account. As teachers I take it you would say it is vitally essential for the welfare of those who may teach that their capacity, and their vigour, and their brightness should be maintained at the highest point; and I think we are all learning to see that the decay of faculties, whether for manual or mental labour, sets in, perhaps, earlier than many have thought to be the case. In manual labour it is certainly the fact that some of the most important trade unions, in making provision for their own superannuation, have recognised that it is so. Thus, the Carpenters' Amalgamated Union provide that their superannuation fund should commence, if necessary, at the age of 50; and the Amalgamated Engineers and the London Society of Compositors, I think, have taken their superannuation at 55. Now, the very lowest at which we ventured to put it in the Committee with the view of obtaining any adequate pension was for future teachers—60 for males and 55 for females; and for present teachers—65 for males and 60 for females. Not only would you raise the question of the necessary maintenance of capacity, and vigour on the part of the teacher, but you would also say that even if the salaries of teachers were large enough to enable them to lay by voluntarily sufficient for their old age, you must in the interest of education consider the case of those who do not or will not lay by, or who are overtaken by some misfortune in their families which makes it impossible to lay by, or some other misfortune in the nature of their investments which sweeps away the provision they have made. I confess I think that makes a strong case. But you add to that in your claim upon the State the fact that formerly the State took action in the matter. It may be as well to state briefly exactly how the matter stands. The teachers who came into the service before 1851 have an unlimited right to claim pensions; but the amount of the pensions is limited to £30 or less. The actual amount now being spent by the State upon those teachers is, I understand, about £12,000 a year. The teachers who came into the service from 1851 to 1862 are on a very limited list indeed. Their number is larger than the first class; and the amount which may be paid to them is limited to £6,500 a year, and is also limited to pensions for £30, £25, and £20. I entirely endorse what my predecessor, Sir W. Hart-Dyke, said on this subject, that few tasks could be more painful than to attempt to allot these pensions. The task which I had to undertake only the other day of attempting to allot nine pensions among eighty-four claimants who came in from 1851 to 1862 is certainly a difficult one and not to be envied. The position in which we stand is that practically nothing, or almost nothing, has been done for a period of about forty years. On the other hand, from the year 1870 and onwards a large number of schools have been built, and therefore a large number of teachers have been brought into the service, and we hardly see what the result of all that will be. In another twenty years we shall be beginning to feel the great pressure which will arise from the large number of aged teachers who will then have been at work say forty years, from the time of Mr. Forster's Act. As to the proposals which have been made there are, I suppose, three sources from which money might be drawn—namely, the teachers themselves, the local bodies, that is, managers or School Boards, and the State. In this connection I must observe I think the words were used under the control of the State. I admit the control so far as giving the certificate, and therefore to some extent regulating the supply, is concerned; but we cannot admit complete control so long as the appointment and dismissal of teachers lies in the hands of local bodies. With regard to the contributions of teachers already under the proposals you have laid before the Committee, you admit that as a vital part of the scheme. You think that even those who are receiving the smallest salaries could contribute, men £3 and women £2 a year. I quite agree with what has been mentioned when this subject has been discussed, more than once, that the salaries of many teachers are so low in this country—by no means all, because a certain minority are well paid—but the salaries of many are so low that a larger sum than that could not be demanded. As to the local bodies, suggestions were laid before the Committee for that purpose, but the difficulties are obvious. A large School Board might make contributions, but it is much more difficult to arrange the contributions from the Voluntary schools. In this connection I think the proposals that were first brought before the Committee of large School Boards forming different pension funds would raise great difficulties. No doubt the London School Board could arrange a scheme of its own which might form a precedent for others down to smaller School Boards, but to have a set of separate schemes being passed through the House of Commons after the manner of Railway Bills would at once put the whole question of teachers' superannuation in a very difficult position. It would not deal with the Voluntary schools at all, and the whole question of interchange of teachers would add to the complexity. Then we have the question of the contributions of the State, as to which you made definite suggestions, and as to which there are, of course, two parts, the contributions which will deal with the present teachers, and the contributions which will deal with future teachers. As to the recommendation of the Committee, it was proposed that compulsory retirement should take place in the case of future teachers at 60 in the case of men, and 55 in the case of women, but that they should have the option of retiring any time during the preceding five years. It was then proposed that the State should contribute 10s. a year for each year of back service towards the pension to which the teachers themselves had contributed at the minimum rate of £3 a year in the case of males, and £2 a year in the case of females. The proposal for existing teachers was somewhat modified, the date of retirement being put later and the contribution from the State being slightly increased for a certain number of years, but not, in the opinion of yourselves, increased to the extent to which you think desirable. A specimen case was given which illustrates the working of that method by the Committee. A male teacher entering at the age of 23, and contributing £3 a year up to 60 years would by his own contribution purchase a superannuation of about £25 a year, and the State adding its share at the rate of 10s. a year for each year of service would pay about £18, which would make the pension of about £43 a year. A female teacher contributing less would of course receive less. Her £2 contribution ceasing at 55 would only bring her a pension of £10 (you must observe the enormous difference in the pension which is made by cutting off five years), while from the State she would receive about £16, or a total of about £26 or £27 a year. I think you rightly came to the conclusion that £43 or £44 in the case of a male teacher, and £27 in the case of a female teacher, was as low as you could reasonably go. Having given this example of the method suggested, which I need not work out in more detail as to existing teachers, I must take the question of the expense to the State of the State contribution on the basis I have named. The expense to the State in respect of existing teachers and future teachers together, if the scheme which I have mentioned of this contribution based upon 10s. a year for back service, and a somewhat larger amount for future teachers, were at once carried out, would be as follows:—It would cost about £160,000 a year for the next ten years to the end of the century; £280,000 a year from 1901 to 1910; £500,000 a year from 1911 to 1920; £700,000 a year from 1921 to 1930; then it would begin to go down again, and would cost half a million a year or rather more from 1931 to 1940; so that in the next fifty or sixty years it would cost something like £22,000,000, of which, you may say roughly, £12,000,000 would be the cost for future teachers, and £10,000,000 for existing teachers. That is the way in which the scheme is presented by the actuary and in which it has been presented to the Treasury. Mr. Ellery remarked very rightly that everything appeared to depend upon the action of the Treasury, and I entirely agree with him in that remark. It certainly is the duty and the sincere desire of the Treasury to examine the whole case with genuine sympathy, but I must not disguise anything from you as to the kind of considerations which will come before the Treasury in the matter, and I want to state the whole case as frankly as I can. Mr. Sutton's figures before the Select Committee are based upon interest at 3 per cent., and I think the Treasury would not admit that, from its own point of view, taking charge of the funds, it could guarantee an interest so large as 3 per cent. Of course, I do not contravene the figures as to other methods of investment. Then comes the extremely important matter of the breakdown from ill-health before attaining the pensionable age. This scheme to which I alluded ignored the whole of that very painful and extremely important subject altogether, and, therefore, if breakdowns are to be taken into account—and I agree with much that Mr. Gray said—it would largely increase the expensiveness of the proposal. I was one of those on the Committee who were anxious in the first instance to see plainly what the cost of a pension system for old age alone would be, and that we should have it in such a form that it would bear actuarial investigation; but I fully agree with much that Mr. Kekewich said on this subject, and my experience since I have been in the Department has served to confirm that view. But the consideration of breakdowns, whether as part of the proposal or independently of it, must of course mean a large increase of expenditure. I think in that connection I should give some figures which Mr. Kekewich put before the Committee, to show that in dealing with the existing pensions, which may be inadequate in amount and small in number, a good many have been given to persons under the age which we consider the pensionable age. Since 1875, while 459 pensions were given to men over 60, 204, or nearly one-third, were given to men under 60, and while 357 were given to women over 55, 124, or about a quarter, were given to women under 55. That shows that the Department in dealing with the question has constantly had to give pensions to teachers who have broken down before reaching the pensionable age. Mr. Sutton, in dealing with the question was not able to give us any figures at all. He treated that to a great extent as a question of sick pay. I quite agree that more safeguards might be obtained than some of us in the Committee thought possible, but there is no doubt that the question of breakdown must be approached actuarially from Mr. Sutton's point of view. The Treasury, also, looking at the constant demands of our Department, perhaps bears in mind that it is but a very little while since it deposited £2,000,000 in addition to what it had already given to education for the purpose of free education. That does not affect your question at all, but it may affect those who have charge of the finances of the nation. I sometimes wonder whether the whole of that £2,000,000 is being spent upon educational work, and whether in some cases we have really provided a surplus which might be going simply to reduce contributions from rates or from voluntary sources. If I could identify the money and label it, and could not apply it to educational purposes which had a special prior claim, I should be delighted to turn it into the channel into which you gentlemen desire to see public money flow. But that is a very difficult task. Then we all regret the partial breakdown of the Irish scheme. It must afford a most unwelcome example to the Treasury of the difficulties of these proposals. The Irish scheme started with an advantage of £1,300,000 out of the Irish Church surplus. But on an examination being made a year or two ago, the fund, which was supposed to show in 1884 a surplus of £197,000 was computed to show in 1890 a deficit of £196,000, and in a Parliamentary paper on the subject the ominous words were used: "It is a question whether it may not prove to be considerably more." I only mention this to show that from the financial point of view there are certain difficulties and warnings. I have taken very careful note of what Mr. Gray said about the extension of Article 130 and about the pension of those who were in the training colleges, and, as far as I can, I shall certainly give that very careful consideration indeed; but I have no power to make any promise on the subject on behalf of the Treasury at this particular moment. It is a matter in which I am deeply interested. At the present moment the situation is a very difficult one. It is common knowledge that we are not at a time when financial prospects are extremely rosy, and of course those are times when new demands on the Exchequer are specially difficult. I do not think it would be wise to make any suggestions for alternative proposals. In many ways you think the proposals of the Select Committee are not adequate to the situation. You admit we did our best to follow the lines laid before us, especially by the National Union of Teachers itself, not following them in every detail but to a very considerable extent. Many persons would say concerning alternatives, Is it not possible for teachers to make larger contributions themselves? Your answer would be that if salaries in the case of less well paid teachers were more adequate than now, the teachers would not be unwilling to make more adequate contribution; but that now in the present condition of salaries it would be extremely difficult to press them to do so. Then some might say, Is it not possible to make arrangements for future teachers at any rate, and make up for the mistakes of the past, if there have been mistakes? I suppose your reply would be that you are not prepared to accept any proposal which merely provides for the future without making provision for the present teachers. I have spoken perfectly frankly, and I hope you know I view your case with the strongest sympathy. I am glad you have alluded to the sympathetic current which runs through Mr. Kekewich's evidence, because that is a guarantee that you have his sympathy as fully as you have mine. The whole of the financial side of the question is being considered, and I have tried to throw some light upon matters which must be in the mind of the Treasury at the present time. I leave the whole question, without suggesting alterations, for your very careful consideration, and I can assure you that the question shall have, as it has already had in the past, my fullest and warmest sympathy.

Mr. YOXALL expressed the thanks of the Union for the kind and full hearing accorded to the deputation by Mr. Acland, although he would not conceal from Mr. Acland the fact that they did not regard his statement as giving them grounds for hope for early action in the way of superannuation, or as being as favourable as the strength of their claim and the public support given to them had led them to hope and expect. Yet he felt sure that the matter in Mr. Acland's hands would receive the kindest and ablest consideration. The deputation then withdrew.

II.—NATIONAL STATE-AIDED SUPERANNUATION FOR TEACHERS IN PUBLIC ELEMENTARY SCHOOLS.

MEMORANDUM.

A Select Committee was appointed by the House of Commons in 1891, on Teachers' Superannuation, and was re-appointed on February 15th, 1892,* to consider the best system of providing Superannuation for Public Elementary Teachers in England and Wales.

The report of the Committee, dated May 27th, 1892, expressed the opinion that—

“A national or general fund, embracing all Elementary School Teachers, subject to the direction of the Education Department, is best calculated to advance the interests of education, and to give satisfaction to the great body of teachers.

“The evidence, together with a study of educational conditions, convince your Committee that superannuation is necessary for the sake not only of the teachers but of the schools. It is proved that after a certain age the teachers lose the vivacity needful for success, and that unless they can be superannuated they will be retained in positions which, despite their best exertions, they cannot efficiently fill. The question thus becomes one of educational policy as well as of benevolence towards a body of public servants. In this body your Committee include both men and women in Voluntary Schools and Board Schools. Your Committee recognise the undesirability of granting any further aid from the State, however indirectly, to schools not under popular control; but as the State demands the same qualifications from all Teachers alike, and as Teachers are continually passing over from Board Schools to Voluntary Schools, and vice versa, your Committee do not see that they can justly differentiate between them in the matter of Superannuation.”

“It is impossible, as your Committee apprehend, that pensions should be allowed to Teachers from public funds without contributions from themselves. If that be so, then the Teachers must be prepared to make this provision partly at least by their own contributions. As a matter of possibility a pension fund from their own contributions could be established and maintained by private arrangements; but in practice it is known from experience that this will not be done to a sufficient extent, and even if done would be the means of only providing inadequate pensions in consequence of the smallness of many Teachers' salaries. If, then, a system of Superannuation is to be called into existence there must be some authority, some organisation, and even some aid from the State, that is, from Imperial funds."

* The Committee consisted of the following Hon. Members:—Sir Richard Temple (Chairman), Mr. Arthur Acland, Mr. Bartley, Mr. Baumann, Mr. Causton, Mr. Conway, Mr. Duncan, Mr. Thomas Ellis, Sir Julian Goldsmid, Mr. John Kelly, Mr. W. F. Lawrence, Mr. Lawson, Sir Richard Paget, Mr. Francis Powell, Mr. Bowntree, Mr. John Talbot, Mr. Tuite.

The Committee took evidence upon all matters arising out of this question, and in particular with regard to the desire of the Teachers generally for the establishment of a system of Superannuation. Upon this point the Committee reported :—

"The Teachers all ask for some assistance from Imperial funds towards providing Superannuation, on the ground that their lifelong service is rendered to a nation by whom the national importance of education has been acknowledged. And they cite the example in this respect set in other countries where the importance of education has been acknowledged quite as much as in our own country. They are all willing that the Superannuation Fund formed partly by their contributions and partly by Imperial funds should be managed by the Education Department of the Government."

Among the arguments adduced by the teachers as reasons for State-aid in this matter are the following :—

1. Teachers, although not recognised as civil servants, are discharging public duties, and are entirely under the control of a Government department.
2. The teacher's certificate is granted by the State, and by the same authority may be suspended.
3. In consequence of the Government admitting to the certificate as many teachers as they please each year, the law of supply and demand does not apply to the teaching profession.
4. The Government do not undertake to find employment for those they certify.
5. The practice of the Government in admitting to the certificate a larger number than can find employment in schools has had the effect of reducing the salaries below their natural level.
6. Most teachers receive such small salaries that it is impossible for them to make provision for old age. Of the certificated masters, 42 per cent. are receiving less than £100 a year; and 58 per cent. of the certificated mistresses receive less than £75 per annum. To remove such teachers when they become incapacitated is simply to throw the cost of their support on the poor rate.

7. It is impossible for a teacher in a public elementary school to secure a marketable "goodwill" as the result of long and successful service. Any commercial interest in a school is expressly forbidden by the Education Code.

8. Teachers who, by reason of age, have become unable to efficiently discharge their duties, retain their appointments as a means of livelihood; the education of the children consequently suffers, and the locality is often deprived of that grant from Imperial sources which would be secured by the employment of a younger teacher.

The Royal Commission on Education in 1888 reported in favour of the establishment of a superannuation scheme, and the proposal has met with approval generally. This statement is supported by the fact that a memorial in favour of the establishment of a State-aided scheme of superannuation for teachers in public elementary schools, issued in the latter part of 1892, received the signatures of the following persons interested in the promotion of education:—

The Archbishop of Canterbury.

14 Bishops.

102 Members of Parliament.

35 School Boards (whose seal was attached, or the memorial signed on behalf of the Board by order of a resolution).

1,251 Members of School Boards.

6,526 Managers of schools.

34 Inspectors.

16,205 Other persons interested in education.

1,159 Students in training colleges.

161 Members of staff of training colleges and 35,668 Teachers.

In reply to a deputation from the National Union of Teachers, the Vice-president of the Committee of Council on Education, on December 3rd, 1892, said:—"I can assure you that the question shall have, as it has already had in the past, my fullest and warmest sympathy." In reply to a question in the House of Commons, on February 10th, the Vice-president said the subject of provision for teachers in old age was one of great importance, but it had not been found possible to embody in a Bill any proposals which could be laid before Parliament this year.

SUMMARY OF SPECIFIC RECOMMENDATIONS OF SELECT COMMITTEE, 1892.

AMENDMENTS SUGGESTED BY NATIONAL UNION OF TEACHERS.

Resolution of Executive, June 3rd, 1892 :—

“That the Executive of the National Union of Teachers expresses sincere thanks for the unanimous recommendation by a Select Committee of the House of Commons that a system of Superannuation for Teachers in Public Elementary Schools should be by law established, and gratefully recognises the good intent and arduous labours of that Select Committee, but at the same time the Executive deeply regrets that the amount of the proposed state subsidy is so low that the pensions in most cases would be altogether insufficient. It therefore begs to submit the following amendments to the Committee’s recommendations as representing the lowest possible terms that it can recommend the teachers of the country to accept.”

DEFINITION.

I.—For superannuation teachers to be regarded as “future teachers” and “existing teachers.”

II.—Future teachers to mean certificated teachers in public elementary schools appointed after certain date, and those of ten years’ standing or less at date of scheme coming into operation.

III.—Existing teachers to mean certificated teachers before a date to be fixed after introduction of scheme, other than teachers of ten years’ standing included in the term “future teachers.”

“Future teachers” to mean those certificated after the date of the scheme coming into operation.

GENERAL.

IV.—Superannuation Fund to be formed, to which all future teachers must contribute.

V.—Fund to be managed by Education Department free of charge; annual return to Parliament; actuarial inquiry every ten years to be reported to Parliament.

VI.—Teachers' contributions to be deducted by Education Department from grants to schools, and managers to deduct same from salaries. Teachers out of employment contribute direct to Department.

VII.—Superannuation to be paid quarterly.

FUTURE TEACHERS.

VIII.—Males to contribute at least £3 per annum, and females £2 each.

IX.—Funds contributed to be in custody of State—interest 3 per cent.

X.—State pension in addition to pension from own contributions to be 10s. a year for each year of service subject to recommendation XVI.

XI.—Compulsory retirement at age 60 males, 55 females.

XII.—Optional retirement at ages 55 to 60 males, and 50 to 55 females, at reduced pension, according to table.

XIII.—Superannuation to be annuity purchasable by total contributions according to table, plus superannuation reckoned at ten shillings annually during period of service.

XIV.—Male teachers to contribute additional £1 per annum for each £25 of salary over £80, and females over £55, for purchasing increased annuity.

Having regard to the fact that the subsidy to the Teachers' Pension Fund is provided for entirely out of Government funds, any profits arising at the Decennial Valuation shall be appropriated to that portion of the Pension Fund provided by the teachers' contributions.

Interest at "not less than" 3 per cent.

Retiring age should be same as for present teachers—viz., optional at 60, compulsory 65 for males; and optional 55, compulsory 60; for mistresses.

Additional contributions should be optional up to £20.

XV.—After ten years' service teachers leaving in good health can withdraw portion of contributions, to be calculated according to table. This not to be allowed when Department cancels certificate.

XVI.—Teachers out of employment may contribute for not more than three years, but not to receive State pension in respect to the period of absence, provided that this recommendation shall not be applicable to short periods of absence or vacation not exceeding three months.

EXISTING TEACHERS.

XVII.—Existing teachers permitted to join Fund within one year from establishment.

XVIII.—Each male teacher who joins to contribute £3 per annum, and each female £2.

XIX.—For those who join retirement to be compulsory at 65 (males) and 60 (females), and optional between 60 and 65 (males) and 55 and 60 (females) on reduced superannuation.

XX.—The State pension for each year of past service to date of establishment of fund to be £1 for those who have been teachers more than thirty years, and 15s. for those less than thirty years.

The words "after a service of ten years" should be omitted, so that surrender value of contributions could be taken at any time.

The amount of the surrender value should be not less than one-half of the amount paid in.

The surrender value should be paid even if the certificate be cancelled. There should also be a Court of Appeal against the decision of the Education Department to cancel the certificate.

In the case of a teacher leaving the profession for any period of time, and not taking out the surrender value, and subsequently resuming as a teacher, the amount of the pension should be that which would be purchasable by the two series of contributions. Substitute "out of the profession" for "of absence."

Omit the words "not exceeding three months."

In view of the meagre subsidies allowed under the scheme for teachers of less than thirty years' service the option for present teachers to remain outside the scheme is regarded with satisfaction; but in the interests of education the subsidy should have been sufficiently large to admit of a compulsory scheme.

The amount should be at least £1 for every year of past service for all teachers at the date of the establishment of the fund.

XXI.—State pension for existing teachers to be ten shillings for each year of service.*

XXII.—Superannuation to be the annuity which total contributions would purchase, according to table, plus State pension aforesaid.

XXIII.—Teachers to have option of contributing additional sums, provided all pension earned, including State pension, did not exceed £100.

XXIV.—Teachers leaving service or out of employment to be under same rules regarding return and continuation of contributions as future teachers.

The following words should be omitted: "provided that the whole pension earned, including the State pension, shall not exceed £100."

Approved, subject to modifications suggested for No XVI.

The return of Premiums. — The Government should make provision, by means of an optional ancillary scheme, for the return of premiums in the event of death.

CASES OF BREAK-DOWN AMONG TEACHERS.

On this point the Select Committee report as follows:—

Your Committee have anxiously considered the question of making some provision for teachers, who may be compelled, by physical incapacity, to retire before reaching the pensionable age.

The need for such provision has been strongly urged by the great majority of witnesses. The teachers all desire the introduction of such a provision.

By most schemes for superannuation of public officials, whether in the United Kingdom or in other countries, and at present, under the limited system of superannuation now in force under the control of the Education Department, such a provision is made.

It cannot be doubted that great hardship would arise in many cases if no such provision be made.

If, for example, teachers having served, say, 30 years, became physically incapable at the age of 50, and after having subscribed to the fund for 30 years, were

Provision should be made for cases in which teachers are compelled by physical incapacity to retire before reaching the pensionable age, and teachers should have some representation in the management of the Break-down Fund.

* Presumably the words "after the date of establishment of Fund" are inferred. See Committee's Proceedings, p. xxiii.

compelled to retire, leaving behind them the whole of their subscriptions for superannuation, without any right to claim any pension or gratuity whatever, the case would, by universal consent, be deemed one of extreme hardship.

It has been contended that this is a question of sick pay and not of superannuation, which should be strictly confined to old age.

Your Committee has further been informed by Mr. Sutton that no sufficient data exist on which an actuarial calculation can be framed of the cost of such provision.

Your Committee cannot doubt that, by some means, provision ought to be made for these cases.

Your Committee accordingly arrive at the conclusion that, though they are prevented, by the circumstances mentioned, from including such a provision within the strict limits of their superannuation scheme, it would be right that due provision, under proper safeguards, should be made to meet these cases.

III.--INTERVIEW WITH SECRETARY OF SCIENCE AND ART DEPARTMENT.

REPORT OF A MEETING HELD IN THE SECRETARY'S OFFICE, SCIENCE AND ART DEPARTMENT, FRIDAY, 22ND JULY, 1892.

Messrs. Greenwood (Deputy President), Wild, B.A. (Chairman of the Education Committee), and Organ, R.A., met General Donnelly, C.B. [The previous interview, to which reference is made in this report, took place on July 16th, when Messrs. R. Greenwood (Deputy President), R. Wild, B.A. (Chairman of Education Committee), and C. James (Assistant Secretary) conferred with General Donnelly, C.B.]

General DONNELLY said that since he last saw the deputation, and discussed the matters then submitted to him, he had been able to communicate with the Vice-President, and was now in a position to state more definitely what modifications or concessions could be made.

The first point was with regard to the words "for the present" in Paragraph 7 of the Regulations for Drawing in Elementary Schools, and the Vice-President, who was very anxious to protect the old teachers as far as possible from being in any way injured by these new rules, had sanctioned the addition of these words to Paragraph 7: "If it should at any future time be found expedient or necessary to impose the condition, that the teacher of drawing should hold a certificate from the Science and Art Department, teachers of elementary schools who were certificated as such, and engaged in teaching before the 1st January, 1893, will be exempted from its operation." That is to say, no school will be disqualified from earning a grant for drawing on the ground that its teacher was not certificated in drawing, if he had been certificated as an elementary school teacher, and teaching as such in that or any other elementary school before the 1st January, 1893.

Mr. GREENWOOD pointed out that this would be no relief to those who had already commenced as pupil teachers, and also asked if the question of an easier certificate had been considered.

General DONNELLY said that the new elementary drawing certificate, as he had pointed out before, did not really require so much as the old "D," but still he and his colleagues thought that, under the present circumstances, it might be desirable to have a second class of this certificate, for which the requirements would only be a pass in the elementary stage of Science Subject I., and a second class in freehand and in model drawing. The Vice-President had sanctioned this; but of course the details would have to be considered.

Mr. GREENWOOD said that the School Board for London were going to send a suggestion to the Department on this point. (Printed paper shown to General Donnelly.)

General DONNELLY (after reading paragraph) said that he thought the Board were under a misapprehension: the elementary stage of Science Subject I. was taken in place of Section 1 of that subject and of perspective. Perspective was taken out, and instead of it more descriptive geometry was required by taking in the whole of the 1st or elementary stage of practical geometry. The substitution of the 1st stage of Science Subject 1 for Section 1 of that same subject and perspective was a distinct easing of the requirements.

Mr. WILD asked if it was understood that this easier certificate would include three subjects only—freehand, model, and shading.

General DONNELLY: No; practical geometry would still remain, but in the other subjects, instead of a 1st class, only the 2nd class would be necessary. Probably shading from casts would not be required at all, but he could not tell them about this precisely. This would have to be gone into more definitely, but there would be a 2nd class and easier certificate.

Mr. GREENWOOD and the other members of the deputation thought this would meet the requirements of the case, and would encourage the teachers to go on.

General DONNELLY said that, with regard to the freedom of classification, he thought there was a good deal of misunderstanding about it, and he had, therefore, put down some points in writing so that they could go fully through it. At the present time, under the Minute, absolute freedom of classification is allowed with the exception that when Standard I. (Code) is taught in the Infant Department and there is no Standard I. (I.) Code for older scholars, the examination of the older scholars in drawing must begin with Standard II., which is the same as Standard I., except that the drawing is on paper and not on slates. Otherwise the children may be classified as thought most desirable. They must be presented for examination in the standards in which they have been taught drawing, and it is laid down that, in ordinary circumstances, scholars should be advanced not less than one standard a year. No one ventures to say that this last requirement conflicts with freedom of classification—in fact, the rule is the same as that laid down in the Code for the principal grant, for the grant for class subjects, and for the grant for specific subjects. The words are the same in the two former, and rather more stringent in the latter. The objection raised is, therefore, not to the requirement, but to the form in which it is safeguarded. Now, it is obvious that the due and proper advancement of the scholar requires safeguarding more in the case of drawing than in the standard subjects, because—

(a) The incentive to get the scholar forward in these latter that he may go to work is absent ;

(b) There is a strong inducement to keep scholars back, as thereby they would do better in the examination, and the grant would be increased ; and

(c) It would be very unfair in schools which pushed their scholars on and only obtained "Good," while those which kept them back obtained "Excellent."

It is no doubt true that in the Revised Instructions (1892) to Inspectors they are told not to ask for exception schedules, "except in the case of children presented in specific subjects." But they are told at the same time that "it will not be necessary for you to inquire into the reasons for the classification of particular children if you are satisfied that the school as a whole is making fair progress. But if you have reason to suppose that there has been any abuse of the freedom given by the Code—if, for instance, low classification is attributable to neglect of the scholars, or if the classification is such as to interfere seriously with the efficiency of the school, it will be your duty to make inquiries."

Now, it is quite easy for H.M. Inspector, who inspects the school from year to year, and makes the report on which the grant depends, to decide "whether the school as a whole is making fair progress." But the Inspector of Drawing has no means of forming such a general opinion. He has to deal with one subject only. His duty is more administrative than technical. The decision as to the efficiency of the instruction in drawing does not rest with him alone, and the Department Examiners, who look over all the papers, must, to arrive at a fair decision, know to what extent scholars have been represented in the same standards, and how far justifiably.

Even with H.M. Inspectors for the grant for specific subjects in day schools, and for both class and specific subjects in evening schools, it is laid down in the Code that "all exceptions"—i.e., to the scholar being presented in a stage higher than the highest in which he has before been presented, "should be specially notified and explained to the Inspector, who will determine whether the explanation justifies the exception." The considerations which dictate this rule in the case of specific subjects are at least as strong, and indeed much stronger, in the case of drawing, for the reasons already given.

From the point of view of teachers and managers—though I am bound to say I have never heard any objection on the part of managers to the rule of the Department that "the reason for not presenting any scholar in a higher standard should be stated" in the schedule—it would, I should have thought, be far more satisfactory that the Inspector should then and there in their presence mark whether he considers "any scholars are absent without reasonable excuse," rather than that he should give his general impression, without going into details, whether the school as a whole was making reasonable progress in drawing, or whether there was an unduly low classification. In the former case the managers and teachers know where they are, and if they think the Inspector is taking too harsh a view of the matter, they have data on which they can appeal to the Department; in the latter case they have not.

No backward scholar need be unnecessarily pushed on to a higher standard to his own detriment, and any reasonable excuse, such as absence from sickness, irregular attendance, incapacity, &c., &c., would always be taken.

Neither I, nor any of the officers immediately connected with the work, remember a case in which the award has been lowered in consequence of the report of the Inspector that scholars have been unreasonably kept back. At the same time I think there is some force in the objection that teachers and managers do not know what the effect of the Inspector's report may be on this head, and I think the Department may very well undertake to inform schools whenever it has been found necessary to lower the award on this ground.

As to the other objection before referred to, that when Standard I. (Code) is taught in the Infant Department, and there is no Standard I. (Code) for older children, the examination of the older children in drawing must begin with Standard II. I do not think there is much force in it—certainly not enough to justify the abrogation of the rule. The subject matter is the same, the only difference being that the drawing is done on paper and not on slates—slightly, but only very slightly, more difficult. On the other hand, drawing is constantly taught in Infant Departments; a specific grant of one shilling is made for it on average attendance when taught; and if the scholars were allowed to take Standard I. drawing in Standard II. (Code), they would, throughout their school career, be one standard behind in drawing and lose much. It is surely not too much to ask, seeing that a grant is made for drawing, that when Standard I. is taken in the Infant Department, drawing should, at all events, be taught in it to that standard.

Mr. WILD stated that the Code says it is not obligatory to teach drawing in Infant Schools.

General DONNELLY said that was so, though he believed it was in the Instructions a few years ago; it was not obligatory now, but there was a specific grant given for it. He thought it was not too much to ask that, when Standard I. is taken in the Infant School, they should teach that standard drawing.

With reference to the inquiries as to the successes already obtained counting towards a "D" certificate, he said it was proposed to send out a circular as soon as practicable to the following effect:—

Candidates who before the 1st January, 1893, have obtained a pass in geometrical drawing, Section 1, Science Subject 1, or a pass in second grade geometry, and also a first class in second grade examination in linear perspective, will not be required to pass in the elementary stage of Science Subject 1 to obtain the new elementary drawing certificate. Neither will they be required to do so if they have obtained a pass in geometrical drawing, Section 1, Science Subject 1, or a pass in second grade examination geometry, and now take a second class in the elementary stage of the new examination in perspective. Neither will they be required to do so if they have obtained a first class in the second grade examination perspective, and now take a pass in geometrical drawing, Section 1, Science Subject 1. A pass in model drawing with chalk on the blackboard taken before 1st January, 1893, will count for the new elementary drawing certificate instead of a first class in the elementary stage of model drawing (Subject 3a), and a pass before 1st January, 1893, in drawing in light and shade will count for the new elementary drawing certificate instead of a 1st class in the elementary state of shading from casts (Subject 5b); and a 1st class before 1st January, 1893, in the 2nd grade examination in freehand will count for the new elementary drawing certificate instead of a 1st class in the elementary stage of freehand drawing of ornament (Subject 2b); and 1st class before 1st January, 1893, in the 2nd grade examination in model will count for the new elementary drawing certificate instead of a 1st class in the elementary stage of model drawing (Subject 3a).

These privileges will be extended to teachers, pupil-teachers, and ex-standard scholars of elementary schools before the 31st August, 1893.

Mr. WILD asked if the 2nd class successes already obtained in these subjects would count for the new inferior or 2nd class "D" certificates.

General DONNELLY: Yes, in a similar manner.

Mr. WILD thought that in that sense it would do very well, and would meet many cases where candidates had been successful in the second class but had failed in the first class examinations. There was another question, mentioned before, as to extending the right to teachers to obtain the free studentships and scholarships.

General DONNELLY said that he had looked up the art free studentship case previously mentioned, and found it was a mistake to say that it had been granted and then withdrawn. The school was simply told the results obtained by one of the students in the school, and that if he were qualified the application for a free studentship for him might be made on the proper form. When the application was sent in it was found that the candidate did not come within the terms of the scholarship, and the school was so informed.

Mr. WILD said they were told that teachers in art schools were eligible to obtain free studentships.

General DONNELLY said that was so if they happened to be artisans, modellers, designers, &c. For instance, a modeller or a designer might very well have been a pupil teacher, and could obtain a free studentship in that way. It was not because he was a teacher in the school, but because he complied with the terms of the scholarship in other ways.

Mr. ORGAN referred to the omission to supply particulars as to the successes in "specifics." No information whatever was given as to whether a child had passed in 1st, 2nd, or 3rd stage of these subjects; the schedules did not show whether the child had passed, and the Education Department absolutely refused to supply any particulars, whether the child had passed in "specifics" or not.

General DONNELLY said that might be so, but he had quoted the rule as it appeared in the Code. That, however, was only an incidental matter, he should think; the deputation would agree with him that it was better for the teachers and the managers to know exactly the facts as they were going to be reported to the Department in the case of each scholar rather than that the Inspector should report broadly his general opinion without giving the details on which he formed it.

With reference to the qualifications for teaching science subjects, this he had explained to the deputation before. It was a rule adopted four years ago. Full and fair consideration had been given to all vested interests, and the Department could not make any alteration in it now.

Also with regard to payments on results in the second class in the elementary stage; this had been fully considered, and the Vice-President had dealt with the matter very fully to a large and important deputation which came before him, and it was now impossible for him (General Donnelly) to reopen the question. The deputation should, however, remember—as he had shown on the occasion of their previous visit—that no good or fairly conducted school or class could possibly be a loser under the new rules, for if the payments on results had been made last year under them they would have amounted to almost exactly the same sum as was actually paid. The better schools would be great gainers, and all schools were provided with a valid claim on the consideration of the local authorities, which he was glad to find was being recognised all over the country, at last even in London.

Mr. GREENWOOD expressed great satisfaction with the concessions that had been made, and especially regarding the position of the older teachers, for which the deputation was very grateful.

IV.—CORRESPONDENCE re TEACHER'S CERTIFICATE.

National Union of Teachers,
71, Russell Square, W.C., 12th May, 1892.

To the Right Hon. Sir William Hart-Dyke, Bart., M.P., Vice-President of the Committee of Council on Education.

SIR,—I am instructed by the Executive of the National Union of Teachers to again respectfully call your attention to the following recommendation made among others by the deputation which you so kindly received on March 5th:—

“That the teacher's diploma shall now and at all times be held to cover the whole of the obligatory subjects in the elementary schools.”

The Annual Conference held in Leeds during Easter week adopted a resolution with reference to the alteration in the Code which contained an expression of regret:—

“That the teacher's diploma is not allowed to cover all the obligatory subjects in elementary schools.”

The Executive attach the greatest importance to the principle involved in the above recommendation, and at their first meeting after the Conference they agreed to request you to receive a small deputation of four members with reference to this subject.—I have the honour to be, Sir, your obedient Servant,

C. JAMES, Acting Secretary.

Education Department, Whitehall, S.W., May 13th, 1892.

SIR,—I am directed by Sir William Hart-Dyke to acknowledge the receipt of your letter calling his attention to a passage in one of the resolutions adopted by the Annual Conference of the National Union of Teachers, which appears to have been due to some misapprehension of the facts, as he is not aware of any subject, in regard to the teaching of which in elementary schools the holders of the ordinary certificate issued by the Department are under any disability, which it is in his power to remove by the introduction into the Code of any such words as those recommended by the deputation and referred to in your letter;—I am, Sir, your obedient Servant,

A. FITZ ROY.

National Union of Teachers,
71, Russell Square, W.C., 23rd May, 1892.

To the Right Hon. Sir William Hart-Dyke, Bart., M.P., Education Department, Whitehall, S.W.

SIR,—I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 13th inst., to the effect that you are not aware of any subject, in regard to the teaching of which in elementary schools the holders of the ordinary certificate issued by the Department are under any disability, which it is in your power to remove by the introduction into the Code of any such words as those recommended by the deputation and referred to in my letter.

While admitting that the certificate issued by the Education Department does at present entitle the holder to teach and earn grants for all subjects included in the Code, the Executive are anxious that the principle contained in their recommendation should be acknowledged by the Education Department, and that the teachers should have some assurance that their certificate will always be a sufficient qualification for teaching and earning the grant for all obligatory subjects in an elementary school.

That there is some reason for this recommendation is shown by the fact that in the Code for 1890 the teaching of drawing to boys in a school for older scholars was introduced among the conditions required to be fulfilled in order that a school might obtain a Parliamentary grant. The examination in this subject does not form part of the ordinary school examination by H.M. Inspector, but is conducted by the Science and Art Department. It is true that the regulations of that Department state—But in view of Article 85 (b) of the English Education Code the possession of a certificate in drawing on the part of the Inspector will not for the present be insisted on as a necessary condition of the school earning the grant for drawing." But the wording of this clause certainly implies the possibility, if not the probability, that in the future some special qualification may be required beyond the possession of the teacher's ordinary certificate.

In justice to the teachers whom the Education Department have certified to be qualified to take charge of public elementary schools, the Executive ask that the diploma shall now and at all times be held to cover the whole of the obligatory subjects of the Code, and their suggestion to send a small deputation on the subject was made in the belief that by placing the bearings of the case before you more fully than is possible in the space of a letter, they might convince you of the necessity for acknowledging the principle suggested and for removing from paragraph 7 of Art Form 1,294, the words "for the present," which are causing a great hardship to a large number of teachers; and also induce the Department to stamp each certificate so as to indicate that it entitles the holder to teach and to earn grants for all obligatory subjects in the Education Code.—I have the honour to be, Sir, your obedient Servant,

C. JAMES, Acting Secretary.

Education Department, Whitehall, S.W.,
May 25th, 1892.

SIR,—I am directed by Sir William Hart-Dyke to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 23rd inst., and to remind you that the Code and the Regulations of the Science and Art Department are not instruments of permanent obligation, but liable to revision from year to year, so that the introduction of no conceivable form of words could secure that the teacher's certificate should at all times be held to cover the whole of the obligatory subjects of the Code. It is true that the terms of the Regulations of the Science and Art Department imply the possibility that in the future some special qualification for teaching drawing may be required, beyond the possession of the teacher's ordinary certificate, but the withdrawal of the words "for the present" would not diminish that possibility to the slightest extent. It has, moreover, been repeatedly explained that the words are retained not to apply pressure to old teachers, but in order to encourage those at the entrance of the profession to obtain some special qualification, and they would obviously have a right to complain if, without the admonition conveyed in such words, they should ever be called upon to provide themselves with the "D" Certificate, as a condition of teaching drawing.

But however that may be, Sir William can only assume responsibility for the policy of the present administration, and I am to point out that paragraph 51 of the Revised Instructions states explicitly, for the information of school managers, that the terms upon which grants for drawing are made, do not require that the teacher shall possess any drawing certificate if the work of the scholars show that they have been satisfactorily taught.—I am, Sir, your obedient Servant

A. FITZ ROY.

To the Right Hon. Sir William Hart-Dyke, Bart., M.P., Vice-President of the Council, Education Department, S.W.

SIR,—At the last meeting of the Executive I reported the correspondence with reference to a teacher's certificate covering the whole of the obligatory subjects of the Code.

The Executive desire to reiterate their recommendation that the teacher's diploma should now and at all times be held to cover the whole of the obligatory subjects in an elementary school. They recognise that such a provision in the Code would not necessarily be permanent, but they respectfully submit that the result could be secured by the Department stamping each certificate, so as to indicate that it entitles the holder to teach and earn grants for all the obligatory subjects in the Education Code as suggested in my letter of May 23rd; and I am instructed to respectfully request on behalf of the Executive that this suggestion may receive the favourable consideration of the Department.—I have the honour to be, Sir, your obedient servant,

C. JAMES, Acting Secretary.

Privy Council Office, 24th June, 1892.

SIR,—I am directed by Sir William Hart-Dyke to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 20th inst., and to point out in reply that the Drawing Regulations of the Science and Art Department have nothing to do with the conditions of the ordinary Parliamentary grant, but are limited to laying down the terms upon which the Drawing grant from that Department may be obtained; and I am to remind you that so long as drawing is reported to be satisfactorily taught, the Education Department is not required to make any inquiry into the qualification of teachers in order to satisfy the conditions of Article 85(b) of the Code. In these circumstances it is not clear to Sir William what is the precise nature of the security, over and above that already enjoyed, which the Executive of the Union apprehend would be afforded if formal effect were given to their suggestion.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

C. James, Esq.

SIR,—Adverting to your letter of June 24th, I am directed by the Executive to point out that although the regulations of the Science and Art Department have nothing to do with the conditions of the ordinary Parliamentary Grant, and notwithstanding your repeated assurances that it is not intended that the regulations with respect to drawing should be the means of applying pressure to the old teachers, it is found practically that the words "for the present" in the Drawing Regulations do lead to cases of hardship especially among the older teachers, and that they also seriously affect their prospects when seeking an appointment in an elementary school, however well qualified such teachers may be in every other respect.

The information submitted by the deputation from the Executive on March 5th shows the extreme difficulty experienced by teachers in obtaining an appointment unless they hold the drawing certificate, and among the older teachers, who are physically incapable of obtaining the certificate, this causes great hardship. It is felt by the Executive that teachers who have obtained the certificate from the Education Department without having been required to pass an examination in drawing, and who have spent the best years of their lives in successful teaching, should not now be compelled to make such strenuous efforts for an additional certificate which they will probably never obtain, or, as an alternative, if circumstances should necessitate a change of school, be practically debarred from continuing in the profession. Technically the Department may disclaim responsibility for any such result, as the Code and Regulations do not require the possession of a drawing certificate as a qualification for the teaching of drawing in an elementary school, but Article 85 (b) of the Code, when read with the implication contained in the Regulations of the Science and Art Department, causes managers when appointing a teacher to secure one technically qualified in drawing. The Executive are confident that the Department would not desire to cancel the certificate of every teacher at the termination of his present engagement, if by that time he had not qualified in drawing, but in practice it is found that the present arrangement often produces the same result so far as the teacher is concerned; and when it is remembered that the teacher may be called upon to resign, owing to circumstances beyond his control, the Executive venture to think it is the duty of the Department to protect the teacher from being placed in such a position.

The Executive would welcome any action taken by the Department to raise the qualification of the teacher for the certificate, but they respectfully submit that when the certificate is issued it should be regarded as a licence to teach, and no question should be raised in the minds of school managers as to the competence of any teacher holding the certificate to teach any of the obligatory subjects of the Code.—I have the honour to be, Sir, your obedient Servant,

C. JAMES, Assistant Secretary.

Privy Council Office, July 22nd, 1892.

SIR,—I am directed by Sir William Hart-Dyke to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 16th inst., and to state in reply that it would be useless at this moment to reopen discussion upon the drawing regulations of the Science and Art Department; but he need hardly say that their operation will be carefully watched, with a view to the removal of any actual hardship that they may be shown to occasion. It must be borne in mind that the information submitted by the Department on the 5th of last March anterior to the alteration made this year in Article 85 (b) of the Code, and that the Vice-President has since, both in his place in Parliament and in communication addressed to the Executive of the National Union of Teachers and others, given assurances as to the practice and intention of the Department, which should have the effect of removing all apprehension from the minds of the older class of teachers.—I am, Sir, your obedient Servant,

ALMERIC FITZ ROY.

V.—CORRESPONDENCE WITH SCIENCE AND ART DEPARTMENT.

71, Russell Square, W.C., 2nd February, 1893.

To the Secretary of the Science and Art Department, South Kensington, S.W.

SIR,—I have to bring under your notice the following suggestions made by the Executive Committee of the National Union of Teachers:—

1. "That the limitation on the teaching of second class science certificates, obtained before 1888, should be removed so that such certificates may empower to teach and earn grants from your Department in any kind of recognised school or class."
2. "That the words 'and teachers of schools receiving grants' should be removed from Section 9 (a) of the Regulations with regard to local committees.—I am, &c.,

J. H. YOXALL, General Secretary.

Department of Science and Art, London, S.W.,

20th February, 1893.

SIR —I have submitted the letter which, on the 2nd inst., you wrote on behalf of the Executive Committee of the National Union of Teachers, to the Lords of Committee o

Council on Education, who regret that they do not see their way to alter the regulation as to the qualification of science teachers which has been in force since the year 1888. I am also to state that their lordships are unable to alter the rule as to the ineligibility of teachers of schools receiving Government grants to act on local committees.

I am to point out that, when a local authority under the Technical Instruction Act constitutes itself in its corporate capacity a committee for the supervision of instruction under this Department no exception is taken, on the ground of his status, to any member of such committee, the same practice obtaining in the case of any committee to which the local authority delegates its powers in accordance with Section 1 (2) of the Technical Instruction Act of 1889.

When, however, a committee is self-constituted, and is not a part of an elective local authority, the Department has found it necessary, for sufficient reasons, to enforce the restrictive clause of the regulations to which exception is taken.—I am, &c.,

J. H. Voxall, Esq.,

National Union of Teachers, 71, Russell Square, W.C.

J. F. D. DONNELLY.

71, Russell Square, W.C., February 9th, 1893.

To the Secretary of the Science and Art Department, South Kensington, S.W.

SIR,—Referring to your letter of the 3rd inst., which states that there is now no "second class" in geometry, I have to say that the term "second class" was used to elucidate the point that, in the opinion of my Committee, a pass equivalent to the old second class in geometry should be sufficient for the purposes of the (second class) elementary drawing certificate. The alterations in the requirements for the second class elementary drawing certificate which my Committee respectfully urge upon your Department are as follows:—

- 1st. That a pass in freehand drawing, a pass in geometry, as it stood in 1891, or Section 1, of Science Subject 1, and the pass in model drawing should suffice. The pass in Section 1 of Science Subject 1 was in 1891 considered sufficient geometry to qualify for the "D" certificate, the second grade drawing certificate, and even for the art class teachers' certificate.

It is reasonable to suppose that for the purpose of the second class elementary drawing certificate, which is, by its very title, a certificate of an inferior degree, the pass which satisfied the requirements in the higher certificates above mentioned, should suffice in the present case. Under the new regulations it appears that a teacher, having passed the geometry examination under the old regulation, must now secure the first class in perspective, in order to qualify for the second class elementary drawing certificate.

It was understood that the second class certificate was to afford means to elderly teachers, and to teachers whose natural aptitude for drawing is below the average, an opportunity of qualifying themselves by certificates to teach drawing in public elementary schools. I am to point out, however, that the severity of the requirements above stated, with regard to geometry and perspective, will prevent teachers availing themselves of that certificate to any satisfactory amount, and will check the whole movement in favour of drawing in public elementary schools.

I beg to bring under your notice, as typical, the case of ——— who holds certificates for a pass in freehand, a pass in geometry—requirements of 1891—and a pass in model drawing and perspective, and to whom the second class elementary drawing certificate has been refused for reasons mentioned above.

The hardship thus caused is obvious, and my Committee cannot but think that the matter requires merely to be directly under your notice to receive a remedy.

- 2nd. I have further to suggest, that the amendment above indicated, if adopted, should be made retrospective as well as prospective in its operations.

3rd. And that no requirements in solid geometry should be imposed on women teachers seeking the certificate.

I am, Sir, &c.

J. H. YOXALL, General Secretary.

Department of Science and Art, London, S.W., 25th February, 1893.

SIR,—I have submitted your letter of the 9th instant to the Lords of the Committee of Council on Education, and I am directed to remind you that the success in Geometry or in Section 1 of Science Subject 1, which, as you observe, counted towards the old "D" certificate, the second grade and the art class teachers' certificates had always to be supplemented by a success in perspective before such "D" certificate was granted.

The course of Drawing prescribed for elementary schools has been much modified since the "D" certificate was first granted. Linear or geometrical perspective no longer forms a part of that course, while the requirements in practical, solid, or descriptive Geometry have been much extended, inasmuch that the knowledge required for passing in Section 1 only of Science Subject 1, is little, if at all, beyond that required by elementary school children in the higher Standard for Geometry.

The possession of a certificate in Drawing on the part of an instructor is not imposed as a condition of a school's earning the grant for Drawing (see par. 7, page 87, Directory, 1892). Therefore, although the Department recognises 2nd classes in Freehand and Model Drawing as successes towards the grant of the 2nd class Elementary Drawing Certificate, My Lords do not feel that They would be justified in lowering the qualifications in respect of Geometry, as this would be tantamount to stating that a pass in section 1 of science subject 1 alone is of sufficient qualification for an instructor.

In fact, the requirements for the 2nd class Elementary Drawing Certificate are as low as they can with any propriety be fixed. They are lower, indeed, than they would have been if they had not been felt desirable under the present exceptional circumstances to give, out of consideration for older teachers, a certificate which they may produce to managers who ask for it as evidence of their possessing at least some slight degree of knowledge and skill superior to such as is very largely secured by scholars in elementary schools.—I am, Sir, &c ,

W. D. DONNELLY.

VI.—AGE AND ATTENDANCE AS THE ONLY QUALIFICATIONS FOR LABOUR.

(Prepared for the Executive by Mr. R. WADDINGTON.)

(Adopted by Executive, June, 1892.)

At present the law affecting child labour is to be found in the numerous Education, Factory and Workshop, and Mines Acts passed since 1870.

So diverse are the qualifications demanded under these several statutes, that unification and codification are absolutely necessary. This must be apparent when it is remembered that the following is

THE PRESENT STATE OF THE LAW.

1.—A child may work full time if,

- (a) Fourteen years of age (Education and Factory Acts); or
- (b) Thirteen years of age, and passed *Standard IV., or made 250 attendances after five years of age, in not more than two schools during each year for five years, whether consecutive or not (Education and Factory Acts); or
- (c) Ten years of age and passed the standard for total exemption fixed by the local bye-laws (Education Act).

But under the Coal Mines Regulation Act employment in connection with a mine is prohibited under the age of 12.

There are twenty-seven districts in England and Wales under school attendance authorities where compulsion is not enforced after the tenth birthday. In these twenty-seven districts there is no exemption standard, and full-time employment commences, under the Education Act, at ten years of age without a proficiency qualification.

Under Section XXVI. of the Factory and Workshop Act (1878), a Secretary of State, with the consent of the Education Department, is empowered to fix the standard for full time employment under that Act, after giving six months' notice in the London Gazette. Notice has been duly given that after September 4th next, where the exemption standard fixed by the local bye-laws is above the Fourth, such standard shall be the standard for full time employment at thirteen years of age in a factory or workshop. The attendance qualification remains as stated above in paragraph 1 (b). The effect of this will be to substitute the varying exemption standard for the uniform standard, and will raise the standard to the Fifth in 4,253 school districts, and to the Sixth in 61 districts. In these 61 districts the standard qualification will be largely inoperative, and the attendance qualification will be the passport to labour. It would thus appear that the action of the Home Secretary is likely to assist the substitution of attendance for standard. The present form of the attendance qualification makes the issuing of these certificates a very difficult matter indeed. The attendances must be for the civil year, whereas all the registration is based on the school year, which may end with any one of the twelve months. By the very slight alteration of making the attendance an aggregate one since the fifth birthday we should have a workable, in lieu of an unworkable, qualification.

*After September 4th, 1892, the standard will be that fixed by local bye-laws for total exemption where that standard is above the Fourth (Factory Act).

The Home Secretary's action will do much to aggravate both parents and teachers. One other anomaly will be added to the law on child labour—a child 13 years of age will be able to work outside a factory, or run the streets after passing the Fourth Standard; but in 4,314 districts he must pass the Fifth or the Sixth Standard to enter the mill or workshop. Suppose a child in Bolton at 13 has only passed the Fourth Standard, the School Board will have no authority by which they can compel his attendance at school, and the child cannot enter the mill or workshop. The child will probably reap all the disadvantages of a street education until he reaches 14.

The administration of the Act will be still more difficult. There is no provision for half-time employment between 13 and 14 unless the full-time standard is passed. If the child has failed to reach the Sixth Standard in Bolton (and it is proposed to make it the Seventh) he must cease half-time at 13, although he may have been working half-time since 10 years of age.

In a large number of districts there is little desire to raise the exemption standard. In spite of the early age at which the requirement is now fulfilled, in 6,852 districts the exemption Standard is the Fourth. There will be less inclination to entertain the question of raising the exemption Standard now that it must also apply to full-time employment at 13, under the Factory and Workshop Act. This will have a bad effect on the education of these districts, since promotion to a higher standard will mean the freeing of the child from the compulsory clauses at an earlier age, instead of the higher mental training which the teacher desires to give, and which the child ought to receive. To perpetuate this early exemption is to continue a very wasteful and extravagant educational system, and the application of the exemption standard for full-time employment at 10 under the Education Act to full-time employment under the Factory Act at 13 is likely to perpetuate it.

From a return presented to Parliament, March 3rd, 1890, the standards for total exemption fixed by the local bye-laws under (c) are :—

	Standard.
	IV.	V.	VI.
Parishes ... ..	6,766	4,016	38
Municipal Boroughs under School Boards ...	17	120	19
Municipal Boroughs under School Attendance Committee ... ..	49	70	1
Urban Sanitary Authorities under School Attendance Committees ... ..	20	47	3
	6,852	4,253	61

Since the average child passes the Fourth Standard at 10 years of age, it is, therefore, not surprising to find from the report of the Committee of Council on Education (1890-91) that out of 482,369 children presented in Standard IV. in 1889, as many as 166,764 disappeared from the examination lists of our schools in 1890 ; while the 813,364 scholars in Standard V. of 1889 fell in the year to 138,273, and the 138,864 scholars in Standard VI. to 41,286.

2.—A child may work half-time if

Ten years of age and has passed the standard for partial exemption fixed by the Local Bye-Laws. (Education and Factory Acts.)

After January 1st, 1893, under the Factory Act the age will be eleven years, and this will affect 78,819 children employed under the Factory Act, whereas the 101,618 half-timers under the Education Act will still be able to commence at 10 years of age.

The standard fixed by the local bye-laws is generally the third, and in 794 districts it is the fourth ; but there are 27 districts under School Attendance Committees where it is the First Standard, and Standard II. is in force in 1,152 parishes under School Attendance Committees ; eleven municipal boroughs under School Attendance Committees, including Chorley, Darwen, and Glossop ; fifteen municipal boroughs under School Boards, including Bacup, Dewsbury, Halifax, Keighley, Macclesfield and Rochdale ; eighteen urban sanitary districts under School Attendance Committees.

In these 1,223 districts there is practically no proficiency qualification in force, for the standard is so low that, to use the words of the Right Hon. A. J. Mundella, M.P. : "The hole is so big that it will admit everybody almost, except an idiot."

THE STANDARD MUST GO.

Since the advent of the present Code, the question of the qualification in addition to age has been forced to the front. Teachers and managers find the freedom and elasticity offered by the Code restricted by the demand of the parent for the labour certificate. Freedom of classification and sample examination, so desirable in the interests of the child and education, are impracticable in the majority of school districts so long as a standard qualification exists. The standard qualification has fostered an unhealthy feeling in the mind of both parent and scholar. The be-all and end-all of education had been the attainment of the labour standard. With the deletion of the standard remains. With the present administration of the compulsory clauses of the Education Act, it would be a very serious blow to our educational system to say that below fourteen years of age children should be allowed to go to work without some guarantee of their educational equipment. In Germany and Switzerland, where compulsion is far more perfect than here, a proficiency test is demanded.

AGE ALONE

Several important School Boards, including Leeds, Salford, and Leicester, recently waited on Sir W. Hart-Dyke, and suggested that the Government should accept after the school examination as equivalent to having passed the previous standard. This would throw the onus on the teacher, and would therefore aggravate the difficulties sought to be removed. It is practically accepting the sample pass in lieu of the pass in all the subjects at present required. In the 1,223 districts where Standards I. and II. prevail the qualifications would be still easier to attain than at present. At present a pass in reading, writing, and arithmetic is demanded ; but under this system a pass in one subject only would suffice, or, if the parent of the child was powerful enough, promotion might be demanded without question of ability to pass.

PROMOTION INTO A HIGHER STANDARD

The Education and Factory Acts allow a child to work full time with a

CERTIFICATE OF ATTENDANCE

when thirteen years of age. Why should not this principle apply to all labour?

With the system of inspection, supervision, and competition, there can be no danger in establishing the principle that attendance at a Certified School is a better guarantee of proficiency than the passing of a labour standard.

The Executive of the National Union of Teachers suggests :—

- 1.—That age and attendance be the only qualifications for labour.

2.—That the following be the conditions for full-time employment under the Education, Mines, Factory and Workshop Acts :—

- (a) Thirteen years of age, and 2,400 attendances since the fifth birthday ; and after the first January, 1894, 2,600 attendances since the fifth birthday ; or
- (b) Fourteen years of age.

3.—That the following be the conditions for half-time employment :—

- (a) Eleven years of age, and 2,100 attendances since the fifth birthday ; and after the 1st January, 1894, twelve years of age and 2,400 attendances since the fifth birthday.
- (b) That the child must be “beneficially and necessarily” employed.
- (c) The local authority to be empowered to inquire whether the income of the family is such that the earnings of the child are necessary.
- (d) That no child under thirteen years be employed before 8 a.m. between the 1st October and 31st March.
- (e) One half at least of the attendances of any child attending school half-time only shall be during the morning ; and such child shall attend school during mornings one week and afternoons the next.

4.—That No. 11 of the revised regulations as to certificates of age, &c., be amended, so as to provide that a charge shall be made for the certificate in all cases after the child had left school.

5.—That special inspectors of attendance may be appointed Imperially at an early date to supervise local administration in respect to school attendance.

The adoption of these suggestions would make the attainment possible for every child, whereas the present standard qualification frees the bright and sharp child and detains the slow and mentally dull. The teacher would be able to take advantage of the freedom and elasticity of the Code to the benefit of the school and the nation. The parent's interest would be a healthier one, and both parent and scholar would become potent auxiliaries of the attendance officers. Twenty years ago, the for children over ten years of age might have been a necessity, but with the organised trades in favour of no child working under thirteen, and in view of the disastrous effect on our educational machinery produced by the low standards fixed by the local authorities, it may now be dispensed with. On the boundaries of most of our large towns the exemption standards, for half and full time, vary on different sides of the same street, owing to the varied demands of the local bye-laws.

It is too much to anticipate from the 6,852 districts where Standard IV. is the full-time exemption standard the immediate raising to the Sixth ; but it is possible by the introduction of attendance as the qualification in lieu of Standard to obtain national uniformity.

HOW CAN THIS BE ATTAINED?

Shortly, the age for half-time under the Factory Act will be eleven, and under the Education Act ten. The anomaly of the present state of the law is seen when it is found that a child can work full time in a coal mine at twelve after passing the exemption standard; and that at ten years of age, a child (after passing the exemption standard, which is generally the Fourth) may be a butcher but not a baker, a shopkeeper but not a tailor, a furniture broker but not a cabinet maker, a book-keeper but not a bookbinder.

The various Acts that apply to the child labour want revising and amending. Under the Factory and Workshop Act (1887), the age for full time is fixed by the Act and the standard and previous due attendance qualifications are fixed from time to time by the Secretary of State, with the consent of the Education Department, and thus the necessity of the time can be met without the trouble of a new Act, if in a new Act of Parliament dealing with all child labour, the method of the Factory Act in dealing with full time employment were followed. The clauses might read thus:—

- 1.—Every person who takes into his employment a child of the age of eleven (after the 1st of January, 1894, twelve) before that child has attained such standard of previous due attendance at a certified school as hereinafter mentioned, shall be deemed to take such child into his employment in contravention of the Act, and shall be liable to a penalty accordingly.
- 2.—When a child of the age of thirteen has obtained from a person authorised by the Education Department a certificate of having attained such standard of previous due attendance at a certified efficient school as hereinafter mentioned, that child shall be deemed a young person* for the purposes of this Act.

The due attendances for the purpose of these sections shall be such as may be from time to time fixed for the purposes of this Act by the Education Department, and the standards so fixed shall be published in the London Gazette, and shall not have effect until at least six months after such publication.

The attendance should be an aggregate one since the fifth birthday, in fairness to the child and in the interest of the teacher. A yearly attendance means a civil year's attendance, and with the present varieties of school years the making out of certificates would be no light task. But in the interests of the child a yearly attendance acts unfairly, since a child may attend with perfect regularity every year but one, when through sickness it may just fail to reach the required number of attendances. With an aggregate attendance there would be the least possible disturbance of existing arrangements. The attendances would have to be carried forward in the register from year to year throughout the school life of the child thus:—

1891.—FIRST QUARTER.

	Name.		Quarter.	Last year's forward.
1	Smith, John ...	18 weeks' attendances.	101	430
2	Jones, Albert ...		103	425
3	Roberts, Will. ...		108	427

1891.—FOURTH QUARTER.

	Name.		Quarter.	Brought Forward.	Year's.	Previous Year's.	Total.
1	Smith, John...	13 weeks' attendances.	110	305	415	430	845
2	Jones, Albert		110	306	416	425	841
3	Roberts, Will.		109	302	411	427	838

. 1892.—FIRST QUARTER.

	Name.		Quarter.	Previous Year's.
1	Smith, John ...	13 weeks' attendances.	—	845
2	Jones, Albert ...		—	841
3	Roberts, Will. ...		—	838

The aggregate attendances to date would always be at hand for every child on the register, and if suggestion No. 4. be in force the teacher will be troubled with little research. Under the present law, if a duplicate certificate is required, the teacher can charge one penny for each year's attendances, so that the regulation only needs amending to make it apply to applications made after the child has left school. On moving from school to school, the parent now regularly demands the certificate of proficiency, and if the attendance qualification made spasmodic migration difficult, it would be a boon to the child since the Assisted Education Act has made removal at caprice from school to school extremely possible.

Failure to obtain the necessary proficiency qualification has been placed against the teachers by the parents; but with an attendance qualification the onus would rest on the parents alone.

The success of our factory laws is largely due to the supervision of the factory inspectors, and without similar supervision the enforcement of the regulations concerning child labour outside the Factory Acts will be far from perfect so long as the initiation of prosecution rests entirely with the local authorities, many of whom are the illegal employers of children.

SIXTEENTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE CENTRAL COMMITTEE.

THE Committee report with much satisfaction that the work done by the Fund during the past year has never before been equalled in quality or extent, although some amount of disappointment is felt at the decided falling off in income. The organisation has been extended, more relief and loans have been granted, additional annuitants have been elected, and in every way the Fund has dispensed benefits more widely and effectively. Annual subscriptions show a slight increase, but the gross income has declined from £4,091 to £2,801.

TEMPORARY RELIEF.

Assistance is given to teachers by means of small money grants, or by recommendations to certain hospitals or a convalescent home. Some amount of inquiry is of course necessary to ascertain that applicants are needing and deserving help, and the aid of local secretaries and subscribers is always available and freely given. Last year, nearly £750 were expended in granting aid to over one hundred teachers, and many gratifying evidences have been received of the good work done. To send a teacher in failing health to the seaside or some health resort in this or some other country; to supply a bereaved or needy family with necessaries; to sustain and cheer aged or struggling teachers; such appeals as these are constantly made, and to meet them the Committee confidently appeal for continued support both in money and sympathy.

Six years ago the Committee began to pay subscriptions to hospitals, and experience has shown that the innovation was a wise one. Scarcely a week passes but some advice is sought by a teacher for himself, his wife or child, and ready help is given when possible. Pupil teachers are eligible to receive such help, if it can be shown that they have been supporters of the Fund. Necessarily the number of the Institutions to which payment can be made is limited, but the Committee are prepared to increase their list of hospitals as experience dictates.

ANNUITIES.

The amount paid to annuitants is now fast approaching £1,000 per annum. At the election held in March, four men and four women were elected. One of the latter, Mrs. Cockman, died within four days of the election, and did not, therefore, receive the promised benefit. During the year, Messrs. R. Witty, O. Allen, and J. Davies have paid the debt of nature, and at the present time there are eleven men and seventeen women annuitants on the Fund. With some hesitation the Committee decided to elect eight additional annuitants this year, which will increase the annual expenditure by at least £200; but they believe the subscribers share in their desire to elect without delay as many as possible of those who are eligible for and need the permanent benefits which the Institution can grant.

The new rule, adopted at the last annual meeting, places it in the power of the Committee to accept donations of £100 and upwards from teachers on payment of five per cent. or less. One such donation has been accepted, and the interest paid thereon is separately entered in the cash statement. Every such offer will be carefully considered in relation to the age and circumstances of the donor, and the subscribers may rest assured that due regard will be paid to the interests of the Fund in all such transactions.

A subscriber has suggested that the Central Committee, or some Special Committee, with full information of the circumstances of annuity candidates, would be in a better position than the subscribers generally can be to judge of the needs of individual candidates, and to select those most worthy of help. This practice is followed in some institutions, and is found not only to be economical, but to prevent that publication of circumstances which, however undesirable, is inseparable from the method of public election. The Committee are not prepared to recommend the adoption of this course, but they think it would be an advantage, if the choice of, say, a fourth of the candidates at elections were left to their discretion. An alteration of the rules in this direction will be submitted to the subscribers at the Annual Meeting.

LOANS.

A sum of £361 has been advanced during the year in small amounts, never exceeding £15, and the repayments in the same year came to £359. There is no doubt that very great service has been rendered to the two hundred teachers who have in the last fifteen years availed themselves of this kind of help. The only security accepted is personal, payments are spread over a period to meet the convenience of the borrower, strict privacy is observed, and applications are only entertained from members of the National Union or of the Fund.

FINANCE.

Comparison has already been made between the income of the past and previous years, and it may be pointed out that there are many ways of providing against a reduced income for the Fund. Annual subscriptions form the best help that can be given, and in schools junior members of the staff are capable of being trained to support the Charity by small donations at stated intervals. Collecting cards for the purpose of recording these sums are supplied on application. Athletic sports and school entertainments afford other means of help. The South London, Sheffield, and Manchester Schools' Athletic Associations have shown what can be done in the way of utilising sports in this direction, and their example is worthy of all imitation.

INVESTMENTS AND DIVIDENDS.

The balance brought forward from last year has been invested in Midland Railway Preference Stock, and a donation of £100 given by an ex-teacher, conditionally on payment of a life interest of £5, has been separately invested in accordance with Rule 44. The dividends, it will be seen, do not provide anything like the amount granted in annuities, and the Committee hope to increase the investments very considerably in the near future, so that no doubt may exist of their ability to meet the engagements they have made with the aged teachers who are now relying upon the small pensions which have been granted.

SHIELD AND TROPHY.

The West Yorks Challenge Shield, which is annually awarded to the association raising the highest average per teacher for the Charities, was again awarded to a large association, Sheffield, which raised £1 6s. 11d. per member. The total contributions from the same association (£500) were also the highest aggregate; and won for them the Birmingham Trophy. The Sheffield teachers have worked nobly for many years in the cause of charity and their labours deserve the highest commendation.

THE LEEDS CONFERENCE SCHEME.

The special contributions to the Leeds Scheme amounted to £1,146 6s. 4d., and other sums paid in previous to the Conference brought up the total to £2,092 17s. 9d. for the Benevolent Fund, £3,442 8s. 6d. for the Orphan Fund, or a grand total of £5,525 6s. 1d. This is a noble sum to amass within the space of twelve months, and the Leeds teachers, notably Mr. T. G. West and Mr. A. Blenkinsop, are to be congratulated upon the result.

LOCAL BOARDS.

Local Boards have been formed in thirteen new centres—viz., Aylesbury, Bala, Bridport, Crich, Doncaster, Fairford Kingsbridge, Leighton Buzzard, Richmond (Yorks), Rossendale, St. Alban's, Salford, and Snowdon, and the Committee anticipate a considerable accession of regular subscribers from those districts. The number of Local Boards is still less than half of that of the number of Local Associations in connection with the National Union of Teachers, and it is very desirable in the interests of the Charity that this wide difference should no longer exist. All teachers are eligible, under certain conditions, to receive the benefits provided, and it is hoped that the organisation of many other Local Associations will be extended to include the working of a Local Board.

CONCLUSION.

The Committee cannot conclude their report without expressing their cordial thanks to all friends who have in any way rendered service to the Fund during the past year. The desire to make it more effective against want, distress, and misfortune emboldens the Committee to plead very strongly for continued and extended support from all classes of teachers and all friends of education. Local secretaries may do much, especially when supported by the members of the Local Board committees, to increase the list of subscribers, and this will doubtless be their aim during the coming year. Those who have engaged in the work of relieving the distressed, and it cannot be denied that many such are to be found, realise the value of a good store from which such aid can be given. Now that the necessity for individual exertion has been pointed out, the Committee are sanguine that help will be forthcoming, and that their appeal will be met by a hearty and generous response from all well-wishers of the Teachers' Benevolent Fund.

8.—The Central Committee may modify such of these Rules or adopt such additional Rules for the administration of the Fund as they may deem necessary, but all such new or modified Rules shall be presented for confirmation at the next Annual General Meeting.

9.—The Central Committee shall meet at least once in each calendar month except in the month of August. It shall appoint such Sub-Committees as may be necessary, but no loans may be granted by a Sub-Committee. All proceedings of Sub-Committees shall be reported to the Central Committee.

10.—The Central Committee shall fill any vacancy in the Committee occurring during the year. Members so elected shall hold office only until the next Annual Meeting, but shall then be eligible for re-election.

OFFICERS.

11.—The following shall be the officers of the Fund:—A Patron, Presidents, Chairman, Vice-Chairman, Trustees, Treasurer, and General Secretary. The Patron, President, and Trustees, in cases of vacancies arising, shall be elected by the Annual General Meeting of Contributors, which shall also elect the General Treasurer annually. The Chairman and Vice-Chairman shall be elected by the Central Committee. The Secretary of the National Union of Teachers shall be the Secretary of the Fund.

TRUSTEES.

12.—All moneys placed in the Public Funds shall be vested in the names of the Trustees or any three of them, who shall sign a declaration of the nature of their trust, and an engagement to relinquish it upon a resolution to that effect being passed by a General or Special Meeting of the Subscribers to the Fund. The moneys so invested shall be under the control and at the disposal of the Central Committee, whose order in writing shall be obligatory upon, and authority to, the Trustees as to any purchase, sale, or other disposal of the same. There shall never be more than five, nor less than three Trustees. No person or persons becoming bankrupt or insolvent shall continue a Trustee or Trustees of the Fund.

13.—When any vacancy in the office of Trustee shall occur, it shall be filled up at the next General Meeting of Contributors, and the existing Trustees shall immediately thereupon transfer the funds standing in their name into the names of themselves and the newly elected Trustee.

14.—The dividends due upon the funded property shall be collected by the Banker, and paid in to the account of the Fund.

TREASURER.

15.—A Treasurer shall be elected annually at the Annual General Meeting. If the office shall become vacant during the year, the Central Committee shall elect a Treasurer pro tem., who shall act until the next General Meeting.

16.—The Treasurer shall not pay any moneys on account of the Fund, except under a resolution of the Central Committee.

17.—The Treasurer shall keep the account of the Fund with such Banker as the Central Committee shall direct, but no cheque shall be paid by the Banker unless signed by the Treasurer and two members of the Finance Committee.

18.—The Banker and the Secretary may, in addition to the Treasurer, receive subscriptions and donations to the Fund, and their receipt given on an authorised printed form shall be a sufficient acknowledgment of the same.

FUNDS.

19.—The funds of the Society shall be vested in the names of Trustees. All investments must be authorized by the Central Committee, and be made under an express resolution conveyed in writing to the Trustees and endorsed by the signature of the Treasurer.

20.—The Central Committee shall apportion from year to year the proportion of the income to be invested in the Permanent Fund.

LOCAL BOARDS.

21.—Every Local Association of the National Union of Teachers desirous of forming a Local Board of the Benevolent Fund shall apply to the Central Committee for recognition. After recognition, the Local Board shall consist of such persons as are contributors to the Fund. Every Local Board shall appoint a Committee of not less than three persons, and shall elect, in addition, a Chairman and Local Secretary, both of whom shall be ex-officio members of the Committee.

22.—Every Local Board shall report to the Central Committee in the month of June in each year, and shall in the month of December following forward to the General Treasurer a statement duly audited, of all moneys received and expended on account of the Fund, together with the balance (if any) of such account, subject to Rule 23.

23.—Every Local Board may, during any year, dispense in relief within its district, a sum not exceeding one-third of the total amount paid through the Local Board to the General Fund during the preceding year (subject to Rules 27-29), provided always, that on or before December 31st of each year, the whole amount for the year ending on November 30th next preceding be accounted for, and the balance forwarded to the General Treasurer. A general balance-sheet shall be presented by the Treasurer to the Central Committee not later than February 15th in each year, and copies of the same, duly audited, shall be issued with the Annual Report and Balance-Sheet of the National Union of Teachers.

24.—A Local Board shall have the right of electing one life Annuitant for every £150 contributed to the permanent Fund as special donations or payments other than annual subscriptions, and upon which the right of voting has neither been claimed nor exercised. Candidates for election by a Local Board must be previously approved by the Central Committee to be fit and proper persons to receive the benefits of the Fund.

25.—In every local election of Annuitants each local annual contributor shall have the same number of votes as in a general election (see Rule 36) and one additional vote shall be allowed for every £1 paid to the special donation which gives the right of making the election (see Rule 24).

26.—No Local Board may grant loans of money out of the Fund, nor, except as already provided, award permanent Annuities. All applications for temporary loans made to the Local Board must be sent on to the Central Committee.

TEMPORARY RELIEF.

27.—Temporary relief may be granted by the Central Committee, and by the Local Boards. No applicant shall receive, at any time, more than 15s. per week, nor for more than thirteen consecutive weeks, without a fresh application and a new investigation of the circumstances of the case. Similarly, no applicant shall receive in any one financial year a total amount of more than £20.

28.—All applications for relief must be supported by the recommendation of two officers of a Local Association of the National Union of Teachers, or of two contributors to the Fund.

29.—No Candidate shall be eligible for Temporary Relief after 1895 who has not subscribed to or collected for one of the Funds for at least three years.

30.—A record of all cases of relief shall be made and kept for future reference. Local Secretaries shall forward to the General Secretary an alphabetical list of these cases once every half-year.

LOANS.

31.—All applications for temporary loans must be made to the Central Committee. Applicants must be members of the National Union of Teachers or contributors to the Fund, and the names of two responsible persons must be given as security for the payment of each amount borrowed. No loan may exceed the sum of £15.

32.—No special charges of any kind shall be made for the granting of loans, but borrowers must pay interest at the rate of 2½ per cent. for any term not exceeding one year, and 5 per cent. for each succeeding year or part of a year. Loans without interest may, in special cases, be granted by the Central Committee.

ANNUITIES.

33.—Annuities of £30 per annum for males, and £25 for females, may be granted to teachers and their widows who are, or have been, subscribers to the Fund. No candidate shall be eligible for election as an Annuitant who has not been for at least three years a contributor to the Fund.

34.—No annuity shall be granted at any General or Local Election of Annuitants to any applicant under the age of fifty-five (males) and fifty (females), unless such applicant is afflicted with paralysis, insanity, total blindness, or other calamity which prevents the applicant from earning a subsistence, and which affliction shall have occurred subsequent to the applicant having become a Subscriber to the Fund.

35.—Widows who are Annuitants shall cease to receive relief if they marry again

36.—In any general election of Annuitants every Member and Life Member shall have one vote, every Governor and Life Governor shall have four votes, every Vice-President shall have ten votes, and every Vice-Patron shall have twenty votes each for one-fourth of the number of candidates to be elected. Every life contribution of £5 shall confer twenty votes for one year, in addition to the Life Vote.

37.—All candidates for annuities must be recommended by at least four contributors (two of whom must be teachers), or by four teachers (two of whom must be contributors or members of the National Union of Teachers), and shall produce satisfactory proof of age and such other evidence as may be required by the Central Committee.

38. — An election of Annuitants shall be held in March of each year, and the Central Committee shall decide the number of Annuitants to be elected. Before every general election of Annuitants, the Central Committee shall prepare a list of approved candidates, from which list the election shall be made. One-fourth or the nearest number above one-fourth of the candidates to be elected shall be chosen (without general election) by the Central Committee from the approved list. A copy of the list and the voting paper shall be sent to each person entitled to vote at least fourteen days before the date fixed for any election.

39.—In all elections of Annuitants each candidate shall be allowed ten votes for every Annual Subscription paid to the Fund. Life Contributors who are candidates for an Annuity shall be allowed twenty votes for each year that has elapsed since the Life Contribution was paid, but this allowance shall never exceed two hundred votes. Any Subscriber or Life Contributor's Widow, being a Candidate for an Annuity, shall receive votes in the same proportion. The votes recorded in favour of unsuccessful candidates shall be carried forward to their credit in succeeding elections.

40. — The Central Committee shall have power to suspend any Annuitant from the benefits of the Fund, who shall anticipate the payment thereof, or charge or encumber the same in any manner, or who shall by improper conduct become unworthy to be continued on the Fund.

41.—All Annuities shall be paid quarterly except in cases where the Central Committee deem it advisable to make other arrangements.

42.—If it shall appear that the circumstances of a candidate at the time of election were misrepresented, or if any Annuitant is found to be able to earn a living, or to be possessed of an income independent of the annuity, then the Central Committee shall have power to suspend or reduce the annuity according to the circumstances, until the next General Meeting, when the facts of the case shall be reported and action taken.

43.—Special Annuities of not more than £25 may be granted to the widows of such members of the National Union of Teachers as were for at least three years contributors to the Fund. The Annuitants shall be elected in the same manner, and shall be subjected to the same restrictions, as ordinary Annuitants.

44.—The Central Committee shall have power to accept from individual teachers donations of not less than £100, upon condition of paying to the donor for any period, not exceeding the continuance of his or her life, interest on the amount of the donation at a rate not exceeding five per cent. per annum; but such donation shall not confer on the donor any right of voting at any meeting or election in connection with the Fund. Such donations shall be separately invested by the Committee in such securities as they may deem advisable.

ANNUAL MEETING.

45.—An Annual Meeting of the Contributors shall be held every year in connection with the Conference of the National Union of Teachers, when the Treasurer, Central Committee, and (in case of Vacancies) the Patron, Presidents, or Trustees shall be elected, special grants sanctioned, and the General Business of the Fund shall be transacted. All motions put to the vote at a General Meeting shall be decided by show of hands, but if any decision is challenged by ten members then present, a ballot of the whole of the members shall be taken, the Chairman appointing a day for that purpose. Members shall have the right of voting by proxy.

46.—Any Contributor may nominate one Contributor for Election on the Central Committee by the Annual General Meeting; and Nominations may also be made by the Central Committee. All Notices of Motion, Notices of Alteration of Rules, and Nominations for any General Meeting must be sent to the Secretary at least twenty-eight days previously.

ANNUAL REPORT.

47.—An annual report, containing the balance sheet, rules, list of subscribers, &c., shall be prepared and issued to subscribers not later than the first day of June in each year.

ALTERATION OF RULES.

48.—No alteration in, or addition to, these Rules, except as provided for in Rule 8, may be made, except at a General Meeting of which at least twenty-eight days' notice has been given.

REPORT OF THE COUNCIL FOR THE YEAR 1892.

The Council, in presenting their Fifteenth Annual Report, desire to congratulate the subscribers on the success of the past year's work. The income, although considerably less than that of the previous year, has proved just sufficient for the responsibilities incurred; but any further curtailment must inevitably result in preventing any extension of the work of the Fund, a prospect in every way undesirable. This the Council feel assured is not the wish of the subscribers, who they hope will see that increased means are provided for meeting the many and growing claims upon the Charity, and for adding to the reserve fund.

From the above table it will be seen that from 1879 to 1892 a sum of nearly £40,000 has been raised in varying yearly amounts, and that last year's income was about the average. Nevertheless it will also be seen that the number of children assisted last year was considerably above the average, and that a steady increase in the number of beneficiaries is maintained.

If the Institution is to successfully carry out its objects, it is clear that the annual income must be maintained at a point considerably over £4,000, and this necessity the Council press upon the attention of subscribers for their careful consideration during the coming year.

THE HOME AT PECKHAM.

The House Committee report monthly to the Council on the work of the Home, and their annual report is appended, from which it will be seen that a good year's work has been done. Eight boys successfully completed their training during the year, and most of them are suitably employed. Satisfactory accounts of the old boys are received from time to time, and many of them revisit the Home at every opportunity.

The success of G. Gulliver and J. Brander at Alleyn's School enables them to extend their school life; and although the rules limit residence in the Homes to fifteen years of age, the Council have accepted scholarships on their behalf, and they have engaged to keep these boys in the Homes for a longer period. A slight alteration in the rules will be proposed at the annual meeting to legalise this action, and to enable the Council to meet similar cases that may arise.

For some time past the Council have been desirous of securing better premises for the Boys' Home; but as there was no pressing necessity to make a change, it has been thought advisable to wait till suitable premises could be found, rather than expend a large sum in the purchase of property, which would seriously increase the annual cost of maintenance, without adding materially to the accommodation.

THE HOME AT SHEFFIELD.

This Home continues to be well managed and to supply great advantages to the girls in residence. The scholastic and medical reports, which have been sent in, show that every care is taken to ensure mental and physical progress, and all of them must be considered highly satisfactory. A small structural alteration has recently been made in the building, which can now accommodate thirty girls. The lease of the premises expires in two years, and some consideration will shortly have to be given to the future location of the Home.

THE HOME ALLOWANCES.

Sixteen children were elected by the subscribers and the Council to receive Allowances last year, and two were placed on the Fund, under Rule 40, by the Rhondda Valley Association, making a total of one hundred and seventy to whom the weekly payment of five shillings has been voted. Two payments have been suspended on account of improved circumstances, and five have lapsed by the efflux of time.

THE MAKING OF SPECIAL GRANTS.

The Council deal monthly with any urgent cases that call for temporary assistance, and last year they dispensed a larger amount than usual. The rules limit the grant to half-a-crown a week, but, small as it is, many families have thus enjoyed comforts that would have otherwise been denied them.

FINANCE.

From the Treasurer's financial statement considerable encouragement is to be drawn, although the net results of the year are lower than they have been for three years. Except the Conference Scheme, all the various special efforts show improved returns, and there is an increase in the annual subscriptions which, after all, are the mainstay of any Institution.

THE LEEDS CONFERENCE SCHEME.

Two hundred and forty-six Associations subscribed something to this Conference Scheme, either by way of ordinary or special contributions. The total result of the effort, which reflects great credit upon the persistent and earnest work of Mr. T. G. West, Mr. A. Blenkinsop, and other teachers at Leeds, amounts to £5,525 6s. 1d. This sum was thus apportioned by the subscribers: Benevolent Fund, £2,092 17s. 7d.; Orphan Fund, £3,432 8s. 6d. Of this latter sum £1,852 9s. 10d. was paid in at Leeds, and the remainder was received at the office in the ordinary course.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTIONS.

The use of the monthly collecting cards has added considerably to the number of regular subscribers, and it is hoped that the system will be gradually introduced into all schools. At present annual subscriptions amount to less than £1,000 per annum, but it is gratifying to find that the increase is steady, if slow.

ORPHAN DAY.

The observance of Orphan Day resulted in a collection of £220 16s. 2d. This is an improvement on each of the past four years, and is all the more noticeable when it is remembered that a special children's effort has been made in connection with the Liverpool Conference.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS.

For the ninth time an appeal was made for special Christmas gifts, when £127 19s. 9d. was collected, the highest amount yet raised.

ENTERTAINMENTS.

It is known that nearly £300 were raised by entertainments of various kinds, and the Council trust that every advantage will be taken of this method of raising funds, athletic games and sports can also be utilised for this purpose, and many instances might be quoted of healthy rivalry turned to money-making account for charitable institutions.

WEST YORKS' SHIELD AND BIRMINGHAM TROPHY.

For the third time a large Association carried off both Shield and Trophy. The Sheffield Association, numbering 371 members, in 1891 raised £500, largely by athletic sports, and excelled all other Associations, both great and small, in charitable endeavours, their average £1 6s. 11d. per member, and their total contributions being the highest for the year. Special thanks are due to the Sheffield and District Association, which, on so many other occasions, has nobly helped the Funds.

DIVIDENDS.

It is a matter of regret to the Council that for the fifth time they have to report no investment. By slow degrees the dividends increase, and there is the satisfaction of knowing that the securities are good and realisable, and worth more than they cost. But the investments are not so numerous or weighty as they might be, and it is hoped that in future some augmentation of the store may annually be made.

AUDITORS.

The Council have for many years had the assistance of old and well-tried friends as auditors of accounts, and they desire to acknowledge their indebtedness for the services so freely rendered. Mr. Charles Wilson, and Mr. Henry Clark performed this duty together, from 1880 to 1889, and since then Mr. Wilson, with Mr. T. H. Smith, and Mr. H. Weston. No rule has hitherto existed for the appointment of these officers, but such a rule will now be submitted for consideration.

LOCAL SECRETARIES.

Local Secretaries have been appointed during the year by the following associations:—Aylesbury, Axminster, Bala, Bishop Stortford, Cockermouth, Crich, Darwen, Devizes, Doncaster, Dover, Downham, Farnworth, Hyde, Kingsbridge, Leek, Maidenhead, Pembrokeshire (S), Presteign, Richmond (Yorks), Rossendale and Stafford. Much valuable work has been done in the past by ladies and gentlemen who have acted in this capacity, and similar appointments will, it is hoped, be made in other centres.

CONCLUSION.

The Fund owes its existence and continuance to generous hearts and generous workers. The record of its doings is but brief, but its influence has brightened and comforted the lives and improved the prospects of hundreds of children. Many dying beds have been soothed by the fact that such a Fund existed, and by the knowledge that dear ones would be cared for, and many a widow's heart has been made to rejoice. With pride at such a retrospect the Council look forward hopefully to the future. They desire to acknowledge the generosity of fellow-workers, who, they believe, will redouble their efforts in such a sacred cause—a cause which may well enlist the services of other willing helpers. There must be no retrenchment, nor even any standing still, but a united effort to carry forward the work to wider fields of usefulness and success.

NINTH ANNUAL REPORT OF PECKHAM HOUSE COMMITTEE.

THE Committee are pleased to report that efficiency and progress have marked the past year's work in the Home. Nine boys have left during the year, and all the vacant places have been filled, so that the full complement of forty has, as far as possible, been maintained. The Medical Officer's Report, which accompanies this general statement, deals with the health of the boys, and the Committee feel grateful that no serious case of illness has occurred.

It may be interesting to note the choice of occupations made by those who have recently left the Institution. Rumble and Williams have entered the Civil Service; James and Scott are clerks; Lines is a pupil teacher; R. Babbidge is apprenticed to a grocer; J. Richardson has not yet obtained a permanent situation; and A. Lewis continues at school. E. Clarkson left the Home before the expiration of his term.

Most of the boys still attend the Nunhead Passage School, and the report of the headmaster, which is satisfactory as usual, is appended.

Reference was made in the last Annual Report to the fact that three boys had been sent to Alleyn's School, Dulwich. This has resulted in an increased charge for school fees, but also in securing considerable direct advantages to a few, and indirect ones to the boys generally. J. Brander, W. Lewis, and A. Robins have acquitted themselves well, and Brander has gained a free Scholarship in the school for two years. Gilbert Gulliver, who gained admission to the same school three years ago by a Scholarship, has also had his term extended one year on account of his brilliant work. The acceptance of these Scholarships will keep the boys at school beyond the age fixed by the rules for leaving the Home, and the Committee have therefore recommended the Council to extend the rule in these special cases from fifteen to sixteen years. This has been accepted, and Brander and Gulliver will be enabled to stay at school, and, it is hoped, to win further distinction. E. Batty has been sent to the same school this year.

This report would not be complete without some reference to the Old Boys, some of whom are verging on manhood, and who embrace every opportunity of visiting the Home, and thus of keeping up their connection with it. With scarcely an exception they are doing credit to their training and to themselves, and the Committee are pleased to record the fact.

Up to the present the Home has fairly well met the demand for places, but the Committee would like to have improved and slightly increased accommodation, and they hope the time is not far distant when this will be supplied.

The cost of management is about the same as last year, but with a slightly higher number in residence the average cost works out a little less than usual, and is the lowest on record.

A list of gifts in kind is appended to the report, and the Committee desire to publicly and heartily thank the donors, whose example is worthy of imitation.

The honorary officers of the Institution—Dr. Bristowe, J. Gater, Esq., and Andrew Young, Esq., have again rendered valuable service to the Institution, and their kindness is hereby thankfully acknowledged. The medical officer has visited the Home when his services were needed, and the Committee desire to recognise his good offices. The matron and assistant-master have been assiduous in the discharge of their duties, and have worked unremittingly for the highest good of those under their charge.

MEDICAL REPORT.

166, Peckham Rye, S.E., February 21st, 1893.

DEAR SIR,

I am pleased to be able, as in former years, to send a most favourable report of the health of the boys during the past twelve months. The few cases of illness that have occurred have been of a simple nature and have given no great cause for anxiety, and up to the present time I have not met with any cases of the mild influenza which is prevalent just now. Hoping we may be equally fortunate for the remainder of the influenza season,

I am, dear Sir, yours faithfully,

J. WM. WALKER, M.D.

SCHOOL REPORTS.

Nunhead Passage School, February 20th, 1893.

Thirty-five boys are at present attending this school from the Teachers' Orphanage. They are classified as follows:—

Ex-Standard VII.—Five.
Standard VII.—Four.
„ VI.—Eight.
„ V.—Four.

Standard IV.—Nine.
„ II.—Four.

All passed the recent Government examination and were duly promoted. Nine were successful at the Science Examinations in connection with South Kensington. Two boys passed the Civil Service, and both have received appointments. In football contests the School Team, of which these boys form the best part, played and won thirteen matches; thus, for the third time, gaining the silver challenge cup. In swimming competitions two silver medals and one watch have been awarded. The attendance has been punctual and regular, not a single late mark being registered. Unfortunately the infectious illness of one boy has prevented the others getting attendance medals.

The conduct at school of all these boys continues excellent, and their influence on the others most valuable.

RICHD. BALCHIN, Headmaster.

College of God's Gift, Dulwich—Alleyn's School.

GENTLEMEN,—I have pleasure in speaking in high terms both of the conduct and progress of the four boys from the Teachers' Orphanage who have attended this school during the past year.

The Scholarship enjoyed by G. Gulliver for the past three years has, owing to our high opinion of him, been continued for another year.

J. Brander obtained in December last a Scholarship of £3 per annum, tenable until he reaches the age of sixteen.

The other two lads, Lewis and Robins, though not so prominent in their work, are yet giving us much satisfaction.

I am, Gentlemen, yours faithfully,

J. HENRY SMITH, Headmaster.

(SIXTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE SHEFFIELD HOUSE COMMITTEE.

In submitting their Sixth Annual Report the House Committee are again pleased to be able to testify to the great benefits which the Institution offers to those who, through no fault of their own, could not otherwise be so efficiently cared for. The Home has been conducted carefully, economically, and efficiently throughout the year, and the health, comfort, and happiness of the children have been well looked after. There are now twenty-nine girls in residence. Four have left during the year and have obtained suitable employment, while eight new inmates have been admitted to the Institution.

One case of scarlet fever of a mild form has occurred during the year. The patient was at once removed to the fever hospital and no further danger resulted. The health of the other children has been uniformly good and their attendance at school very regular. Seven of the girls are attending the Central Higher Grade Board School and are acquitting themselves most creditably in their studies, all of them taking a high position in their respective classes. At the last May Examination of the Science and Art Department three girls entered and obtained five first and two second-class certificates, one girl, Mary Payne, obtaining three first-class and one second-class. The other girls continue to attend Pitsmoor School, where their progress is exceedingly satisfactory. The twelve senior girls now receive regular instruction in music and make very satisfactory progress. The physical as well as the mental proficiency of the children is well looked after, Calisthenics forming a regular part of their instruction. The girls gave an excellent display of Calisthenic exercises, which was very highly spoken of at a drill competition held at the Albert Hall, in aid of the charitable Funds.

During the year a tennis tournament and a sale of work were held at the Orphanage, producing a substantial addition to the funds. The buildings have been maintained in a good state of repair, and were thoroughly painted and cleaned during the summer holidays. Two small bedrooms have also been made into one large room, thus affording increased accommodation, and improving the efficiency of the building. An agreeable addition to the decorative appearance of the rooms has been effected through the kindness of Thos. Abbott, Esq., Inspector of Church Schools, who has kindly undertaken to supply the Orphanage with about twenty framed pictures, which are changed at regular intervals, thus making the walls brighter and more homelike.

The average cost of the Institution has been as follows:—

	Average Cost.

The accompanying list of gifts shows that considerable interest of a practical nature continues to be manifested, and the heartiest thanks of the Committee are hereby expressed to the donors for their kindness.

The Committee desire to express their cordial thanks to George Robinson, Esq., the honorary surgeon, who has spared neither time, trouble, nor expense in serving the Institution, visiting it constantly and regularly throughout; to Dr. Dyson, the honorary physician, and to W. C. Drabble, Esq., the honorary dental surgeon, for their valuable services during the past year; also to Miss Barker, All Saints' School, and Mrs. Pearson, Ecclesall School, for their kindness in taking charge of the Home during the absence of the matron, through illness, during the summer.

The Committee also desire to accord their thanks to the matron for her careful management of the Home; to the chairman, Mr. Charles Cusworth, for the ability and courtesy with which he has conducted the meetings of the Committee; and also to place on record their high appreciation of the unfailing tact, courtesy, and ability displayed on all occasions by the hon. secretary (Mr. Morris), and tender to him their most cordial thanks.

C. CUSWORTH, Chairman.

MY DEAR SIR,—I am happy to say I have a very good year to report re the Teachers' Orphanage.

SCHOOL REPORTS.

Pitmoor School.

It gives me great pleasure to tell of the excellence still maintained by the girls from the Firs Hill Orphanage, both as regards their manners and attainments. Their neatness and cleanliness are worthy of all praise, and their healthy, happy faces are noticed by all visitors.

H. TRUELOVE, Head Mistress.

DEAR MR. MORRIS,—I am very glad to be able to give an excellent report respecting the girls from the Orphanage attending this school. There are seven in attendance, two in Standard ex-VII., and five in Standard VII.

Their attendance, conduct, and work have been uniformly satisfactory, and it has been a real pleasure to their teachers and myself to have had charge of them during the past year.

I am, dear Mr Morris, faithfully yours,

J. EDWARD TAYLOR, M.A., B.Sc., Principal.

AUDITORS' REPORT.

To the Governors and Members.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—We are happy to inform you that the work of auditing this year has been completed in two sittings.

A list of the books of account was at the outset supplied to us by your secretary, and we are satisfied, after a close examination of those books, that the accountant's department of your Society is very efficiently conducted. A slight improvement might, perhaps, be effected in one or two of them by additional rulings for an extended classification of items, but the benefit to be derived would scarcely justify an expenditure on new books now.

The counterfoils for receipts and vouchers for expenditure have been produced, and in every instance found to correspond with the entries.

The balance at the bank, after making the necessary adjustments on account of payments for the current year and cheques not presented, is in exact accord with the balance shown in the treasurer's account, and submitted in the annual statement.

The securities for investments have been produced by the trustees, and correspond with the entries in the securities' book.

The members of the Council have left their initials month by month on the various folios of your accounts, and give abundant evidence of the care they exercise to ensure a faithful administration of the funds entrusted to them.

We are, Ladies and Gentlemen,

Yours faithfully,

CHAS. WILSON, }
HENRY WESTON, } Auditors.

One-half of the Members elected by the Annual General Meeting shall retire annually by rotation, but shall be eligible for re-election. Any member of the Council being absent from the meetings of the Council and its committees for three successive months shall be deemed to have resigned, unless the reason of absence be considered satisfactory by the Council.

11.—The Council shall report to the Executive in the months of March and October, and the Executive shall report annually to the Conference of the National Union of Teachers, on the work and progress of the Fund.

REPORT OF THE BOARD OF MANAGEMENT FOR THE YEAR 1892.

THE General Board of Management, in presenting their Sixteenth Annual Report, desire to congratulate the members on the development and extension of the work of the Society that has taken place during the past year. Progress may be seen in the increase of membership, in the wider usefulness of the Society, in the augmentation of its invested capital, and more especially in the interest that has been evinced in the Society in all parts of the country. Teachers generally are realising the paramount importance of making adequate provision for themselves against times of sickness, old age, and death, and the Board look upon this as a sign of a much larger and more rapid growth of the Society in the immediate future.

MEMBERSHIP.

During the year, 327 members have been admitted. This is an increase of 128 over the number who joined in 1891, and more than 50 per cent. in advance of the number enrolled during any previous year. The total membership now reaches 1,173, whilst the aggregate number of benefits assured for amounts to 1,401. There are 351 members in the Ordinary Branch, 769 in the Deposit Branch, and 53 in both branches. Analysing these figures still further, the Board find that 809 or 69 per cent. of the members are men, and 364 or 31 per cent. women, and they would point out as one of the features of the recent growth of the Society, that more women—in proportion—are admitted now than in former years.

FINANCE.

Turning to the finances of the Society, the Board note, with satisfaction that the annual income which has, year by year, been steadily rising, now reaches £3,563, an increase of more than £700 over the total of the previous year. In 1892, £3,745 was invested, and since the closing of the year's accounts a further sum of £300 has been invested. The Board continue to exercise the utmost care and caution in making these investments, and they would draw the attention of the members to the fact that the balance of £7,342 due to the Society on mortgages, is secured on property worth considerably more than £12,000.

SICK PAY.

With an increased membership it was only to be expected that there should have been an increased payment on account of sickness, but, notwithstanding the recurrence of the influenza epidemic, the amount disbursed is £11 17s. 11d. less than in the previous year, the amounts being—1891, £532 5s. 9d ; 1892, £520 7s. 10d. Although there has been a smaller amount of Sick Pay the number of Members receiving benefit has risen to 146, of which 56 were in the Ordinary Branch, and 90 in the Deposit Branch. The average amount of Sick Pay per Member as shown by the table has been only 9s. 0½d., whilst the average amount of sickness experienced has only amounted to 2 days 18 hours. These figures should be made use of when soliciting teachers to join, as they prove most conclusively that the sickness experienced in this Society is considerably lower than that of other similar benefit societies.

During the last few years the female members, especially in the Ordinary Branch, have received a far larger amount of Sick Pay in proportion to their numbers than the men. This has led the Board to consider the question of liability to sickness in the two sexes, and, as a result, they have arrived at the conclusion that, as a rule, women are more liable to sickness than men, and should therefore pay a slightly higher rate. This is already the case in the Deposit Branch, and in order to make the two branches analagous the Board recommend such an alteration of rule as they believe will meet the exigencies of the case.

MEMBERS' "REST."

Although more has been paid from the Common Sick Fund than in any previous year, yet the Board are pleased to find that it has yielded a return of more than 84 per cent. to the various Members' "Rests." This is equivalent to a return of £1 10s. 6d. out of every £1 16s. paid in, and is a higher amount than was returned in either of the two preceding years.

Believing that the present rule, which does not allow members to withdraw any part of their "Rest," has led several members recently to withdraw from the Society who would otherwise have remained, the Board referred the question to the Finance Committee for the purpose of considering the advisability of so amending the rule, as to allow members to withdraw part of their "Rest" if necessary. The Committee reported in favour of such an amendment, and this being approved by the Board, they now recommend such an alteration of Rule as will accomplish this end, and which is set forth more fully on the agenda of the Annual Meeting.

PAYMENTS AT DEATH.

During the past year, the question of Life Assurance has engaged a considerable amount of attention from the Executive of the N. U. T. After a searching investigation they found that this Society compared most favourably with other Life Assurance Offices, and believing that the question could, with greatest benefit to its members, be adequately dealt with inside the limits of the Union, they sent a request to the Board, asking them to remove the limit of £20 which was placed upon the Assurance Tables (IV., V., and VI.) in 1884. A conference between some members of the Board and some members of the Executive was held, and, as a result, the Board have decided to increase the benefits under these Tables to £200, the full limit allowed by the Friendly Societies Act.

The Board recognise this as a most responsible and important departure, but they believe that the low rates and other advantages offered by the Society will so commend themselves to teachers that very soon Life Assurance will hold a prominent position in the work of the Society.

VALUATION.

Fifteen years having elapsed since the registration of the Society, the Third Quinquennial Valuation has been made. This was undertaken by H. W. Andras, Esq., F.I.A., Actuary to the University Life Assurance Society, 25, Pall Mall, S.W., and the results of his investigations are appended to this Report. These results show the strong financial position of the Ordinary Branch, and it is well to note that, notwithstanding the heavy reserves that have been made on account of sickness, the Society shows a surplus of £306, as a result of its five years' operations.

LOCAL AGENCY WORK.

Forty-two local agencies are now actively at work in various parts of the country, and the Board feel that very much of the success of the Society is due to the efforts and energy displayed by the local secretaries and other officers of these agencies. The table showing the work of these local agencies gives a very clear idea of the amount of labour involved in collecting and remitting the members' contributions, and the fact that 237 out of the 327 members admitted last year were from local agencies also points out the zeal and enthusiasm that these local officers have shown in the interests of the Society.

New agencies for Brighton, Leeds, East London, Norwich, Reading, West Sussex, St. Pancras, and Portsmouth have been recognised by the Board, and already much good has resulted from their formation.

DEPUTATIONS.

Deputations have attended meetings of the Bedford, Burton, Bishop's Stortford, Crich, East Essex, South Essex, Hackney, East London, North Staffordshire, Tyneside, and Wolverhampton Associations, and the thanks of the members are due to Messrs. Ambler, Bickerton, Hatfield, and Milnes (Local Secretaries for Sheffield, Nottingham, Birmingham, and Derby respectively), Blackburn, Campbell, Cox, Hutchinson, and Pink (Board of Management), for attending and advocating the claims of the Society.

The Board wish to tender their thanks to those members of the Executive who have spoken on behalf of the Society when visiting the various local associations.

TRAINING COLLEGES.

A new departure has been made in bringing the Society directly under the notice of the students in the Day and Residential Training Colleges. Early in November, a special circular and a prospectus of the Society were forwarded to each male and female student about to leave college. A letter was at the same time addressed to the principals of the various colleges asking their co-operation. Replies expressing sympathy with the work of the Society were received from several principals, and already the effort then put forth has shown good results.

THE ASSOCIATION PAPER.

Much good has also arisen from the use of the paper which has been prepared to assist members in bringing the Society under the notice of their fellow teachers in their own associations.

The paper has been read before the members of twenty-two associations, and as a result many have joined the Society. The Board desire to commend this means of extending the Society to all those members in associations where as yet no local agency has been formed.

MANAGEMENT.

A most important step in the management of the Society was taken in June, when the Assistant Secretary was appointed to devote his whole time to the work of the Society.

The Board had seen for some time that the conditions under which the office work was being carried on were inadequate to the amount of work required to be done. A special committee went fully into the matter, and the unanimous conclusion arrived at was that the whole time of the Assistant Secretary was imperatively needed for the proper and efficient management of the Society. The question of cost was necessarily the point of greatest importance to be considered, and after looking into the various estimates and figures presented, it was thought that with an increasing management fund, together with a careful economy of the management expenses, the extra expense would be able to be met. At first it was feared that it would be necessary to increase the monthly management contribution to fourpence, but the recent large accession of new members has led the Board to hope that this step will not be necessary.

Mr. Golding, who has been the Assistant Secretary since 1888, has been appointed to give his whole time to the work, and the Board believe that this step will not only conduce to the welfare of the Society, but also meet with the approval of its members.

The work and responsibility of the Board continue to increase with the extension of the Society, but a brief glance at the table of meetings held, and the attendances made by members, will show that the increased labour has been well responded to by the members of the Board. The seven outgoing members are Messrs. Campbell, Cox, Hutchinson, Jeffries, Soar, Simpson, and Miss Hutchings, and all these offer themselves for re-election.

CONCLUSION.

Whilst recognising the great advancement that the Society has made during the last few years, the Board believe that they are only on the threshold of a much larger expansion. Within the ranks of the 23,000 members of the Union there are doubtless many who belong to no benefit society whatever. It is the wish and endeavour of the Board to lay before these negligent ones the unparalleled advantages that this Society offers. The members of the Society are scattered throughout every part of the country, and the Board, in concluding their report, would make an urgent appeal to every member to do what he or she can to induce others to join and share the benefits and advantages of a Society "that has proved itself a boon and a blessing to many an afflicted household."

ACTUARY'S REPORT.

25, Pall Mall, London, S.W., March 13th, 1893.

To the General Board of Management of the Teachers' Provident Society.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—In accordance with your instructions, and for the purpose of the Quinquennial Return to the Registrar of Friendly Societies, I have made a careful valuation of the reserves required to be kept in hand in respect of the contracts on the books of the Ordinary Branch of your Society as at 31st December, 1892, comprising sickness benefits, death benefits, annuities, endowment assurances, and endowments.

The basis of calculation is as follows :—

The rate of interest throughout the valuation is 3 per cent., i.e., it is assumed that this rate will be earned on the funds in future, and the amount earned in the past quinquennium justifies such an assumption.

The Tables of Sickness and Mortality used in valuing the contracts under Table I. have been those known as the Manchester Unity Experience (1866-70), rural, town, and city districts combined.

The Annuities on male lives have been valued by the Healthy Male (H.M.) Institute of Actuaries Mortality Table and the female lives by the Healthy Female (H.F.) Institute of Actuaries Mortality Table.

The Death Contracts under Table IV. and the Endowment Assurances under Table VI. have been valued by the Institute of Actuaries (H.M.) Table, and the death contracts under Table V. by the Manchester Unity Table.

VALUATION BALANCE SHEET AS AT DECEMBER 31st, 1892.

To present value of Benefits under Table I. ....	8,546	0	0	By Total Funds in hand in the Ordinary Branch	4,745	0	0

„ Present value of Benefits under Tables IV. and V. ....	805	0	0	„ Present value of Contributions under Tables IV. and V. ....	630	0	0

	£14,338	0	0		£14,338	0	0

This Surplus mainly arises from the slight sickness and mortality experienced under Table I. in the past five years, in spite of the reserves for future sick pay, on this occasion being made on a very stringent basis, special provision having been made for the probability of a heavy sickness allowance in the case of sickness benefits extending to age 70.

I have only in conclusion to express my pleasure that these laborious calculations have resulted in showing the highly satisfactory financial position of the Society, and to tender my thanks to the Board of Management, and their representative the Assistant Secretary, for supplying the data required for the valuation in so accurate and convenient a form.

I am, Ladies and Gentlemen, your obedient Servant,

H. W. ANDRAS,
Fellow of the Institute of Actuaries.
